SIR: Complying with your verbal request of recent date, I have the honor to transmit herewith an itemized statement of expenditures made on account of the Triscornia Railroad, in the island of Cuba, from January 1, 1899, to April 30, 1900, as audited.

The items making up the expenditures herein stated have been segregated from the report of expenditures under the heading of "Rural guard and administration," heretofore transmitted to your honorable committee.

Very respectfully,

ELIHU ROOT,
Secretary of War.

Hon. O. H. PLATT,
Chairman Committee on Relations with Cuba,
United States Senate.

ITEMIZED STATEMENT OF EXPENDITURES MADE ON ACCOUNT OF THE TRISCORNIA RAILROAD IN THE ISLAND OF CUBA, FROM JANUARY 1, 1899, TO APRIL 30, 1900.

CONTRACT.

This agreement, entered into at Washington, D. C., this 9th day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety eight, between Colonel Frank J. Hecker, quartermaster, United States Volunteers, of the first part, and the American Indies Company of New York City, New York, a corporation duly organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, of the second part:

Witnesseth: That the said Colonel Frank J. Hecker, quartermaster, United States Volunteers, for and in behalf of the United States of America, and the said American Indies Company covenant and agree to and with each other, as follows:

That the said American Indies Company, party of the second part, shall in the most substantial and workmanlike manner, to the satisfaction and acceptance of the said first party, or other duly-authorized representative of the Quartermaster Department of the United States Army, build and construct a single-track railroad, extending from Triscornia, upon the bay of Havana, Cuba, to a connection with the Matanzas line of the United Railways Company of Havana, at a point east of Guanabacoa, Cuba, together with the necessary turnouts, cross overs, and sidings for the transaction of business:

And also build and construct a timber pier at the Havana Bay terminus of said railroad, extending to deep water, for the docking of large steamships:

The said railroad and pier to be built and finished, as described in the approved plans and following specifications, and agreeably to the directions received from the duly-authorized representative of the Quartermaster's Department of the United States Army and the constructing engineer employed by him, on or before the tenth day of February, eighteen hundred and ninty-nine.

SPECIFICATIONS.

FOR GRADING.

1. Under this head will be included all excavations and embankments required for the formation of the roadbed; cutting all ditches or drains about or contiguous to the road; thefoundations of culverts and bridges or walls; the excavations and embankments necessary for reconstructing turnpike or common roads, in cases where they are destroyed or interfered with in the formation of the railroad, and all other excavations and embankments connected with or incident to the construction of said railroad.

2. All cuttings shall be measured in the excavations and estimated by the cubic yard. They will be deposited in the embankments and it is expressly understood that no extra price will be paid for overhaul.

3. The material taken from all excavations shall be deposited within the stakes set by the engineer of construction to show the footings of the embankments, and any material that may be carelessly wasted by the contractor, outside of the embankment stakes given by the engineer, shall be deducted from his estimate as being material wasted contrary to the engineer's instructions.

4. The ground to be occupied by the excavations and embankments, together with a space of 12 feet beyond the slope stakes on each side, or 10 feet beyond the berm ditch, where one is required, shall be cleared of all trees, brush, and other perishable matter. Where the filling does not exceed 2½ feet the trees, stumps, and saplings must be grubbed; but under all other portions of the embankment it will be sufficient that they be cut close to the earth; no separate allowance will be made for grubbing and clearing, but its cost will be included in the price for excavation.

5. The engineer, upon application from the contractor, will go with him upon the ground and give him stakes promptly, and no charge shall be made by the contractor for hindrance or delay from any cause during the progress of work under this contract.

CULVERTS.

Where directed by the engineer, the contractor will place at road crossings and small openings terra-cotta pipe twenty inches in diameter and of standard quality. The pipe to be laid to line, upon plank foundations, with cemented joints. All other openings for the passage of surface water or small streams shall be of trestle work, built of yellow-pine timber, according to the engineer's plans.

TRACK.

The track shall be laid with seventy-pound P. R. R. standard section steel rail, upon 7″ x 7″ x 8′ 6″ yellow-pine crossties, laid thirteen ties to the thirty-foot rail; the joints suspended between ties and supported by angle splices with bolts and nut locks, according to the standard track of the Pennsylvania R. R.. The rail shall be spiked to the ties with standard spikes, two spikes to be driven in each tie on the outside and one spike upon the inside of the rail. The track shall be carefully laid to gauge and line, the ends of the ties to line up upon the north side of track, the joints to be spiked open one-eighth of an inch, the rail on curves to be bent according to the radius.

Turn-outs, switches, or cross-overs of such angle as may be directed by the engineer shall be constructed where designated by him, laid with 70-pound section steel rail, complete according to the standard of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

BALLAST.

The ballast shall be of the best quality of hard rock to be found upon the line, and shall be broken to a size of from two to three inches, and to be delivered screened and free from dust or earthy material, and to the acceptance of the engineer. All ballast shall be put on the roadbed under the direction of the engineer, who shall direct the amount of ballast to be furnished and placed under the track after the contractor has finished grading his work to cross sections.

PIER.

The terminal pier of Triscornia shall be constructed 400 feet in length and 60 feet in width, in accordance with the directions and plans furnished by the engineer. The substructure shall be of creosoted pine piling measuring not less than 14 inches at the butt and 8 inches at the point, and holding their size. All piles to be ringed and driven home under blows from a 3,000-pound hammer, under the inspection and to the satisfaction of the engineer. All piles must be properly driven to their places according to plan, and the contractor will not be allowed to pull over improperly driven piles, but must extract and redrive the same under inspection. All piles furnished must be accompanied by a sworn statement by a Government inspector to the effect that not less than 12 pounds of dead oil of tar per cubic foot has been forced into them. All caps, stringers, joist, plank, or other timber of any sort used in the construction of the superstructure of the pier shall be of Georgia heart long-leafed pine, prime inspection.

BOLTS AND BANDS.

All bolts, bands, and plates shall be of a good quality, double refined wrought iron, having tensile strength of not less than 50,000 pounds per square inch, and an elongation of 20 per cent in a 2½-inch section, or steel, low in carbon, and shall be furnished in accordance with the plans furnished by the engineer.

And that for the work done under this contract the United States shall pay to the party of the second part as follows:

For excavation	per cubic yard	$1.70
For embankment, when necessary to borrow	do	.90
For terra cotta pipe, 20 inches in diameter	per foot, laid	1.25
For furnishing and laying track, complete	per mile	8,000.00
For furnishing and laying turn-outs, switches, and cross-overs, complete, each		300.00
For ballasting track	per cubic yard	1.00
For creosoted pine piles, from 30 to 60 feet long, driven to place and tenoned	per linear foot	.85
For all timber and lumber in pier, trestles, cattle guards and cross-overs, with necessary fastenings, bolts, and spikes, framed and in place, per 100 feet B. M.		48.00
For special iron work, wrought and cast	per pound	.06
For removing old piles	each	5.00

On or about the last day of each month during the progress of these works an estimate shall be made by the constructing engineer of the relative value of the work done and the materials furnished, and 90 per cent of the amount of said estimate shall be paid to the party of the second part within ten days thereafter, and when all the work embraced in this contract is completed agreeably to the specifications, and in accordance with the directions and to the satisfaction and acceptance of the said representative of the Quartermaster's Department, there shall be a final estimate made of the quality, character, and value of said work, according to the terms of this agreement, when the balancing appearing to be due to the said party of the second part shall be paid to them.

It is further covenanted and agreed between the parties hereto that the said party of the second part shall not sublet or transfer this contract, or any part thereof, to any person, but at all times give personal attention and superintendence to the work.

It is further agreed and understood that the works embraced in this contract shall be commenced within three days from this date and prosecuted with such force as to complete them within the time above specified; and if at any time the said party of the second part shall neglect or refuse to prosecute the works with a sufficient force, in the opinion of the constructing engineer, for their completion within the time specified in this agreement, previous written notice having been given them to this effect, then and in that case, the United States may complete said works and charge the amount of expense therefor to the said party of the second part; or for the failure to prosecute the works with an adequate force, for noncompliance with his directions in the matter of constructing them, or for any other omission or neglect of the requirements of this agreement or specifications on the part of the party of the second part, the said representative of the Quartermaster's Department, in his discretion, may declare this contract, or any portion embraced in it, forfeited, which declaration of forfeiture shall exonerate the said party of the first part from any and all obligations and liabilities arising under this contract, the same as if this agreement had never been made.

And in the event of this contract or any portion embraced in it being declared so forfeited, for any cause or causes hereinbefore mentioned, then the United States will complete said works and charge the amount of the expense therefor to the said party of the second part;

And it is mutually agreed and distinctly understood that all material used in the construction of the said works shall be subject to the inspection of the constructing engineer, whose acceptance or rejection shall be final and conclusive;

And further, that no member of or delegate to Congress nor any person belonging to or employed in the military service of the United States, shall be admitted to any share or part of this contract, or to any benefit which may arise therefrom.

The party of the second part hereby obligate themselves to give a bond in the penal sum of two hundred thousand dollars, by an approved trust or surety company, securing the faithful execution and completion of this contract.

In witness whereof the parties to this agreement have hereunto placed their hands the day first hereinbefore written.

Executed in triplicate.

WAR DEPARTMENT, QUARTERMASTER-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, December 10, 1898.

MR. R. A. C. SMITH,
President American Indies Company,
100 Broadway, New York.

SIR: Referring to your telegram of 8th instant in which you state "The specifications for timber call for clear, hard pine, prime inspection. Order will not be accepted by any responsible firm under sixty days delivery. Can place order and ship within fifteen days first-class merchantable timber, Savannah inspection, if you will accept this form of inspection. We ship one hundred thousand feet extra, so as to cover any defects. You will understand that it is not a question of money, it is only a question of time, time being the essence of this contract," and to the remarks made by Mr. Kelly, who called on me on the 9th instant, on the same subject, that the difference in cost to your company between timber for the pier under the contract specification "clear, hard pine, prime inspection," and "merchantable timber, Savannah inspection," is $8 per thousand. While we would much prefer to have timber used conforming to our specifications, we will, to avoid delays, accept it to be "first-class merchantable timber, Savannah inspection," the contract price to be reduced from $48 to $40 per thousand B. M., and you to ship approximately one hundred thousand feet extra so as to cover any lumber that may be rejected.

Respectfully,

FRANK J. HECKER,
Colonel and Quartermaster, U. S. V.,
Chief Division of Transportation.

Accepted.

Know all men by these presents, that the undersigned, the American Indies Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey, as principal, and the American Surety Company of New York, of No. 100 Broadway, New York City, State of New York, as surety, are held and firmly bound to the United States in the penal sum of two hundred thousand (200,000) dollars, lawful money of the United States, to be paid to said obligee, for payment of which we hereby bind ourselves and said American Indies Company, its successors and assigns.

The condition of this obligation is such that if said American Indies Company shall well and faithfuly perform its contract entered into on the ninth day of December, 1898, by and between it and Colonel Frank J. Hecker, quartermaster, United States Volunteers, acting for and in behalf of the United States of America, for constructing a single-track railroad, extending from Triscornia, upon the Bay of Havana, Cuba, to a connection with the Matanzas line of the United Railways Company of Havana, at a point east of Guanabacoa, Cuba, together with the necessary turn-outs, cross-overs, and sidings, and also for constructing a timber pier at the Havana Bay terminus of said railroad, extending to deep water, all in accordance with the said contract, plans, and specifications, then this obligation to be void, otherwise of full force and effect.

Signed, sealed, and delivered this twelfth day of December, 1898.

SIR: In the matter of ballasting the Government railroad, based on the recommendation of Capt. J. U. Crawford, consulting engineer, I hereby confirm the verbal understanding arrived at with your Mr. Kelly, that it is not advisable at the present time to lay the track upon broken-stone ballast, as specified in specifications.

It will be satisfactory to this department if you surface and back fill the track with best material, to be taken from cuts east of the Cojimar Galzada and from the two rock cuts near Triscornia; the material to be examined by the engineer, and only such as is found suitable for this purpose to be taken—he to indicate to you the cuts from which the material is taken—and it being distinctly understood that no loam, clay, or soft material be taken, and that only such material be taken as is indicated by the engineer.

Of such approved material, at least 4 inches is to be placed on the roadbed as sub-ballast, the rail to be brought to a true surface and lined, and the ballast well tamped under the ties and the ties, properly back filled and shouldered.

For this work you are to be allowed at the rate of six hundred and fifty dollars ($650) per mile of track.

Your acknowledgment that this is satisfactory is all that is necessary to make it effective.

Yours, respectfully,

FRANK J. HECKER,
Colonel and Chief, Division of Transportation.

