

---

In addition to the news of a great outbreak in Havana, the telegraph announces the successful landing in Cuba of Col de Russey's battalion to join Gen. Jordan. New munitions of war have been shipped to the bay of Nipe, whence they will soon reach their destination among the filibusters and Cubans in the interior. By late particulars we understand that the invalid Captain-General has been driven from office and from the country.

---