Fugitives' Photos Released by FBI

United Press International

The FBI released yesterday recently uncovered photographs of two fugitives linked to a Cuban terrorist group and accused of murder in the 1976 bombing death of former Chilean diplomat Orlando Letelier.

The fugitives, Virgilio Pablo Paz Romero and Jose Dionisio Suarez y Esquivel, are among eight men indicted on murder charges in connection with the blast that ripped apart Letelier's car, killing him and an associate, Ronnie Moffitt, on Embassy Row here.

The FBI also released a photograph of Paz' wife, Idania, 26, who is believed to be traveling with her husband.

Release of the photographs was a clear indication federal agents have made no progress in tracking the alleged terrorists. The bureau said both Paz and Suarez, "who may be armed and in possession of explosives, should be considered dangerous."

The other five men charged with murder, and another suspect accused of a lesser charge, have been located.

The Justice Department is awaiting a ruling from the Chilean Supreme Court on its request that three former officials of Chile's secret police force who allegedly ordered the bombing be extradited to the United States to face murder charges.

Three members of the anti-Castro terrorist group already are in custody and are scheduled to stand trial Jan.