Colonel FRANK J. HECKER, U. S. V.,
Chief of Division of Transportation, Havana, Cuba.

COLONEL: I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of 1st inst., respecting the surfacing and back-filling of track of Triscornia R. R., and to state that the proposition therein contained and the price stated—six hundred and fifty dollars per mile of track—are satisfactory.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

SIR: Confirming the verbal agreement made with your Mr. Kelly, under which your company are to do the necessary excavation for sites for warehouses and side tracks leading thereto, at Triscornia, on behalf of the quartermaster's department, I hereby agree to pay you for such excavations at the rate of seventy-five (75) cents per cubic yard, it being understood and agreed that the material so excavated is to be used in filling up the depressions on the site so as to make it suitable for warehouse uses. The work to be done under the direction of the engineer of the department.

The endorsement of your acceptance hereon will be in lieu of formal contract.

Very respectfully,

FRANK J. HECKER,
Colonel and Chief Division of Transportation.

Accepted for the American Indies Co.

E. SHERMAN GOULD,
Chf Engr.

NOTE.—This correspondence is upon the three letters forming the extra agreement made by Colonel Hecker, viz: Letters dated January 28, February 1, and February 2, 1899. This "extra" sent to auditor by the usual slip indorsement in such cases, under date of February 16, 1899, the same being the first indorsement.

[Second indorsement.]

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE AUDITOR FOR THE WAR DEPARTMENT,
January 23, 1900.

Respectfully referred to the Q. M. General, U. S. A.

This is an important modification of the terms of a contract entered into December 9, 1898, between Frank J. Hecker, col. and quartermaster, U. S. Vols., and the American Indies Co., for construction of a railway in Cuba, and as the original contract received the approval of the Hon. Secretary of War, this modification can not be recognized as binding upon the parties interested, until it also has been approved by the Hon. Secretary of War.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
QUARTERMASTER-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, Feby. 2, 1900.

Respectfully referred to Col. Frank J. Hecker, Detroit, Michigan, whose attention is invited to the preceding indorsement hereon, and with request that he will please inform this office on the following points before I submit the matter to the honorable the Secretary of War, viz:

1st. Is the within letter of January 28, 1899, a proposition for excavation work in addition to and not included in or covered by any of the provisions of the original contract with the American Indies Company, dated December 9, 1898.

2nd. The original contract of December 9, 1898, for ballasting, provided for payment of $1.00 per cubic yard, whereas the inclosed letter of February 1, 1899, provides for payment of $650.00 per mile of track for ballast. Can you inform this office of the approximate difference in cost for doing this ballasting work between the two propositions?

Please return these papers with your reply at the earliest date practicable.

M. I. LUDINGTON,
Quartermaster-General, U. S. A.

DETROIT, MICH., February 5, 1900.

1st. The contract of Jan. 28th, 1899, was for excavating and grading a site for warehouses and side tracks leading thereto, and the work done under it was not, in my opinion, included in or covered by the original contract with the American Indies Co., dated Dec. 9th, 1898.

Under the original contract for the construction of the railroad the price for excavation was $1.70 per cubic yard.

At the time this contract was entered into the number of warehouses to be constructed had not been determined by the department, nor had their location been definitely fixed. When this location was fixed and its area determined, I found that the cost per yard for the excavation and preparation of site for warehouses would be materially less than for grading the roadbed, and as the contract of December 9th, 1898, made no provision for grading warehouse site, although the contractor claimed it was covered by the last clause of paragraph No. 1 in specifications for grading, I insisted on the right of the department to make a new contract for doing this work, with the result that I succeeded in inducing the contractor to accept seventy-five cents per yard, thereby effecting a saving, between $1.70 and $0.75 per yard, of $10,995.00.

2nd. On Feb'y 1st, 1899, both myself and the consulting engineer, having reached the conclusion that there was not sufficient suitable stone along the line of the road to provide material for stone ballast to conform to specifications, deemed it to the best interest of the department to substitute ballasting, as specified in my letter of that date. The engineer's original estimate for ballasting the road with broken stone under the specifications was fifteen hundred yards per mile, costing, at $1 per yard, $1,500, whereas, under contract of Feb'y 1st, 1899, the cost was $650, making a saving of first cost of the railroad of $850 per mile.

FRANK J. HECKER.

[Fourth indorsement.]

WAR DEPARTMENT,
QUARTERMASTER-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, Feb'y 14th, 1900.

Respectfully forwarded to the honorable the Secretary of War, inviting attention to the remarks of the Auditor for the War Department hereon, asking that the within-mentioned modifications of contract entered into December, 1898, between Frank J. Hecker, colonel and quartermaster, United States Volunteers, and the American Indies Company for constructing a railway in Cuba, be approved by the Secretary of War as in the case of the original contract. Attention is also invited to the third indorsement hereon of Colonel Hecker, formerly of the Quartermaster's Department, who, under the instructions of the Secretary of War, made the original contract in this case.

For your information the original contract, approved by Secretary Alger, is herewith inclosed.

The modifications mentioned in the papers as shown by Colonel Hecker's indorsement, resulted in a reduction in the price for certain work and a saving in expenditures over the provisions in the original contract.

In making these modifications of the original contract, it is believed that Colonel Hecker acted within the scope of his authority as received from Secretary Alger, and that said modifications were considered by him to be for the best interests of the public service.

M. I. LUDINGTON,
Quartermaster-General, U. S. A.

[Fifth indorsement.]

WAR DEPARTMENT, February 26, 1900.

The modifications of contract herein referred to are approved.

G. D. MEIKLEJOHN,
Assistant Secretary of War.

EXPENDITURES MADE FOR SANITATION IN THE ISLAND OF CUBA.

Under the heading of sanitation is included all sanitary work, such as cleaning and repair of streets, repair of sewers and water system (not properly chargeable under barracks and quarters for the reason that the property on which this work was carried on is not occupied by troops of the United States as barracks and quarters, hospitals, etc.), collection and disposal of garbage and refuse, and disinfection of unsanitary buildings and section.

The apparent large variation of the different departments in the amounts under this heading is due to an error, which is frequently made, namely, putting all the street repairs and construction outside of the proper limits of municipalities under this heading instead of under public works, ports, and harbors, where there is an apparent decrease in that particular item.

[Total expended $4,079,011.96.]

Itemized statement of expenditures in the island of Cuba, made under the heading of "Sanitation," from funds pertaining to the fiscal year ended June 30, 1899.

[Fourth indorsement.]

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
BUREAU OF YARDS AND DOCKS,
Washington, D. C., July 10, 1900.

Respectfully forwarded to the Department.

2. Supplemental to the third indorsement, which covers all expenditures made under the cognizance of this bureau at the naval station, Habana, the bureau has the honor to make the following explanatory statement of the use and disposition of material purchased and of the necessity for the expenditures for labor, viz:

3. Labor, pay of clerks, etc., $45,066.70.

Money expended under this head was entirely for sanitary purposes in fumigation and cleaning buildings and repairing sewerage and piping and cleaning grounds. The employment of clerks was for the use of officers attached to the station, both for clerical work and as interpreters.

4. Furniture, etc., $4,297.43.

The furniture was for the use of officers attached to the station, to whom quarters were assigned and receipts taken for same. All the furniture purchased is still on hand, and the portion not in use at the present time is retained for safe-keeping until again required.

5. Fixtures, $2,184.58.

Shades and hangings, lamps, chandeliers, electrical supplies, and plumbing supplies were all purchased for the rooms and houses of officers attached to the station. In the admiralty building and the houses at the navy-yard the lighting apparatus and plumbing had been almost wholly destroyed before being turned over to the naval representative for the United States. The telephones connected the office of the commandant with the navy-yard, and were in such condition as to need repairs. These articles have been expended for the purposes for which purchased.

6. General supplies, $5,052.03.

The articles purchased under the above heading were for general repairs to and disinfection of the houses and grounds of the station, and the health and comfort of the personnel attached thereto. and a proper maintenance of the police force and office records. These articles have been expended for the purposes for which purchased and are still in use.

7. Marine Corps disbursements, $696.88.

Beds and bedding under the above heading were for the use of the marine guard attached to this station, which has been transferred. Upon the transfer of the guard, this property was packed and stored for safe-keeping and is now on hand. Laundry, ice, etc., was expended for the use of the officers and men composing the guard.

MORDECAI T. ENDICOT,
Chief of Bureau.

REPORT

UPON THE

FRAUDS AND EMBEZZLEMENTS OF CUBAN POSTAL OFFICIALS

BY

Joseph
J. L. BRISTOW,
FOURTH ASSISTANT POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

SUBMITTED JULY 19, 1900.

INDEXED.

WASHINGTON:
GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE.
1900.

OFFICE OF THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL,
Washington, D. C., July 25, 1900.

Hon. O. H. PLATT,
Chairman Committee on Relations with Cuba,
United States Senate.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit to you herewith a copy of the report of Joseph L. Bristow, Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General, who was detailed by this Department to investigate the frauds and peculations in the postal service of Cuba, together with copies of all the exhibits appended thereto.

Very respectfully,

CH. EMORY SMITH,
Postmaster-General.

REPORT

FRAUDS AND EMBEZZLEMENTS OF CUBAN POSTAL OFFICIALS.

OFFICE OF FOURTH ASSISTANT POSTMASTER-GENERAL,
Washington, July 19, 1900.

SIR: In obedience to your letter of May 12, 1900, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 1," and your additional instructions under date of May 16, directing me to proceed to Cuba to examine and report upon the organization of the department of posts, and to investigate the frauds and embezzlements alleged to have been committed by postal officials of that island, I have the honor to submit the following report relating to the investigation of the frauds and embezzlements. A separate report covering the reorganization of the department of posts and the postal service of the island will be submitted hereafter.

Receiving your letter of instructions on May 16, 1900, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 2," I left Washington for Cuba on the same date, traveling by the way of Port Tampa, Fla., and arrived at Habana on the steamship Mascotte on Saturday, May 19, at 1 o'clock p. m. I proceeded at once to the office of the military governor, presented my letter of instructions, and conferred with him as to the work in hand. After reviewing the situation as it then existed with Gen. Leonard Wood, military governor, it was decided, in consideration of the statements recently made to the military officials and post-office inspectors by late Assistant Auditor Reeves and others, that the interests of the postal service and the investigation demanded that I take immediate charge of the department of posts. General Wood at once forwarded notice of this decision by messenger to Hon. E. G. Rathbone, director-general of posts, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 3." After the conference with General Wood, I proceeded immediately to the office of the director-general of posts and notified the employees there that as Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General of the United States and ranking postal official upon the island of Cuba I had assumed charge of the department of posts, and all business of the department would be, from that date, transacted in my name. I advised the Postmaster-General of the United States of my action by cable and notified the director-general of posts. Copies of cable message and notice are herewith submitted, marked respectively "Exhibit 4" and "Exhibit 5." On Monday, May 21, I received a letter from Director-General Rathbone asking that I submit to him my authority for taking charge of the department of posts to his exclusion, in reply to which I transmitted to him a copy of my letter of instructions from the Postmaster-General, dated May 16, 1900. I invite special attention to the correspondence had between the Postmaster-General, Governor Wood, Director-General Rathbone, and myself bearing on this subject, copies of which are herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 6."

After assuming charge of the department of posts, I immediately proceeded to a careful inquiry as to the nature and extent of the frauds and embezzlements, and also as to the necessity for a reorganization of the service.

EMBEZZLEMENTS.

In considering the frauds of the department of posts of Cuba I shall discuss first the embezzlements of C. F. W. Neely.

On January 7, 1899, Director Rathbone issued the following order creating a bureau of finance:

No. 6.

General Order. }
Original No. 4. }

HABANA, January 7, 1899.

Ordered that a bureau of finance be and is hereby established at headquarters of the director of posts of Cuba, and that to its chief will be assigned the charge and custody of postage stamps, stamped envelopes, and postal cards, the supplying of postmasters, upon their requisition, with these stamp supplies, and the rendering of an account of these transactions to the director of posts at the close of every quarter. He shall also have under his management all blank supplies for the department of posts and for the use of postmasters, which he will order and distribute as the needs of the service demand, and the performance of such other duties as may, from time to time, be required by the director of posts.

He shall give bond with good and approved security, in such amount as the director of posts may determine.

E. G. RATHBONE,
Director of Posts.

C. F. W. Neely was appointed by the director of posts as chief of this bureau. Director-General Rathbone states that he believed Neely to be a capable and upright man, and asked that letters on file in the bureau of appointments of the department of posts be considered in connection with this appointment. Copies of said letters are herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 7." Neely was formerly engaged in the newspaper and printing business at Muncie, Ind. As far as I could learn he had never had any experience in postal affairs, nor in handling large amounts of money, or in keeping accounts.

