

THE REVOLUTION IN CUBA.—Telegraph communication between Sagua la Grande and Villa Clara, which had been destroyed by the revolutionists, has been restored. It is reported that the leaders of the revolution in the sugar districts of Cienfuegos, Villa Clara, and Trinidad are Udolpho Ovada and his brother Frederick. The former was recently American Consul at Cienfuegos, and was removed at the request of Captain General Lersundi, and was colonel of a Philadelphia regiment of Zouaves during the civil war in the United States. The latter was, until last week, the American Consul at Trinidad de Cuba, and has just resigned.

A correspondent of the New York Tribune, writing from Havana, states that the whole island of Cuba is undermined with revolt. Beginning at extreme points in the eastern jurisdictions of Bayamo and Santiago de Cuba, it has spread westward till it seizes railroads midway to Havana, breaks out unexpectedly and simultaneous both on northern and southern coasts, and causes popular outbursts so dangerously near to the Capital as at Matanzas. It is even reported that the insurgent commander operating on the railroad lines about Villa Clara has seven well armed regiments under him, excellent in artillery.
