ORGANIZATION COMPRISING DISTINGUISHED REPRESENTATIVES OF ALL THE SOUTH AMERICAN REPUBLICS.

NeARLY EVERY MEMBER A POET.

Men of the Republic of Letters Associated to Promote Good Will Between All America's Republics.

Nowadays there are clubs for women, for politics, for science, for tea, for books, for clubs, and clubs, but there is no club for poetry. That is what makes the Spanish-American Literary Society, of which we have written to the press, so unique in its kind. This society is composed of the most famous literary men of the South American Republics.

A group of the most prominent men in Cuba, Brazil, Panama, and Uruguay have united to form the Spanish-American Literary Society. They meet every Sunday in a beautiful hall in Havana, where they have a table and a tobacco-box, and they enjoy a meal together.

This is the only society of its kind in the world, and it is the best society in the world. It is a society of poets, of men who love poetry, and of men who are the most respected in the world. It is a society of men who love each other and who love poetry.

Almost all the poets in the world are members of this society. They meet every Sunday and they enjoy a meal together. They have a table and a tobacco-box, and they enjoy a meal together. It is a society of poets, of men who love poetry, and of men who are the most respected in the world. It is a society of men who love each other and who love poetry.

G. M. G. G. is the president of the society. He is a man of great respect, and he is the most respected man in the world. He is a poet, and he is the most respected poet in the world. He is a man who loves poetry, and he is the most respected man who loves poetry.

The society is composed of the most famous literary men of the South American Republics. They are the men who are the most respected in the world. They are the men who love poetry, and they are the most respected men who love poetry.

The society meets every Sunday in a beautiful hall in Havana, where they have a table and a tobacco-box, and they enjoy a meal together. It is a society of poets, of men who love poetry, and of men who are the most respected in the world. It is a society of men who love each other and who love poetry.