A bureau of postal accounts was created by an order of the director of posts on January 25, 1899, a copy of which order is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 8." The order makes the laws, rules, and regulations of the United States, concerning the settlement and adjustment of postal accounts, in force so far as applicable. W. H. Reeves, a clerk in the office of the Auditor for the Post-Office Department at Washington, D. C., was appointed chief of this bureau.

Since the purpose of this bureau of postal accounts was to keep a record of all receipts and expenditures of the department of posts, it should have served as a check upon the transactions of the bureau of finance, and would have been a check if its purport had been properly carried out. The chief of the bureau of finance received all postal supplies, including stamped paper, furnished the same to postmasters upon their requisition, and received remittances therefor. There were two classes of postmasters—bonded and unbonded. Bonded postmasters were those who had given bond to the department of posts for a specific amount, and were therefore furnished stamped paper on credit, remitting for the same periodically. Unbonded postmasters were those who were not bonded to the department of posts, and were required to forward the cash with their requisitions for stamped paper and postal supplies. Accounts were opened upon the books of the bureau of finance with the bonded postmasters. All remittances from unbonded postmasters were treated as cash, and no accounts were kept with these postmasters, their remittances being entered simply as cash received. Postmasters were not required to report to the bureau of postal accounts the amount of their requisitions or remittances, so all the information that bureau had as to the financial transactions of the bureau of finance was received from the chief of that bureau. Thus there was practically no check whatever upon the transactions of the chief of the bureau of finance. This lack of check gave an opportunity for extensive embezzlements and peculations on the part of the chief of the bureau of finance, and this opportunity was liberally utilized by Neely. His sources of revenue consisted principally of remittances from postmasters on postal accounts and box-rent accounts, remittances from purchasers of penalty envelopes, remittances from postmasters and employees in payment of premiums on bonds, money-order fees, and a number of miscellaneous items. The investigation of his accounts was a very tedious and difficult task, because the books covering the entire transactions of the calendar year 1899 had been destroyed, and the inspectors were compelled to go through all the receipts and requisitions from postmasters that were filed and examine the stubs of the various receipt books that were on file in the department, and compare these with the letters of transmittal, verifying the information thus secured by an examination of the entire correspondence of the bureau of finance with postmasters and all other persons where such correspondence related to any financial transactions. This correspondence was examined, from the time of the establishment of the department of posts down to the date of the beginning of the inspection, May 20, 1900. As a result of this exhaustive investigation, I am able to submit the following summary of the financial transactions of C. F. W. Neely, chief of the bureau of finance of the department of posts of Cuba:

I first set forth the debits, as they appear below:

1900.		Debit.
May 20.	To stock chargeable to bureau of finance from January 1, 1899, to May 19, 1900 (see Exhibit 10)	$970,454.18
20.	To cash from postmaster at New York on various dates prior to July 1, 1899	99,912.98
20.	To warrants Nos. 20, 23, and 37, for $3,265.47, $8,909.61, and $6,589.47, respectively, representing transfers of postal funds to money-order funds, and money-order fees (issued by auditor to bureau of finance)	18,764.55
20.	To amount of cash delivered to bureau of finance by dead letter bureau, July 1, 1899, to March 31, 1900 (see Exhibit 15, last page)	157.20
20.	To remittances from postmasters on postal account	417,255.01
20.	To remittances from postmasters on box-rent account	11,774.07
20.	To remittances from postmasters on second-class postage	199.84
20.	To remittances from postage due collected (See Exhibit 11 as to last four items.)	55.74
20.	To remittances from purchasers of penalty envelopes	1,533.40
20.	To amounts received from postmasters and post-office employees for fees on bonds (Exhibit 12)	550.00

1900.
May 20.	To amount of rebates paid by Fidelity and Deposit Company to bureau of finance on account of canceled bonds, as per statement of Fidelity and Deposit Company, June 4, $90.16, and two additional rebates (Maynard and Milliken), $6.16.	$96.32
20.	To amount of fines collected and deposited by bureau, December 8, 1899, with treasurer of the island, certificate No. 668.	37.25
20.	To remittances from postmaster at Guines, account fees collected by letter carriers (see Exhibit 11)	131.73
20.	To remittances from postmasters (damaged or unsalable stock)	6,122.53
20.	To discount credits allowed postmasters on stamped envelopes. (Exhibit 13, last two items).	75.18
Mar. 24.	To warrant No. 18225, account dual payment salary A. J. Welch, as shown by Neely's book	236.00
July 17.	To proceeds from sale of 5 mules by postmaster, Habana, as shown by Neely's book	25.00
	Total debit	1,527,380.98

This $1,527,380.98 was the total amount with which Neely is chargeable. His records show him entitled to the following credits:

		Credit.
1900.
May 20.	By value of stock on hand in bureau of finance at close of business May 19, 1900, and counted by inspectors (Exhibit 14).	$191,032.06
20.	By cash on hand, same date	2,333.00
20.	By value of stock furnished bonded postmasters, January 1, 1899, to May 19, 1900	459,101.40
	(Above item includes stock furnished Habana post-office since March 15, 1900; same treated as cash sales, $30,243.51, and stock furnished postmaster at Paso Real de San Diego, $5; and postmaster at Real Campania, $50.22; which offices not bonded.) (Exhibit 15.)
June 30.	By amount of postal funds deposited with American Trust Company, January 1 to June 30, 1899 (see Exhibit 16)	250,100.00
1900.
May 20.	By amount of postal funds deposited with the treasurer of the island, July 1, 1899, to May 19, 1900 (see Exhibit 17)	197,178.91
1899.
Oct. 20.	By excess on box rents refunded postmaster at Corral Falso, as shown by receipt of S. Filomena	1.75
Dec. 12.	By amount refunded to postmaster, C. H. Merrill, Manzanillo, as per his receipt, December 12, 1899	21.84
May 3.	By credit claimed by C. F. W. Neely on account of difference between actual and face value of Spanish copper coin (claims authority "order director-general, dated May 3, 1899")	4,345.00
May 16.	By amount advanced H. G. Nicholas, salary by authority	76.92
1899.
Sept. 13.	By surcharged stock alleged to have been burned on September 11, 1899, by the commission appointed by the director-general of posts. Letter authorizing credit dated September 13, 1899	310,000.00
Dec. 15.	By surcharged stock alleged to have been burned on December 14, 1899, by the commission appointed by the director-general of posts. Letter authorizing credit dated December 15, 1899	82,589.37
	By shortage to balance	30,600.73
	Total credits	1,527,380.98

The foregoing figures show that if Neely had balanced his own books on the 20th of May, 1900, taking credit for all that he claimed he was entitled to, he would have been short in his accounts $30,600.73. But an examination shows that a large amount of the credits which he claims are fraudulent. On May 3 he has credited himself with $4,345 as the difference between the actual and face value of Spanish copper coin. There is no evidence to be found as to what was the face value or the actual value of this copper coin, how much coin there was, in what way it was disposed of, or how much was received for the same. It is simply the unsupported statement of Neely that he is entitled to a credit of $4,345 as the difference between the actual and face value of Spanish copper coin. I do not think that this credit should be allowed unless supported by other evidence.

He also credits himself with $392,589.37 for surcharged stamps destroyed. This is a fraudulent credit, as shown by the summary of surcharged stamps received and accounted for from January 1, 1899, to August 31, 1899, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 9." Surcharged stamps were used from January 1, 1899, to August 31, 1899. On the last-named date the new issue of Cuban stamps was received, and requisitions from postmasters thereafter were filled from the new issue. The total value of surcharged stamps received by the bureau of finance from January 1, 1899 (the date of the establishment of the department of posts), to August 31, 1899, was $522,000. The total value of surcharged stamps disposed of by the bureau of finance, by issue to bonded postmasters and cash sales, from January 1, 1899, to August 31, 1899, inclusive, less $5,540.60 worth of damaged and unsalable stamps returned by postmasters, was $230,179.20, leaving a balance on hand August 31, 1899, of $291,820.80. Neely claims credit by destruction of surcharged stamps for $392,589.37, or $100,768.57 more than he would have been entitled to had he destroyed all of the surcharged stamps that remained on hand August 31, 1899. But there is abundant evidence that he did not destroy all of the stamps that were on hand at that time. The destruction of stamps occurred September 11, 1899, when he claims to have destroyed $310,000 worth, and December 14, 1899, when he claims to have destroyed $82,589.37 worth.

On May 20, 1900, when the inspection of his accounts was begun by the United States inspectors, there was $44.59 worth of the surcharged stamps still on hand in the bureau of finance, and it has been ascertained that several quantities of surcharged stamps have been disposed of to stamp dealers and collectors since August 31, 1899. I have been unable as yet to ascertain the amount of stamps sold in this way. Many hundreds of letters were written by the bureau of finance relating to the sale of surcharged stamps, and numerous investigations in regard to these sales are now in the hands of inspectors. I do not think such sales will exceed $20,000, and probably will be less.

The furnishing of the new issue of Cuban stamps to postmasters practically retired the surcharged stamps from general use, though postmasters were not required to return stock on hand, the surcharged stamps still being good, and received for the transmission of letters through the mails. In April, 1900, it is known that Neely furnished daily, for three days—namely, the 25th, 26th, and 27th of that month—$100 worth of these surcharged stamps to Stamp Clerks Moya and Mascaro, of the Habana post-office. These clerks would make their regular requisitions for stamps, paying for them, according to custom, and then get an additional $100 worth of surcharged stamps from Neely, which did not enter into the stamp account of the Habana post-office, though the stamps were sold at the stamp window the same as other stamps. The cash received from the sale of these surcharged stamps was turned over by these clerks personally to Neely, and did not appear upon the daily account of stamp sales of the department or the Habana post-office. I have been unable to secure definite information as to what extent this fraud was practiced in excess of the three days referred to. Both Moya and Mascaro are now under arrest in Habana for conspiracy with Neely to defraud the Government. I am unable to say to what extent requisitions of postmasters may have been filled from these surcharged stamps, which had been reported destroyed, after August 31, 1899, because investigation of the offices upon the island has not yet been completed and the records of a large majority of the offices are so kept that no accurate information in regard to this matter can be obtained. The minimum of Neely's embezzlements, therefore, may be summarized as follows:

Shortage as shown by his own records	$30,600.73
Excess of credit by destruction of surcharged stamps definitely ascertained	101,113.16
Total	131,713.89

This computation is based upon the present data, which are not final. The amount of stamps fraudulently alleged to have been destroyed may be greatly increased by the further discovery of sales of surcharged stamps subsequent to August 31, 1899. As above stated, however, I do not think that this increase will exceed $20,000 and probably will not reach that amount. These figures represent the minimum of the embezzlement. I consider the above the most reliable information that can be secured as to the extent of Neely's embezzlements.

Figuring Neely's cash account—that is, the cash received and accounted for up to April 28, 1900—we have these figures:

SUMMARY OF CASH RECEIVED.

Apr. 28.	To cash from postmaster at New York on various dates prior to July 1, 1899	$99,912.98
Apr. 28.	To money-order fees and transfer of postal funds to money-order account (by postmasters) paid into bureau of finance by auditor's warrants Nos. 20, 23, and 37, dated, respectively, October 20, December 18, 1899, and March 17, 1900	18,764.55

SUMMARY OF CASH ACCOUNTED FOR.

1899. June 30.	By amount of postal funds deposited with North American Trust Company, January 1 to June 30, 1899, inclusive.....	$250,100.00
1900. Apr. 28.	By amount of postal funds deposited with the treasurer of the island, July 1, 1899, to April 28, 1900 (which includes amount deposited on April 30, less funds received that day, 29th being Sunday)	177,012.58
1899. Oct. 20.	By excess on box rent refunded through postmaster at Corral Falso to S. Filomena, as shown by his receipt	1.75
Dec. 12.	By amount of postal funds refunded to C. H. Merrill, postmaster, Manzanillo, as shown by his receipt.....	21.84
May 3.	By credit claimed by C. F. W. Neely on account of difference between actual and face value of Spanish copper coin, as shown by order of the director-general of May 3, 1899....	4,345.00
	By shortage to balance	119,278.48
	Total.....	550,759.65

This shows a cash shortage of $119,278.48. It is believed, however, that much of the cash received from nonbonded postmasters was not entered upon the cashbook of the department. There are 72 bonded postmasters and 220 who are not bonded. The remittances from the 72 bonded postmasters from January 1, 1899, to the date referred to aggregated $407,747.66, while the remittances from the 220 unbonded postmasters amounted to $21,617.19. No account was kept with these postmasters who were not bonded, and their purchases being cash transactions, they did not keep any record of the stamps received by them from the bureau of finance. That is, they kept no accurate record of their transactions with the department of posts; and it is believed by the inspectors who have been engaged upon this investigation that large amounts of cash have been received from nonbonded postmasters and other sources by the chief of the bureau of finance and no record made of such receipt upon the books of the department. For this reason, as above stated, I consider the first computation the more reliable and accurate statement of Neely's embezzlements.

