CUBA FOR THE CUBANS.

AS ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING OF REVOLUTIONISTS HAD BEEN HELD.

A battle-scarred veteran stood in Handman Hall on Sunday evening and said: "I offer myself and all I have to Cuba," and 600 who were in the audience, were moved to tears. The meeting was crowded, and the overflowing audience overflowed into the hall's balcony.

Nearby the entire Cuban people in New York met in a mass meeting last night in Carnegie Hall to discuss the revolution and how they could help the Cuban independence movement.

Cuban merchants who have been living in exile from their own land, and young men of Cuban descent at home, have worked to provide supplies and support to the revolution. Visiting dignitaries and handsome women cheered and applauded the fiery addresses which were made in the assembly.

"Down with Spain," and "one enthusiastic man thrills the house by repeatedly yelling: "Let us do and fight them." The call for contributions was met with enthusiasm, and there was a sense of unity and purpose.

It was reported that the chairman, Juan Fraga, was almost overwhelmed by the pile of treasury notes, checks and coin which was placed before him. The sum of $710 in cash and $510 in checks was given for the cause.

When a telegram was read from the revolutionary leaders in Havana announcing that the flag had been raised at Santiago, the audience was wild, uppouring cheering for five minutes. Then it was that Captain Emilio Urrutia had fought for Cuban independence, and had been imprisoned for his efforts.

The call for support for the revolution was met with enthusiasm, and there was a sense of unity and purpose. The Rev. Mr. Wilson expressed his sympathy with the independence movement, and the meeting was concluded with a sense of hope for the future of Cuba.

Addressed in the Spanish language were Juan Frega, Estrada Palma, ex-president of the short-lived Cuban Republic, and Juan Carlos Gonzáles and Francisco Martín, Chairman Fragas of the revolutionary party. Estrada Palma, Emilio Urrutia and Francisco Martín were present.

Dr. J. Luis, Enrique Trujillo, Víctor Reano, Dr. Carlos Goróstegui, and other Cuban leaders also attended. The meeting was concluded with a sense of hope for the future of Cuba.
