

The disturbances in western Cuba continue to increase. The leaders of the rebels in the vicinity of Ceinfuegos and Villa Clara are Adolfo and Frederick Cavada, brothers, the latter of whom was colonel of a Philadelphia regiment during the war.