Exhibits 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, and 17 show in detail the financial transactions of the bureau of finance, referred to in the foregoing discussion of Neely's embezzlements.

It was evidently in August, 1899, that Neely formed the purpose of covering up a large defalcation by the destruction of the surcharged stamps. When the new issue of Cuban stamps was received, on August 29 or 30, 1899, it was suggested to the director-general of posts by Neely that there was not sufficient room in the vault for all of the stamps that had been received and the cash, and that to make room it would be well to destroy the old issue of stamps. Director-General Rathbone states that after conferring with General Brooke, military governor, he issued an order appointing a commission to destroy the surcharged stamps. A copy of said order is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 18." The commission consisted of C. F. W. Neely, chief of the bureau of finance, who had the custody of the stamps; W. H. Reeves, the assistant auditor for the island of Cuba, the only man who could in any way have had a check on Neely's accounts; and D. Marfield, chief of the bureau of registration. In connection with this destruction of surcharged stamps I desire to invite special attention to—

Statement of Director-General Rathbone, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 19," pages 139, 140, and 141.

Statement of P. H. Bristow, chief clerk department of posts, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 20."

Statement of D. Marfield, as embodied in report of Inspectors Holmes and Owen, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 21."

Statement of W. H. Reeves, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 22."

The report of the commission appointed to destroy surcharged stamps, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 23."

A letter from the director-general of posts to the assistant auditor, dated September 13, 1899, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 24;"

A letter from the director-general of posts to the Postmaster-General, dated September 13, 1899, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 25."

The destruction of surcharged stamps occurred on two dates—September 11, 1899, when it was alleged that $310,000 worth were destroyed, and December 14, 1899, when it was alleged that $82,589.37 worth were destroyed. I am unable to state the exact number of stamps that were destroyed on either September 11 or December 14 from any information that can be secured. The statistics heretofore submitted demonstrate that there could not have been destroyed to exceed $291,820.80 worth. That there was not that amount destroyed is evident, because a number of these stamps have been sold to stamp dealers since August 31, 1899, and also to the public through the stamp window at the Habana post-office. That Director-General Rathbone was apprehensive as to the regularity of this destruction, or the reliability of the count, is, to my mind, plainly indicated in the last paragraph of his letter notifying the Postmaster-General of the destruction, wherein he clearly conveys the idea that the chief clerk of the department of posts witnessed the destruction. Why he should have thought it necessary to add this paragraph to his letter can not be accounted for in any other way.

This fraudulent report on the part of Neely as to the number of stamps destroyed was without doubt made for the purpose of receiving a credit, whereby he could cover up an embezzlement of more than $100,000 which he had already made, or contemplated making, from the postal revenues of the island of Cuba.

OTHER FRAUDULENT TRANSACTIONS.

Neely's fraudulent transactions, however, were not confined to embezzlements only, and while the amounts thus received by him were small as compared with the amount embezzled outright, yet they show the same official depravity and utter disregard for the interests of the public service. While all of his acts were tinctured with fraud, I desire to invite special attention to his printing bills, purchases of furniture, and bills unsupported by vouchers.

Before going to Cuba, Neely had been engaged in the printing business, being the proprietor of the Neely Printing Company, of Muncie, Ind., a joint stock company organized under the laws of the State of Indiana. He had a business associate, or employee, named R. H. Cowan.

Cowan says that up to October 13, 1898, Neely was the sole owner of the plant; that he transferred one share each to some of his friends to meet the requirements of the statutes of the State of Indiana providing for the organization of such companies. At a date prior to October 13, 1898, Neely had proposed to sell the plant to Cowan for the sum of $16,000, but Cowan refused to consider the proposition, stating that the price was excessive and unreasonable. On October 13, 1898, Neely proposed to sell the plant to Cowan and a party named Thomas C. Campbell for the sum of $16,000. He asked Cowan to agree to the deal, and told him that after it was made he would fix the price of his (Cowan's) half satisfactory to him, Campbell thereby paying $8,000 for his interest. It seems to have been a scheme between Neely and Cowan to defraud Campbell. Cowan says the understanding was that each was to pay $1,500 down, and the balance was to be paid in installments, with a chattel mortgage executed to secure deferred payments. Campbell says that he paid $1,000 cash at that time and gave his note for $500, which Neely afterwards discounted at the Union National Bank of Muncie. An examination of the chattel-mortgage records at Muncie shows that on October 13, 1898, a mortgage was executed by the Neely Printing Company in favor of C. F. W. Neely, to secure to him the payment of ten notes of $1,000 each, one to be paid each year for ten years. These notes bear date of October 13, 1898, the day the arrangement was entered into by which Cowan and Campbell purchased the property. The mortgage is executed by R. H. Cowan, president, and Clarence E. Russey, secretary, of the Neely Printing Company, and on the same date the mortgage is transferred to the Miehle Printing Press and Manufacturing Company, of Chicago, Ill., by Neely. It was executed to be so transferred as security to that company for a claim of $1,000 which it held against Neely. Campbell, who at that time claimed to be half owner in the Neely Printing Company, states that this transaction was without his knowledge. Subsequently Campbell did not prove a satisfactory partner, and Cowan states that he purchased his interest in August, 1899, and became the sole owner. While Cowan claims to be the sole owner of the plant, I do not credit his statement. The laws of Indiana require the annual listing of personal property on April 1. Neely always listed this plant, and Cowan sent him a blank to Cuba for that purpose this year. Cowan admitted to Inspectors Holmes and Fletcher that $5,000 would be a fair valuation for the plant. The name of the company after the alleged sale to Cowan and Campbell remained the same—The Neely Printing Company—but the business with the Cuban postal service was transacted in the name of Cowan & Co. Cowan says that the suggestion that the company do printing for the department of posts of Cuba was made by Neely; that no prices were stipulated, no contract of any kind entered into; that he (Cowan) was to fill all orders received, render bills for the same in the name of R. H. Cowan & Co., and charge such prices as he thought proper, rendering the bills in the name of R. H. Cowan & Co., in order that the name of Neely might not appear in the transactions with the bureau of finance of the department of posts of Cuba. From the books of the Neely Printing Company it appears that it has received from the department of posts of Cuba cash amounting to $7,937.60 for printing, while the bills rendered marked paid amount to $8,760. Of the cash items referred to, two were paid by draft on the American Trust Company, of New York, and the remainder by international money orders issued by Habana, Cuba, on Muncie, Ind. An examination of the money-order records at Muncie, Ind., however, shows that Cowan has received $9,130.95 from the Cuban postal revenues by money order from Habana. Add to this the two items paid by draft upon the American Trust Company of New York, amounting to $938.20, and it shows aggregate cash receipts by Cowan of $10,069.15, which is $2,131.55 more than shown by the books of the Neely Printing Company. The result of the investigation plainly indicates that extravagant prices were paid for printing, and some of the bills were paid twice. The whole transaction shows collusion on the part of Neely and Cowan to defraud the Cuban government.

Director-General Rathbone, when asked why he approved these printing bills and permitted them to be paid, some of them twice, stated that he did not know any printing for the department of posts had ever been done at Muncie, Ind.; that he never heard of the firm of Cowan & Co., and did not know until after the arrest of Neely that there had ever been any business transacted with such a company by the department of posts. If his statement is true, he convicts himself of the most utter and indefensible negligence of his official duties. If his statement is not true, then he must have had some personal reason for permitting such expenditures to be made.

When C. F. W. Neely was appointed to a position in the Cuban military postal service on December 24, 1898, his salary was fixed at $1,800 per annum. On the 7th day of January, 1899, he was assigned by Director Rathbone as chief of the bureau of finance. He was not a man of means, and seems to have been financially embarrassed at the time of his appointment. He had no ready cash at that time. He did his banking business with the Union National Bank, of Muncie, Ind., of which Mr. Carl A. Spilker is president. On October 15, 1898, there was no balance in favor of Neely at this bank, but on that date he deposited $1,000. This was doubtless the $1,000 paid him by Campbell on account of the purchase of the printing office, the sale of the printing company to Cowan and Campbell having occurred on October 13, two days prior to the date of this deposit. In November, 1899, Neely deposited $450, and on December 20, $483.23. This last deposit is believed to represent the note of Campbell for $500, which Neely discounted at the bank. From the date of the deposit on October 15, 1898, to December 23, 1898, Neely checked out of the bank $1,972.09. All the checks were drawn by Neely personally, and were mostly for small amounts. The books of the bank show an overdraft on two dates between October 15, 1898, and January, 1899. Neely also appears to have been in debt to this bank, as in March, 1899, he is charged $62 interest on a note of $3,000. On October 6, 1899, after Neely became prosperous in Cuba, this note seems to have been paid.

As I have said above, Neely's salary was $1,800 per annum. He was appointed December 24, 1898. He reported at Habana early in January and was assigned to duty on the 7th of that month. On February 6, 1899, he sent a deposit from Cuba to the Union National Bank, of Muncie, Ind., of $329.75, and in February and March his additional deposits aggregated $1,530. So it appears that Neely, with a salary of $1,800 per annum, or $150 a month, was able within three months to deposit $1,859.75, which, to my mind, is conclusive proof that his embezzlements began as early as February, 1899.

On April 1, 1899, his salary was increased to $2,500 per annum. On May 17, 1899, he deposited with the Union National Bank, $343; on May 25, $494.28; June 6, $277.75; June 12, $260; June 13, $140; June 22, $97.49; July 6, $300; July 7, $663; August 14, $13,125.50, October 6, $20,250; December 22, $3,148.30; January 25, 1900, $2,030.21; February 3, $300. From this record it would appear that the embezzlements of Neely up to August were of a much more moderate character than subsequently, or at least the money did not find its way to the Muncie bank.

The deposit of December 22, 1899, of $3,148.30, was made by check drawn by Carl A. Spilker, president of the Union National Bank, dated December 22, 1899, in Neely's favor. This check of Spilker to Neely is explained in this way: On the 4th of October, 1899, the Keyless Lock Company, of Indianapolis, Ind., issued its check on the Indiana National Bank, of Indianapolis, payable to C. F. W. Neely, for the sum of $2,972. This check, together with sundry small items aggregating $176.30, was deposited in the Union National Bank, of Muncie, on the 3d of November, 1899, to the personal credit of Carl A. Spilker, the president of that bank. On December 22, 1899, Mr. Spilker's individual account in the said Union National Bank was charged with the said sum of $3,148.30 and Neely's account in the same bank was credited with a like amount. In explanation of this peculiar transaction Spilker says that Neely had sent him these items with the request that they should not be credited to his (Neely's) account at once, and further requested that he (Spilker) take charge of the proceeds of said check for him until further notice; that on the 22d of December, 1899, Neely requested a certificate of deposit for $10,000, and that on that date he (Spilker) checked from his own account the said sum of $3,148.30 and placed it to the credit of Neely, and issued to his order the certificate of $10,000, as requested, charging his account therewith.

The deposit of $2,030.21, made on January 25, 1900, is made up of numerous items, among which I find the following:

Check drawn by Keyless Lock Company, of Indianapolis, Ind., on January 4, 1900, on the Indiana National Bank, of Indianapolis, indorsed by Neely.... $320

In considering the sale of the printing company and the deposits of Neely with the Union National Bank, of Muncie, I invite special attention to the reports of Inspectors Holmes, Fletcher, and Smith, copies of which are herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 26."

Referring again to the financial condition of Neely, Inspector W. T. Fletcher, in report dated June 21, 1900, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 27," states:

Upon personal investigation at Muncie, I find that he (Neely) was in financial straits when he received his appointment, and that he had filed a schedule to prevent execution upon his personal property and household effects, and that his return to the assessor was only $175 personalty.

Neely's partner in the printing business, R. H. Cowan, informed Inspectors Holmes and Fletcher that since Neely's appointment he had settled many claims against him (Neely) at 50 and 75 cents on the dollar.

PURCHASES OF POST-OFFICE FURNITURE.

