
Cuban Privateer.

A vessel is now lying near the Atlantic Docks, Brooklyn, which, it is asserted, is being rapidly fitted out for a Cuban privateer. She, when loaded, very little likely to present much of her hull above water, and as she is a swift craft is likely to prove an effective blockade-runner. Her armament consists of eight long 68s and a 100-pound Parrott gun at the bow. Her crew will consist of English-speaking sailors, and will be a large one, in fact thrice the number required to work her. Rumor gives the name of the Captain as McDERMOTT. Another vessel, intended for a similar purpose, is now under seizure. It is said that the Junta has paid the officers three months' advance in gold. She will be coaled shortly, and when ready has a tender to act in concert with her.
