

CUBA.

---

Attack on the Captain of an American Vessel—He is Obligated to Take Refuge on Board an English War Vessel.

HAVANA, Feb. 22, 1870.

A report was lately set afloat here by an American that Captain Franklin, of the fishing smack Fulton, had helped the assassins of Castaño to escape from Key West and had landed Colonel Tinker in Cuba. On the arrival of his vessel in the harbor this morning a party of men put off in a boat, and, rowing up to the smack, called for the captain and threatened his life. The latter becoming alarmed, took refuge on board the British man-of-war Eclipse. The men in the boat, finding that the captain had disappeared, returned to the shore without molesting the crew of the schooner. Through the efforts of the new Consul General, Mr. Biddie, they have since been arrested, and the government has sent a guard to protect the Fulton.

General Terre arrived to-day from Puerto Principe.