The Keyless Lock Company, of Indianapolis, Ind., is a corporation which manufactures post-office furniture. The department of posts of Cuba purchased from this company, from January 1, 1899, to May 1, 1900, $14,879.25 worth of furniture. There was no contract as to prices. The purchases were made in the open market, and while Director-General Rathbone states in his testimony (Exhibit 19) that a number of firms submitted bids, there seems to be no record in the department of posts whatever as to the letting of the contract or the amount of the various bids of the respective bidders. Neely seems to have been absolute in the matter of purchases, not only of office furniture, but safes, typewriters, and other supplies of that character. That the business transactions between the department of posts and the Keyless Lock Company were fraudulent is plainly indicated in the discussion of the banking business of Neely. This company, it appears, paid Neely $3,292, by check, which was without doubt a bribe for the privilege of supplying post-office furniture to the department of posts of Cuba at the company's own prices. The officers of this company would probaby use a more polite term and style this payment a "commission" or "subsidy." Small country post-offices were furnished with elaborate outfits at the expense of the department of posts, a thing unprecedented in the postal affairs of the United States.

An examination of the prices paid for many articles of furniture shows that they were excessive. Referring to the Keyless Lock Company purchases, see Exhibit 27 A.

DUPLICATE SALARY WARRANTS, ETC.

Prior to July 1, 1899, the expenses of the postal service of Cuba were paid through the New York City post-office. After that date they were paid from the revenues of the island of Cuba. Estimates were submitted by the director-general in advance for the expenses of each month. When these estimates were approved by the governor-general of the island the money was deposited in bank to the credit of the director-general of posts. The approval of the military governor of the estimate for July, 1899, having been in some way delayed, the first half-month's salaries of the employees of the department of posts and the Habana post-office for July became due before the funds were available for payment. It was suggested that, since there was still an unexpended balance for the fiscal year ended June 30, warrants be drawn upon that fund for the amount required to pay the half-month's salaries due, and after the estimate was approved and the funds for July received, warrants could be drawn and deposited, reimbursing the funds of the last fiscal year for the amount so drawn out. Such a proceeding was approved by the director-general of posts, and warrants amounting to $7,251.84 were therefore drawn and the employees paid. The warrants for the purpose of reimbursing this fund were also drawn, but instead of being deposited to reimburse the fund, as indicated they should be, they were cashed by Neely and no account rendered. They were not deposited, and the record shows that the money was drawn twice for the payment of these salaries for the first half of July, 1899. The employees received their pay but once, however, the money drawn the second time having been retained by Neely and not accounted for.

There was also a duplicate warrant drawn for $725 in payment for five mules bought of Fred Wolfe, showing a double payment for the mules; but Mr. Wolfe states that he received payment but once, the other warrant having been cashed by Neely at the same time the duplicate warrants for the salaries of the employees of the department of posts and the Habana post-office were cashed, namely, on September 11, 1899. A curious coincidence is that these were cashed the same day that the alleged destruction of surcharged stamps to the value of $310,000 took place. The warrants were numbered, respectively, 5000, amount $4,494.84, drawn July 15, 1899; 5001, $80.87, July 15, 1899; 5002, $2,757, July 15, 1899; 5003, $725, July 15, 1899; total, $8,057.71. Copies of these warrants are herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 28."

Neely, with the money he had secured by embezzlement and fraud, began branching out in various business enterprises. He, in connection with Mr. M. B. Snevily and Mr. Frank Dunham, of New York City, organized the West Indies Trading Company, for the purpose of dealing in cocoanuts. Neely put in $12,500, Snevily $10,000, and Dunham $10,000. Dunham was the president of the company, Neely vice-president, and Snevily secretary. The company was chartered under the laws of the State of West Virginia on January 20, 1900. Negotiations for the establishment of such a company were begun by Neely in November, 1899. No profits ever accrued to Neely from this company, Mr. Snevily, the secretary, stating that they were just getting started in business when the exposure of Neely's embezzlements occurred.

Neely seems also to have been operating a brick plant near Habana. What investments he had made in this plant I have been unable to ascertain. C. M. Rich, however, in his statement submitted herewith, marked "Exhibit 29," says that Neely told him he had invested about $20,000 in this plant. Rich further states that he and Director-General Rathbone had stock in the plant, but that he (Rich) had put no money into it. Neely had business transactions with a clay machine manufacturing company, of New Jersey, in connection with the brick plant, and at the time of his arrest there was a small credit in his favor on the books of this company. He was also interested in some enterprises in South America, and one A. P. Taylor, formerly of Colorado Springs, Colo., alias Philip Troutfetter, was his business partner in the South American enterprises. I have been unable to ascertain what investments were made in that country. Taylor was supposed to be quite familiar with the affairs of Neely. Taylor is said to be wanted by the Pinkerton Detective Agency for a crime committed in Colorado.

Neely was a man of few confidants. Reeves and Rich were considered his most intimate associates. They usually spent several hours together at the department of posts on Sundays and were regarded by the postal employees as very close friends. I desire to invite special attention to the statement of W. H. Reeves (Exhibit 22) and the statement of C. M. Rich (Exhibit 29) in this connection. Rich, in his statement, claims to have several times called the attention of Director-General Rathbone to the irregularities of Neely, and in the latter part of April, he states, he advised the director-general that Neely was crooked and corrupt. Director-General Rathbone denies having had any such conversation with Rich. There are numerous circumstances, however, to corroborate many of the assertions made by Rich. Rich claims to have become innocently involved in Neely's corrupt schemes giving his side of the story at length in the statement heretofore referred to; but his admission that he sent a cable message to Neely, at Miami, Fla., to "fetch fourteen," which appears in his statement, certainly indicates that he was at least thoroughly advised at that time as to the shortage in Neely's accounts that had not been covered by the destruction of surcharged stamps.

Reeves, in his statement, refers at length to the destruction of surcharged stamps, and accounts for the $4,600 which he confessed to Inspectors Smith and Fosnes had been given to him by Neely as "hush money," or as a bribe for concealing his embezzlements. Reeves impresses me as a man not averse to being led into criminal practices, but who would possibly not have had the hardihood or courage to take the initiative in extensive embezzlements. Neely's mind seems to have been the controlling influence in these embezzlements, and Reeves and Rich were used by him to carry out his schemes. How much credit should be given the statements of Reeves and Rich, as to their reluctance to acquiesce in Neely's designs and their protests against his dishonest practices, it is difficult to determine.

Neely had a typewriter in his room, on which he wrote a great many letters himself. These were copied in personal letter-press books and kept in his desk. Also a large number of letters of a personal nature were filed in private letter-case files. He had a number of correspondents to whom he always wrote himself, rarely dictating letters to these friends or business associates. Since his letter-press book and the letter-case files referred to were taken with him when he left Habana, I have been unable to find the contents of these letters or the nature of the business he had with these individuals. In this connection, attention is invited to the testimony of Mr. Ernest R. Sutton, who was Neely's stenographer, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 30;" also to the testimony of Mr. George W. Marshall, clerk and a part of the time assistant chief of the bureau of finance, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 31."

FRAUDULENT PER DIEM.

On December 21, 1898, E. G. Rathbone was appointed director of posts of Cuba, by the Postmaster-General of the United States, by the following order:

Order No. 534.

OFFICE OF THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL,
Washington, D. C., December 21, 1898.

In accordance with the order of the President, dated July 21, 1898, authorizing the extension of the postal service over territory coming into military possession of the United States, the island of Cuba having come into such possession, it is ordered that E. G. Rathbone, of the State of Ohio, be, and he is hereby, appointed director of posts of Cuba at a salary of $4,000 per annum. He will have general supervision and control of the postal service of the island, cooperating with the military commander and be subject to such rules and regulations as may from time to time be promulgated by the Post-Office Department.

CH. EMORY SMITH,
Postmaster-General.

On January 23, 1899, Director Rathbone forwarded to the Postmaster-General a letter referring to the amount of his personal expenses and asking that such expenses be paid by the department of posts; a copy of which letter is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 32." In reply to this request the Postmaster-General, on January 30, 1899, made an order allowing him $5 per diem for expenses, and advised him of such allowance in the following communication:

OFFICE OF POSTMASTER-GENERAL,
Washington, D. C., January 30, 1899.

Hon. E. G. RATHBONE,
Director of Posts, Habana, Cuba.

SIR: Replying to your letter of the 23d instant, marked "Personal and unofficial," I would state that after consultation it has been determined that in addition to your salary an allowance of $5 per diem for expenses shall be made. This allowance may be counted from the 1st of January. While the amount is not sufficient to cover all your expenses, it is believed that as a practical addition to your salary it makes a fair compensation, and will, I trust, be acceptable. I may add that there is full appreciation both of the efficiency of your service and of the expense entailed upon one in your position, and your request is regarded as reasonable.

Respectfully,

CH. EMORY SMITH,
Postmaster-General.

This additional allowance seemed to be satisfactory for a time, but on March 30, 1899, Director Rathbone wrote a letter, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 33," setting forth the amount of his personal expenses and indicating a desire for additional compensation. As a result of this request and of personal communications and conferences that were had between the Postmaster-General and the director of posts, on June 19, 1899, the Postmaster-General transmitted to the director-general (the title having been changed from director of posts to director-general of posts in March, 1899) the following letter relating to compensation and per diem:

[Personal and unofficial.]

OFFICE OF THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL,
Washington, D. C., June 19, 1899.

MY DEAR GENERAL: I had a talk with the President a day or two since as to your compensation. Pointing out the position in which you were placed and the allowances made for certain of the military officers in representative places, I raised the question with the President whether you ought not to be regarded as holding a similar attitude and to receive a compensation more commensurate with the requirements of your official station and with the expenses which it involves. He concurred in the judgment that your pay should be increased and suggested that it should be fixed at $6,500 per annum. He thought it should all be treated as salary, rather than to fix a less salary with allowances which would bring it up to that amount. His opinion was that in the case of a civil officer it was better to avoid the indefinite term of "allowances." With the compensation fixed at $6,500 the per diem of $5 would cease. If this is satisfactory to you I will, by order, change your salary accordingly. It is, of course, to be paid out of the postal revenues of Cuba; but, while you fix the compensatiou of your subordinates, it is better on all accounts that your own should be specifically determined and ordered by the Postmaster-General. I await your reply before taking formal action.

Very truly, yours,

CH. EMORY SMITH.

Hon. E. G. RATHBONE, Habana, Cuba.

It will be observed that in this letter it is specifically stated that with the fixing of the salary at $6,500 per annum allowances and per diem would cease.

On July 3, 1899, the director-general transmitted a letter to the Postmaster-General, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 34," in which he states, referring to the proposed fixing of his salary at $6,500 per annum:

This is an increase of $675 per year over my present compensation.

He expressed a very strong desire that a house be furnished him as an official residence, and indicated disappointment at the amount decided upon for salary. In answer to this letter the Postmaster-General, on July 7, 1899, forwarded to the director-general of posts the following cable message:

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 7, 1899.

Dirpost, Habana:

Will make full allowance for house besides salary. Particulars mailed.

POSTGEN.

On July 8, 1899, he transmitted the following letter:

OFFICE OF THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL,
Washington, D. C., July 8, 1899.

MY DEAR GENERAL RATHBONE: Your letter of July 3d, relating to your compensation, was promptly received, and I made it the subject of an immediate conference with the President. The result was that I cabled you yesterday as follows:

"Dirpost, Habana:

"Will make full allowance for house besides salary. Particulars mailed.

"POSTGEN."

This means that it is our purpose that provision shall be made for a suitable residence for you over and above the fixed compensation of $6,500. This provision can be made in one of two ways—either a government building, such as that occupied by General Ludlow or other military officers, may be set apart for your use, or, if such a building is unavailable, some appropriate private building can be engaged for the department of posts and used as your residence. In the former case, the governor-general will be directed to take the necessary action to place the building at your disposal. In the latter case, you can yourself engage such building as seems suitable and make it a charge upon the service. In the absence of knowledge as to whether there is a government building that is available, I am somewhat uncertain whether to prepare orders which the President will issue to General Brooke, but probably it is safer to do this in a tentative way, leaving General Brooke and yourself to arrange the matter after you shall receive this letter and understand our plan. I hope this adjustment will prove satisfactory, and state it in this unofficial form, reserving the official action until you see what you can do.

Very truly, yours,

CH. EMORY SMITH.

Hon. E. G. RATHBONE, Habana, Cuba.

There was no further correspondence between the Postmaster-General and the director-general of posts on the subject of per diem, allowances or salary until September 26, 1899, when Director-General Rathbone wrote the Postmaster-General, advising him that he had secured a house. A copy of that letter, together with a copy of the Postmaster-General's reply, is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 35."

On December 19, 1899, the Postmaster-General transmitted a letter to the director-general of posts, fixing the salary at $6,500 per annum, which reads as follows:

OFFICE OF THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL,
Washington, D. C., December 19, 1899.

