The Nipe Filibusters Moving Toward Holguin—Troops Operating in Country—Attack on a Sugar Estate—War Vessels.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, June 5, 1869.

Since my despatch of the 30th ult. we have nothing further from Majari, and nothing is positively known of the movements of the filibusters since their escape from the Nipe peninsula. It is currently reported that they took the road to Holguin.

A party of insurgents recently attacked the garrison on the Santa Isabel sugar estate, but were repulsed. The troops from this city are all in the country and the volunteers are doing guard duty here. Last evening 100 men were sent to Aserradero by steamer.

The North German war steamer Victoria is in port. The weather remains fine.

Colonel Camara, in a despatch published this morning, claims to have defeated the insurgents at San Simon, near here, and to have taken two cannon from them. The troops had several wounded. Loss of insurgents not stated.
