

IN CUBA, with such tactics on the part of all the Cuban commanders as we observe on the part of Jordan, it is impossible for the rebellion to be put down. He makes no unnecessary fuss, does not seek occasion to fight, but bides his time and organizes, while disease, demoralization and discouragement in every form break down the Spanish power. When the fight, thus prepared for on either side, does come off, Spain certainly cannot win it.