Hon. E. G. RATHBONE,
Director-General of Posts, Habana, Cuba.

SIR: Referring to our personal conferences and to personal communications respecting your compensation as director-general of posts of Cuba, I beg to say that your salary is fixed at $6,500 per annum, independent of the provision for a house, which was arranged through the War Department and the governor-general. As you were informed of this rate of compensation in my personal letter of July 8, it is made effective from the 1st of August, 1899. In common with the other expenses of the postal service of Cuba, it is made a charge upon the postal revenue of the island.

Respectfully, yours,

CH. EMORY SMITH,
Postmaster-General.

It will be observed from the foregoing correspondence that the salary of the director-general of posts was fixed at $6,500 per annum, and that with the fixing of the salary the per diem allowance of $5 would cease; that in addition to this salary the director-general should be provided, at the expense of the postal revenues of Cuba, with a suitable house for a residence. The official order fixing the salary makes it become effective August 1, 1899. From that date, therefore, the salary of the director-general of posts was $6,500 per annum. In addition to this salary he was allowed a house, the rent for which was to be paid from the Cuban postal revenues. It clearly appears that after that date he was not entitled to the per diem allowance of $5, and in his letter of July 3, 1899, he specifically states that the fixing of his salary at $6,500 will increase his compensation only $675 per annum, plainly showing that he understood he was not to receive any per diem after his salary was fixed at $6,500. The records of the department of posts, however, show that he continued to draw the $5 per diem in addition to the $6,500 per annum as salary and the provisions for a residence. It appears, therefore, that Director-General Rathbone drew from August 1, 1899, to April 30, 1900, the sum of $1,365 as a per diem, which was unauthorized, and that the drawing of the same was fraudulent; and I therefore recommend that he be required to reimburse the postal revenues of Cuba in that amount.

In this connection I desire to call attention to the following extract from the letter of the Postmaster-General to the director-general of posts, dated June 19, 1899. This extract was made by Director-General Rathbone and delivered to Col. George H. Burton, inspector-general, War Department, at the time of his investigation of the affairs of the department of posts of Cuba in April, 1900.

[Personal and unofficial.]

OFFICE OF THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL,
Washington, D. C., June 19, 1899.

MY DEAR GENERAL: I had a talk with the President a day or two since as to your compensation. Pointing out the position in which you were placed, and the allowances made for certain of the military officers in representative places, I raised the question with the President whether you ought not to be regarded as holding a similar attitude and to receive a compensation more commensurate with the requirements of your official station and with the expenses which it involves. He concurred in the judgment that your pay should be increased.

* * * * * * *

Very truly, yours,

CH. EMORY SMITH.

Hon. E. G. RATHBONE, Habana, Cuba.

Colonel Burton called upon Director-General Rathbone for his authority for certain unusual and extraordinary expenditures for which no allowance appeared to have been made by the Postmaster-General. It will be observed that the director-general in preparing the copy of the letter for Colonel Burton's use stops in the middle of the sentence, "He concurred in the judgment that your pay should be increased." * * * The letter appears in full on page 17 of this report.

It therefore clearly appears that Director-General Rathbone, in submitting the part of this letter which he did, claiming it as evidence of his authority for unusual allowances or expenditures, was endeavoring to mislead Colonel Burton, as the letter specifically states that with the increasing of the salary all "allowances" would cease; and the letter itself is conclusive proof that the director-general had no authority to draw the per diem after August 1, 1899. The increase of salary from $4,000 to $6,500 was to cover "allowances." On July 8, 1899, this was modified by an allowance for house rent. No other modification was ever made, and the submitting of this letter, so garbled, to the inspector-general is an evidence of fraudulent intent on the part of Director-General Rathbone.

IMPROPER PERSONAL EXPENSES.

It appears that in November, 1899, a bill of goods was purchased from John Wanamaker, of New York, aggregating $1,356.69, which were paid for by the department of posts by warrant No. 8698. A copy of this bill of goods and other bills is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 36." It is alleged by Director-General Rathbone that these goods were necessary in the furnishing of the house which he had been authorized to rent, and since the house rented was only partially furnished it became necessary to complete the furnishings, and that the bills referred to were necessary purchases to complete the furnishing of the house. It will be observed that a great many items in these bills can not be considered as house furniture. Among these items appear charges for a trunk, gloves, dog collar, overcoat, etc. There are many other items which seem to me to be purely personal and can not be considered as furniture for a house. The payment of such expenses from the postal funds was, in my judgment, fraudulent.

UNAUTHORIZED EXPENDITURES, PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE.

On the rolls of the Habana post-office were carried three employees, coachman, footman, and gardener, for the director-general, the salaries being, respectively, $900, $360, and $240 per annum. These employees, I am informed, lived at the residence of the director-general and rendered no official service. They were simply personal servants of the director-general and his family. Numerous articles of clothing were purchased for the coachman and footman, as shown by bills, copies of which are herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 37," and paid for from the postal revenues. The following items appear in these bills: Hat for coachman, $8.33; two hats for coachman, $12.38; pair of boots for coachman, $15.60; suit of Hollands (brown linen) for coachman, $18.35; livery suit for coachman, $20.83; white duck uniform and one linen suit, presumably for coachman, though it is not stated in voucher for whom purchases were made, $40.43; pair of boots for coachman, $15.60; rain coat for footman, $26.50; shirts, collars, and cuffs for coachman, $8.50; pair of boots for coachman, $6.50; frock coat and pants for coachman, $37; frock coat and pants for footman, $37.

Under what authority of law these expenditures for clothing for the coachman and footman were made, I am unable to state. The director-general, in answer to interrogatories in regard to the general management of the administration of the department of posts of Cuba (Exhibit 19), states that it is the custom of all countries that high officials should be furnished with such personal attendants and that they should be clothed at public expense. I do not consider this as sufficient authority and believe that such expenditures from the postal revenues were unauthorized and fraudulent. The Postmaster-General first received information as to the character of these expenditures on May 12, 1900, and after examining copies of some of these bills, he addressed the following letter to Director-General Rathbone:

OFFICE OF THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL,
Washington, D. C., May 12, 1900.

SIR: I have to-day for the first time seen certain of your bills as director-general of posts which were brought here by Colonel Burton. Some of these bills are not only without authority or justification, but are scandalous and never should have been passed or paid. The auditor, who was responsible to a different department, was inexcusable in allowing them, and your action in presenting them for allowance is grossly reprehensible. Without waiting for a review and reconsideration of these bills by a rightful audit, you should at once reimburse to the island treasury the sums thus improperly paid.

Independent of the accounts referred to, your disobedience of the President's order, communicated to you with explicit instructions, directing that requisitions made upon the governor-general for any deficiency in the postal revenues must have the approval of the Postmaster-General, admits of no palliation.

This letter will be handed to you by Capt. William B. Smith, inspector in charge of the Washington division, who, as you are informed by another communication of this date, proceeds to Cuba under orders to make a thorough investigation.

Respectfully yours,

CH. EMORY SMITH,
Postmaster-General.

Hon. E. G. RATHBONE,
Director-General of Posts, Habana, Cuba.

TRAVELING EXPENSES OF DIRECTOR-GENERAL.

The director-general of posts has filed vouchers and received payment for personal expenses on four trips—one a tour of inspection around the island of Cuba in April, 1899; one a trip to the United States in April and May, 1899; one to the island of Pines in July, 1899, and one to the United States in October and November, 1899.

The first official trip, beginning April 6, 1899, and extending to April 19, was a tour of inspection made by the director-general and "official party" around the island of Cuba. The director-general states that the official party consisted of himself, his secretary, and an interpreter; that he was accompanied by Mrs. Rathbone and son and maid; that the expenses represented in these vouchers cover only those of himself, his secretary, and interpreter; that the expenses of the remainder of the party were paid out of his own private funds. Mrs. Rathbone, son, and maid had transportation over the Herrera Steamship Line, though it was necessary for the director-general to expend $125.72 of the Cuban postal revenues for transportation for himself, his secretary, and his interpreter. The party arrived at Santiago on April 11 and left on the 12th. In the account of expenses at that place there is a charge of $12 for rooms for "Rathbone and official party except W. E. Wilmot;" that is, for the director-general and his interpreter, according to the statement of the director-general, and meals for the same, $26.15—making the hotel expenses for the two days for himself and interpreter $38.15. The director-general states that this was for himself and official party and did not include the expenses of his family. The bill of his secretary, Mr. Wilmot, was rendered separately and is not included in this account. Mr. Wilmot stopped at another hotel and his bills were rendered separately, and the interpreter was a colored messenger, named Sam Bremner. I can but conclude, therefore, that this expense indicated by the vouchers, copies of which are herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 38," to which I invite special attention, was for General Rathbone and family and not "official party."

The item of $73.50 for meals for official party from Santiago to Habana, on the Government transport Comal, covers a period of seven days. The official party consisted of the director-general, his secretary, and interpreter. The receipted bill of the chief steward of the boat is "for 131 meals, $73.50," which would make six meals per day for each of the "official party." In connection herewith, special attention is invited to statement of Director-General Rathbone (Exhibit 19, pp. 120 and 121); statement of W. E. Wilmot, private secretary, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 39," and statement of Sam Bremner, the interpreter, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 40." The only reasonable conclusion to be drawn is that the expenses were for the party, including General Rathbone, his wife, son, and maid, as well as his secretary and interpreter.

Charges for "incidentals" without itemizing were frequently made by the director-general of posts. Such a practice is not permitted by the Post-Office Department of the United States. There is an expenditure of $30.15 for incidentals on this tour of inspection around the island.

TRIP TO THE UNITED STATES IN APRIL AND MAY, 1899.

In April and May, 1899, Director-General Rathbone made a trip to the United States, accompanied by his secretary. This trip was alleged to have been made by order of the Postmaster-General, though no record of such order can be found. The trip extended from April 23 to May 24. The total "official" expenditures, as submitted by the director-general and paid from the Cuban postal funds, were $425.45. He left Habana April 23, by way of the Ward Steamship Line, for New York; arrived at New York April 27; left New York April 30, reaching Washington same date. On May 3 he left Washington for Cincinnati, reaching that city May 4, stopping at the St. Nicholas Hotel. He remained in Cincinnati until May 13, though he seems to have traveled to Hamilton, Ohio, and return on several days, and on one occasion to Cleveland and return. On May 13 he left Cincinnati for Washington, where he arrived on the 14th, remaining in Washington until the 17th, when he left for New York en route to Habana, and arrived at Habana on the 23d. In answer to interrogatories concerning the official nature of this trip, it does not appear from the statements of Director-General Rathbone (Exhibit 19) that he had any official business in the United States outside of the city of Washington. He does not remember having had any official business whatever at Cincinnati, Ohio. He states that he does not remember having visited Hamilton, Ohio, at all upon this occasion, and, further, that if he did visit Hamilton he could remember no official business that could have taken him there. It is my opinion, judging from the nature of the correspondence which he had with a number of friends, copies of which are herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 41," that these trips to Cincinnati, Hamilton, and Cleveland were solely upon private business, and that no part of this expense could be legitimately or justly charged to the postal revenues of Cuba.

In this connection, I desire to invite special attention to copies of letters (Exhibit 41) written to Mr. Thomas J. Peddicord, of Hamilton, Ohio, and others. From these letters it appears that Director-General Rathbone wrote to numerous people stating that he would be in Hamilton about May 8 for the purpose of attending to some personal law suits and looking after other private business; that he would stop at the St. Nicholas Hotel, in Cincinnati, going to Hamilton during the day and returning to Cincinnati in the evening. While at Cincinnati he wrote to Mrs. Emilly Brown Milliken, of Philadelphia, stating that he was "in law suits up to his ears at Hamilton, going up there every morning and returning at night." He also wrote to Hon. O. B. Brown, Dayton, Ohio, that he had "three or four cases on hand in the courts at Hamilton," where he went every day, spending his nights in Cincinnati. After he returned to Cuba he wrote a letter to Hon. George M. Allen, Acting First Assistant Postmaster-General, in which he stated that while in Ohio he stayed "at the St. Nicholas Hotel, in Cincinnati, and would go to Hamilton during the day and return at night."

