

Cuban Revolution.

The Navy Department at Washington has received important dispatches from Admiral Hoff, dated at Havana, the 14th inst. He says everything is remarkably quiet there. The Spanish authorities seem confident of suppressing the rebellion before the expiration of the year. The rainy season now coming on precludes the possibility of any active operations, from the interior, or the movements of either party being revived at present. In conversation with Cubans who were at one time sanguine of success, I find that those in this end of the island are dissatisfied, from the fact that the revolution has not been conducted in a manner to coincide with their views.

There is little or no organization among them, although they claim that the cause of their present inactivity is owing to their forces being exercised and instructed in the use of arms preparatory for a campaign at the close of the rainy season. General Cespedes and Quesada are acting independently and have their own separate forces and adherents.

Mr. Hall, our Consul General, and the Commodore of the English fleet, seem to think that the insurrection is being crushed, and that in a few weeks it will consist of nothing but irregular bands of outlaws, scattered through the interior.
