A Newspaper War About Ex-Captain General Lersundi—Skirmishes Reported—The Renegade Arango Issues a Proclamation—Puella Relieved from Command.

HAVANA, March 31, 1870.

The Voz de Cuba published a bitter article against Lersundi, whereupon the Prensa, which was about to unite with the Voz, denounces it, and declares it cannot join a journal which attacks such a patriot as Lersundi.

The Diario also defends Lersundi, repelling the idea that he ever had any connection with a plan to erect Cuba into a province independent or opposed to the present government.

Rebels continue to surrender themselves in the Central Department.

Skirmishes are reported near Nuevitaa.

General Arango has issued a manifesto to the people declaring the revolution has no reason to exist to-day, and advising his countrymen to lay down their arms.

General Puella has been relieved of his command. His successor has not yet been announced.