His voucher for official expenses indicates that he carried out the programme as outlined in these letters. He arrived at Cincinnati on May 4, stopped at the St. Nicholas Hotel, took lunch in Hamilton on the 8th, 9th, 10th, and 12th, charging the same to the Cuban revenues as official expenditures. This covers the same period of time referred to in his letters to Mrs. Milliken, Mr. Brown, and others. The entire expenses incurred while at Cincinnati and Hamilton attending to these legal matters, amounting to $93.26, were charged to the Cuban postal revenues as official expenditures. He clearly states (Exhibit 19) that he does not remember any official business of any kind that he had at Cincinnati or Hamilton, nor is there any evidence in his vouchers or elsewhere indicating that he had official business at either of those cities. It is my belief that Director-General Rathbone, in the answers to interrogatories that appear in his testimony (pp. 116, 117, and 118), copy of which is attached to Exhibit 41, was not at all sincere; that he did know and remember that he was at Hamilton on the dates mentioned attending to private business, and that he did know that he had no official business whatever at Cincinnati or Hamilton, and that he knew and was aware at the time that the charging of these personal expenses to the Cuban postal revenues was unauthorized and fraudulent.

There are other items of expense in this voucher which should have been carefully scrutinized by an accounting officer before they were paid. The expenditures under the head of "incidentals" amount to $57.23, $19.85 of this being for incidentals on board the steamship Segurança en route from New York to Habana. In what manner this could have been an official expenditure is more than I can understand. No explanation whatever is made of it by the director-general. Copies of said vouchers herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 41 A."

The accounts of the department of posts prior to July 1, 1899, were audited by W. H. Reeves as chief of the bureau of postal accounts, a postal official. On July 1 he was appointed by the Secretary of War as assistant auditor for the island of Cuba, and after that date he audited the accounts as assistant auditor. Vouchers for the trips around the island in April and to the United States in April and May were audited before July 1.

TRIP TO THE UNITED STATES IN OCTOBER AND NOVEMBER, 1899.

On October 21, 1899, Director-General Rathbone, in response to a cable message from the Postmaster-General, left Habana for the United States, remaining until November 25. He was accompanied by his secretary, and the entire expenses of himself and secretary for this period were charged as official expenditures and paid from the Cuban postal revenues. They aggregate $826.77. He arrived at New York on October 25; after remaining there a few days he visited Cleveland. Cincinnati, and Washington, returning to New York on the morning of November 17. He remained in New York until November 25, when he sailed by the Ward Line for Habana. What official business the director-general had in New York, Cleveland, Cincinnati, or Washington he declined to say, but submitted a telegram from the Postmaster-General directing him to come, which was evidently in answer to a communication from the director-general upon the subject, a copy of which I was unable to secure. The expenses of the director-general at all of these cities were charged as "official." Special attention, however, is called to his hotel expenses for the eight days in New York awaiting the sailing of the steamship Havana, aggregating $236.15, as shown by the voucher, or about $29.50 a day. A copy of the expense account for this trip is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 41 B." Director-General Rathbone, in his statement, alleges that this bill was for his personal expenses and did not include any of the expenses of his family, who were with him in New York at that time. It appears from the testimony of General Rathbone that he occupied a suite of four rooms. He states that he occupied these rooms personally and officially. Secretary Wilmot says that Mrs. Rathbone and her son occupied this suite of rooms with the General, but does not know whether she paid a part of the expenses or not. Director-General Rathbone says that Mrs. Rathbone paid her own hotel bills and that no part of this $236.15 was for her board or accommodation. It seemed to be the practice of Secretary Wilmot to pay Mrs. Rathbone's bills and render an account to her later. A copy of the account of the expenses of this trip which he kept for her is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 42." From the copies of receipts attached to said account it appears that these hotel bills were rendered for the board of Mrs. Rathbone from October 29 to November 12. Mr. Wilmot states that after that date he paid no hotel bills for Mrs. Rathbone. I do not think it is reasonable to believe that the director-general expended $29.50 a day for personal hotel expenses while in New York awaiting the sailing of the vessel for Habana, but do believe that these expenses cover the entire hotel expenses of himself and family and that they have been fraudulently charged against the postal revenues of Cuba. Similar incidental items appear in this bill that appear so numerously in the others. Items under this head aggregate $99.91. With these entries appear the items "cable and incidentals," "telegraph and incidentals," etc. Since it is required by the Post-Office Department that copies of telegrams sent at Government expense shall be filed with the voucher I have classed all such entries merely as inci-dentals. A bill of this magnitude for expenses of travel for the period covered, when free transportation over the railroad lines was furnished, is so suspicious in itself that it seems to me any accounting officer should have rejected it.

Another expenditure of an unauthorized character appears in the accounts of Director-General Rathbone with Madame Jorrin, at whose home he boarded during a part of the month of March and all the months of April, May, June, July, and August, and a part of September, 1899. When he first occupied rooms at Madame Jorrin's, three rooms were assigned to his family. It seems that these apartments were not sufficient, so an adjoining room fronting upon the street was secured, and a bathroom was also added, making the apartments then consist of four rooms and a bath, the front room being used as a general reception room. The rent of the front room was charged to the department of posts as an official expenditure for an "office," in my judgment an expenditure wholly unauthorized. I herewith submit a copy of report of Inspector Gregory, a copy of letter from Director-General Rathbone to Madame Jorrin, copy of statement of P. H. Bristow, and copy of statement of W. E. Wilmot, marked, respectively, Exhibits 43, 44, 45, and 46.

FRAUDULENT AND DUPLICATE WARRANTS.

When Director-General Rathbone made his tour of inspection around the island of Cuba in April, 1899, before starting he drew two warrants; one in favor of W. E. Wilmot, cashier, for $500, and the other in favor of himself for a like amount. The expenses of the trip, aggregating $280.07, were paid from the warrant drawn in favor of W. E. Wilmot, cashier. The remainder, $219.93, was returned to the auditor and receipt taken therefor. The warrant No. 1204, in favor of E. G. Rathbone, director-general of posts, was lost by Wilmot at Santiago, and a telegram was sent to the auditor advising him of the loss of the warrant and stopping payment on the same. This lost warrant was never presented for payment, and since warrant No. 1203, drawn in favor of W. E. Wilmot, cashier, was sufficient to cover all of the expenses of the trip, and there remained $219.93, which was turned back into the treasury, payment having been stopped on the lost warrant and a record made that the same had been lost, the transaction certainly was closed; but it appears that on June 30 warrant No. 3167 was drawn in favor of E. G. Rathbone, director-general of posts, in the sum of $500, in lieu of warrant No. 1204, lost, and on July 5, 1899, said warrant No. 3167 appears to have been cashed by E. G. Rathbone. The cashier of the North American Trust Company states that on July 5 the warrant was cashed, and since no name appears upon the back of the warrant except that of E. G. Rathbone the money was doubtless paid to Mr. Rathbone. No accounting has ever been made by Director-General Rathbone for this $500. Why the warrant should have been drawn no one seems to know. There certainly was no necessity for it. The late assistant auditor, Reeves, states it could have been drawn for the purpose of depositing with the postal funds, thereby balancing the account opened by the issuing of the lost warrant. But since warrant No. 1204, lost, was canceled and payment stopped there was no charge because of that warrant. So, as the record stands, this warrant was drawn in favor of Director-General Rathbone in the sum of $500 in lieu of lost warrant No. 1204, and cashed by Director-General Rathbone on July 5, 1899, and no accounting whatever has ever been made of this money.

When Director-General Rathbone made his trip to the United States in April and May, 1899, he drew two warrants, on April 22, for $500 each, payable to himself, numbered 1727 and 1728, respectively. Warrant No. 1727 was cashed by Director-General Rathbone personally on April 24, 1899, at the North American Trust Company in Habana. From the proceeds of this warrant the expenses of the trip, aggregating $425.45, were paid, and the remainder, $74.55, was returned to the auditor, as shown by the voucher filed, though no receipt seems to have been taken for the same.

Warrant No. 1728 was cashed in Washington. No accounting has ever been made by Director-General Rathbone of the $500 so received. No part of it was necessary to defray the expenses of the trip, those expenses having been paid from the proceeds of the first warrant, cashed at Habana on April 24, 1899.

Copies of warrants numbered 1203, 1727, 1728, and 3167, with copies of certificates attached, are herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 46 A."

Attention is invited to the testimony of Director-General Rathbone bearing upon this matter (Exhibit 19); also to copy of statement of Assistant Auditor Reeves, herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 47," and copies of statements of W. E. Wilmot, herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 48."

From the records it appears that Director-General Rathbone has drawn two warrants to himself in the sum of $500 each, received the money thereon, and made no accounting whatever for the same to the department of posts. There stands against him, therefore, the charge of unlawfully appropriating $1,000 of the Cuban postal funds to his own use.

Among the most extravagant expenditures made by Director-General Rathbone was that of maintaining his official carriage. The horses, and feed for the same, were furnished by the military government without expense to the department of posts. Upon my request the assistant auditor for the department of posts, in a communication dated July 3, 1900, submits the following as the expenditures of the department of posts in the payment of the salary and per diem of the director-general, his traveling expenses, and the expenses of maintaining his official residence, from January 1, 1899, to April 30, 1900:

Salary and per diem	$9,690.20
Traveling expenses	1,570.95
Money drawn for traveling expenses and not accounted for	1,000.00
Furniture and household goods, as far as ascertained	3,582.47
Expenses incurred for rent of and repairs on official residence, as far as ascertained	3,139.27
Carriage and auxiliaries	4,449.07
Total	23,431.96

It is not believed, however, that this covers the entire amount chargeable to the personal expenditures for the director-general, as many of the items rendered by himself and Neely as miscellaneous expenses were doubtless for purchases of a personal nature for the director-general. This is indicated by an expenditure of $73.22 in March, 1900, for gas bill at the director-general's residence. In this connection I invite special attention to the statement of C. M. Rich (Exhibit 29).

EXPENDITURES FOR WHICH NO VOUCHERS WERE FILED.

There were many large expenditures made by the director-general of posts and by Neely, the chief of the bureau of finance, for which no vouchers were filed. Since vouchers could easily have been obtained for these expenditures, as the law requires, in the light of the other fraudulent transactions, I am inclined to think that the reason these vouchers were not obtained was because the expenditures were not justified, and probably in many cases were not made in the amounts set forth. The auditor for the island of Cuba, in reauditing the accounts, has disallowed them and requested that investigation be made as to their regularity and necessity. While these investigations are not completed, there are strong evidences that much of the money received for such alleged expenses was received upon false and fraudulent statements.

As will be seen by the copies of accounts submitted herewith, marked "Exhibit 48A," statements of expenditures without accompanying vouchers or receipts were made by Neely and approved and ordered paid by Director-General Rathbone. Assistant Auditor Reeves stated that he did not feel that he had the right to refuse to allow that which the director-general of posts had ordered paid; a statement which, if true, plainly indicates that he had no conception of the duties and responsibilities of an auditing officer. I do not credit Reeves's statement, however. The evidence is too strong of collusion existing between Neely, Rathbone, and Reeves for the purpose of passing these unwarranted and improper expense accounts.

On May 10, 1899, an expense bill of $147 was passed, one item of which appears to have been for moving a safe, $116.70.

On June 19, 1899, an expense account of $117.10 was passed without vouchers.

On July 1, 1899, the expenses aggregated $503.53, the largest item being $397.20 for moving safe, freight, and wharfage. There is no reason why receipts for this expenditure should not have been obtained.

On July 28, 1899, an expense bill was submitted and passed, amounting to $450.58, containing an item for freight, wharfage, and lighterage amounting to $246.50.

In August, 1899, the expense account of Neely amounted to $672.01, of which $293 was for a trip to the United States which will be hereafter referred to.

The expenses for the months of September and October, 1899, were $297.22; there is also a separate bill for $309.79 for expenses of a trip to the United States by order of the director-general.

The expenses for the month of November, 1899, amounted to $248.74; there is also a separate bill for freight paid on furniture sent to postoffices on the island, amounting to $457.69. No receipts whatever accompany these bills.

The expenses for December, 1899, were $368.78, a large part of which was for freight on furniture, but no receipts were filed.

The expenses for January, 1900, amounted to $758.46, one item of $200 being for miscellaneous supplies and another of $60 for repairs. It is not stated what the miscellaneous supplies were nor the nature of the repairs. There is another item of $147.52 for freight on furniture, but no accompanying receipts.

For the month of February, 1900, Neely's miscellaneous expense account aggregated $857.57, of which an item of $198.76 is entered as miscellaneous repairs; another, of miscellaneous repairs for the department, $113.46. What was repaired and who did the repairing are not known or stated. No receipts whatever accompanied this bill.

In March, 1900, the miscellaneous expenses were $652.90, which included repairs, $135; freight on post-office furniture, $189.07; miscellaneous expenses for department, $78.85; repairs on official residence, $63.60; gas bill at official residence, $73.22.

