HAVANA, April 7, 1870.

Official de-patches have been received from Captain General De Rodas, at Puerto Principe, announcing a great reaction in the insurrectionary district in favor of the Spaniards. The presentations of persons to the Spanish authorities for protection continues. Ten columns of Spanish troops had left Puerto Principe, with instructions to divide into small parties. Each column was under sealed orders from the Captain General.

The rebel General Agramonte lately hung a man to a tree on the road leading into Puerto Principe, with the inscription pinned to him—"Executed for trying to surrender."

The towns of Cascorro, Sibanicu and Gualmaro have been strongly fortified by the Spanish troops. Companies of volunteers are being organized in those towns, which will be composed entirely of Cubans, and as soon as they are equipped will proceed to the field.

Two hundred Spaniards from the garrison of Puerto Principe marched into the town of Santa Cruz, where they captured and executed three rebel colonels, named Recio, Cancio and Medina.

The Spanish despatches report that the rebel General Jordan has certainly fled the country, and that the main body of insurgents, consisting of 800 men, are commanded by General Agramonte.

These despatches also state that the Cuban Congress had been dissolved.

Cuban families who surrendered to the Spanish authorities at Arenas state that President Cespedes had abandoned the region of Las Tuñas and had retired, with about a dozen of his followers, to the Camagurie region.

Spanish convoys of provisions now reach the town of Las Tuñas without molestation by the insurgents.

A boiler on the Precioso plantation, near Cardenas, lately exploded, killing nine and wounding fifteen of the hands employed and completely demolishing the boiler house.

A duel was fought between the rebel Colonels Ryan and Sugliu, but the result is not known.
