

Prio Sees Friends, Not Cuban Plotters

An excited woman's report of "Cubans plotting a revolution" today turned out to be merely a social gathering at the house of the aged mother of Cuban ex-president Carlos Prio Socarras.

A reporter sent to SW 21st Road, between 2nd Avenue and Coral Way, found Prio sitting under a shade tree, surrounded by friends. There were about 18 persons—not the "150 or so" the caller had mentioned.
