

Explosives Found At Karl Marx Tomb

LONDON (Reuters) — Scotland Yard police confirmed yesterday that an attempt was made last Thursday to blow up Karl Marx's tomb in London's Highgate Cemetery.

In New York, the anti - Communist Cuban Nationalist Association claimed yesterday it was responsible for the attempt. A Scotland Yard spokesman said "some explosive substance" was found near the memorial to the father of communism.