Director-General Rathbone, on being interrogated in regard to the character of these miscellaneous expenditures for which Neely was reimbursed, said that he supposed Neely was honest and that the accounts were right, and he therefore ordered them paid. Director-General Rathbone has been engaged in the Government service for many years, and he knows as well as anyone that such a system of accounting and such a method of presenting bills and such expenditures are wholly unwarranted and improper, and bear the strongest evidences in themselves of corruption. Therefore, for him to approve such accounts, and thereby become responsible himself for their payment, renders him equally guilty with Neely. It is my opinion that many of these miscellaneous items for repairs, freight, wharfage, lighterage, etc., were fraudulent, and that the entire amounts were not so expended. During this period there was a contract in force between the department of posts and the Pan-American Express Company for lighterage services, and the records of the department show that several thousand dollars were paid to this company direct by the department of posts under the contract for lighterage service during the time that many of these miscellaneous lighterage bills were alleged to have been paid by Neely. The total amount of these miscellaneous expenditures from January, 1899, to April 1, 1900, was $6,290.58. A part of this is probably legitimate, but in my judgment the larger part is an improper and fraudulent expenditure, for which Director-General Rathbone, C. F. W. Neely, and W. H. Reeves are responsible.

Neely made two trips to the United States upon the order of the director-general of posts—one in August, 1899, and the other in October, 1899. His expense accounts for these trips are submitted herewith, marked "Exhibit 49." On the first trip the expenses, for which he was reimbursed, were $293, on the second trip, $309.79. While in the United States he visited the cities of New York, Washington and Indianapolis. No receipts were furnished for any part of these expenditures. It does not seem to have been necessary for Neely to furnish receipts for hotel bills or other expenditures in order to have them passed and allowed by the auditing officer.

There are a number of items for which Neely claims credit, unsupported by any evidence of their correctness. Warrant No. 7087, amounting to $12,000, was drawn by the director-general of posts to correct an error in deposit in July, 1899; the same was cashed by Neely on November 7, 1899, and deposited December 15, 1899. There is no specific evidence of crookedness in this transaction. It seems to have been a mysterious irregularity. The cause of the delay in both the cashing and the depositing has not been explained by anyone.

Neely was given credit for $5,373.23 for loss on Spanish gold sold in the United States, but there is no evidence as to what the actual loss was other than Neely's unsupported statement.

He was also credited with $4,345 alleged loss on Spanish copper coin, which has heretofore been discussed.

These expenditures possibly might have been proper, but there are no vouchers or evidence showing that they were, and from Neely's record in other matters I have grave doubts as to the correctness of any of these credits. Evidence of correctness could easily have been filed, and it should have been required by Director-General Rathbone and Auditor Reeves.

There is no doubt that there was collusion between the bureau of postal accounts and the bureau of finance for the purpose of fraud; and it is evident that this collusion continued after the bureau of postal accounts had been changed to a division of the auditor's office and the chief of this bureau, W. H. Reeves, became one of the assistant auditors for the island. The system of accounting was so imperfect, by reason of the lack of check on the operations of the bureau of finance, that peculations might have occurred without the knowledge of the assistant auditor. But I do not believe that embezzlements could have continued over so long a period of time and in such large amounts without his knowledge and complicity. Certainly the duplicate warrants for the salaries of the clerks in the department of posts and the Habana post-office for the first half of July, 1899, could not have been passed and paid as they were without the knowledge and acquiescence of the auditing office. The two $500 warrants cashed by Director-General Rathbone, which have not been accounted for, could not have been paid and remained unaccounted for without the guilty knowledge of the assistant auditor. The fraudulent destruction of stamps could not have been carried out without collusion between Neely, chief of the bureau of finance, and Reeves, the assistant auditor for the department of posts. The numerous extravagant and unreasonable bills of both Neely and Rathbone would not have been passed by an auditing officer unless he had been in collusion with the officers presenting them for the purpose of permitting fraud to be practiced.

EMBEZZLEMENT OF E. P. THOMPSON.

In September, 1899, Mr. E. P. Thompson, postmaster at Habana, caused to be issued in his own behalf four money orders for $100 each, and instead of depositing the money therefor placed his duebill in the drawer for $400. The money-order clerk, knowing that this was a violation of the postal laws, demurred; but Mr. Thompson told him that it was all right, and that he would make it good at any time it was needed. The duebill was carried for several months. In the meantime an inspection of the office was made, Mr. Thompson having been advised as to when the inspection would be made. On that day he replaced the $400 with remittances he had received that morning from postmasters at other post-offices, postponing the entry of these receipts upon his books until after the inspection was made. Then he made the entry upon the books, withdrew the $400, and replaced his duebill. In the meantime a change had been made in money-order clerks. The new clerk was disturbed by this condition, and called the attention of one of the officers of the department of posts to the matter. I have forgotten whether it was the chief clerk or one of the special agents. Another investigation was had, the embezzlement discovered, and Mr. Thompson was required to make it good. He induced his assistant postmaster, Mr. Juncosa, to go upon his note as surety, and in this way secured the money. Mr. Juncosa was much averse to signing the note, but since Thompson was his superior officer he did not like to refuse his persistent request. The fact that Thompson put his duebill in lieu of the money is thought by some to indicate that his actions were not criminal. It was the only method, however, by which he could have used the funds, unless he had secretly stolen them without the knowledge of the money-order clerk. That clerk being under bond and having custody of the funds, would not only have been held on his bond for the amount of the shortage, but would have been liable to criminal prosecution for embezzlement or falsification of his accounts if he had not had evidence that the money was taken out by Thompson instead of himself. He therefore would not have permitted Thompson to take and use the money without leaving some evidence that it was taken by Thompson, and not by himself. Thompson well knew that his act in having the money orders issued for his benefit without depositing the money therefor was, according to the laws of the United States, a crime; and when he manipulated his returns to cover up his shortage and deceive the inspecting officers he plainly shows that he knew his act was a serious violation of the law. Thus Mr. Thompson, who had been employed in the postal service of the United States for over twenty years, a man of mature age and extensive experience, himself became a violator of the law.

INDICATIONS OF IRREGULARITY.

Soon after General Wood was appointed military-governor he became suspicious that something was wrong with the department of posts. His suspicion was communicated to Director-General Rathbone, and after a good deal of delay resulted finally in Rathbone ordering an inspection of Neely's accounts by two of his special agents, Mr. George L. Seybolt, who was the chief special agent, and Mr. W. T. G. Neal. At the time he decided upon this inspection Neely was not in Cuba, but in Florida. Director-General Rathbone wired him to return, and a few days after Neely returned an inspection of his accounts was made. Neely seems to have been notified that an inspection was to be made, and he prepared for such inspection. In this connection I desire to invite special attention to the testimony of Mr. E. P. Hamlin, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 50;" also statement of Mr. George L. Seybolt, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 51;" and statement of W. T. G. Neal, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 52."

It also appears that Neely was notified on the morning of April 23, 1900, that an investigation was to be made, and he asked delay in order that he might get his accounts in proper shape. Such delay was granted, and the inspection did not begin until between 1 and 2 o'clock of the same date. At that time he seems to have had his accounts in the shape he desired them for inspection. It would appear, from an inquiry into the details of this inspection, that the special agents discovered several packages of money in the vault done up in bank wrappers, plainly indicating that Neely had withdrawn from the bank upon that date large amounts of currency preparatory for the inspection. Mr. Neal states that he did not know Neely had been notified and that the inspectors were waiting for him to get ready for the inspection. Mr. Seybolt does not specifically admit that he sent word to Neely, as stated by Mr. Hamlin, but does believe that Neely was previously advised as to the proposed inspection. This inspection of April 23 by Seybolt and Neal was a farce, and is of no value as showing the condition of Mr. Neely's accounts at that time. A copy of the report of Special Agents Seybolt and Neal is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 53."

It has been asked how it was possible for Neely to commit these extensive frauds for so long a time without the knowledge of other employees of the postal service. It is my opinion that many of these employees doubted Neely's integrity, but they believed he sustained the most confidential relations with the director-general, and felt that any charge made against Neely would not be well received but possibly resented and result to the disadvantage and discredit of the one making it. This opinion prevailing among subordinate postal employees would of necessity make them timid in reporting any irregularities they might have observed or suspicions they may have entertained affecting the integrity or official standing of Neely. Director-General Rathbone, however, had been given abundant reason on more than one occasion to believe that there was something wrong with Neely's method of doing business.

In May, 1899, United States Inspectors Sullivan and Letherman inspected the accounts of the bureau of finance, and in their report to the director-general of posts, a copy of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 54," they state:

> The items of debit agree exactly with the records of the bureau of postal accounts, except that the item of $1,541.48 for box-rent collections is not charged against the bureau of finance in the records of the bureau of postal accounts.
> We recommend that a blank form be prepared and sent to each postmaster, and that he be required to report thereon monthly at the end of each month the amount of his box-rent collections for that month, and inclose with his remittance of the amount of such collections to the bureau of finance one copy of such report, and in same mail send a copy of such report to the bureau of postal accounts, and that the latter bureau charge the amount to the bureau of finance.
> In the items of credit given the bureau of finance the items of accounts of postmasters for stamps furnished, $30,349.72, is accredited from the records of that bureau, which holds the receipts of the postmasters for a larger sum, but the accounts of postmasters have been credited from time to time with remittances, so that we believe the accounts are in the main correct. As the bureau of postal accounts does not keep records of accounts with postmasters, there seems to be no absolute or accurate check against the bureau of finance in the matter of his accounts with the postmasters; but as no postmaster has yet complained of not receiving proper credit, we feel sure that the accounts are accurate.
> We recommend that blank forms of quarterly or monthly reports be supplied to postmasters, and that they be required to report the exact state of their accounts monthly or quarterly, including stamps on hand at previous report, stamps received since, stamps sold during month or quarter, amount of collections of box rents, newspaper and periodical postage, and from miscellaneous sources, and credit themselves with amount of remittances on postal-fund account. These reports, being sent to the bureau of postal accounts, will serve as a check upon the accuracy of the accounts of the chief of the bureau of finance.

It appears from this report that there was an item of $1,541.48 which the chief of the bureau of finance had not reported to the chief of the bureau of postal accounts, and that there was an irregularity in the stamp accounts with postmasters and the bureau of finance, and as a check against such irregularities the inspectors recommended that a blank be prepared and furnished postmasters, to report to the bureau of postal accounts the amounts remitted by them to the bureau of finance. This report seems to have been approved by the director-general of posts and referred to the respective chiefs of the bureau of finance and the bureau of postal accounts, but nothing was ever done toward carrying out the recommendations. I am advised by Inspectors Sullivan and Letherman that during the investigation they discovered a surplus of several thousand dollars in the hands of the chief of the bureau of finance. He claimed it to be personal funds. The inspectors seem to have doubted his statement, because Inspector Letherman advises me that in a private conversation with the director-general, on the 26th of May, 1899, the day he sailed for the United States, he discussed with the director-general this surplus, and told him of his suspicion that Neely had made this money in utilizing to his own advantage the difference between the government and the current price on Spanish silver that came into the possession of the bureau of finance. Inspector Letherman says that Director-General Rathbone thanked him for this information and said he would look into it. Director-General Rathbone states that he remembers no such conversation with Inspector Letherman, and further criticises him for claiming to have made such a statement and failing to embody it in the written report. His criticism of Inspector Letherman is unjust, however. Mr. Letherman did not have that definite information which would justify his stating in an official report that Neely was in fact speculating in the postal funds; but he saw circumstances that led him to believe such was the case, and did what Director-General Rathbone should have appreciated when he advised him privately of his suspicions.

In October, 1899, Neely was absent from Habana and Mr. George W. Marshall, one of the bookkeepers in the bureau of finance, was acting chief. Mr. Marshall states that in depositing the receipts for September, as nearly as he can remember, when he asked the director-general of posts to sign the deposit slip, Director-General Rathbone asked him if that was the entire amount of the receipts for the month, and Mr. Marshall told him that it was not; that he had been instructed by Neely to deposit only that amount—$15,000, I believe—and to keep the remainder, whatever it might be, in the vault. A copy of Mr. Marshall's statement is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 55."

In January, 1900, Mr. H. H. Williams, a special agent with headquarters at Matanzas, in a conversation with Director-General Rathbone at Cardenas, stated to him that in his judgment the records of Neely did not show the correct receipts of the Matanzas post-office, the records showing the receipts to have been between $13,000 and $14,000 for the year. A copy of Mr. Williams' statement in regard to this conversation is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 56." Mr. Williams informed General Rathbone that there was evidently something wrong in the records of the bureau of finance in regard to the receipts of this office; that the receipts surely were several thousand dollars more than the statement which he had from the bureau of finance indicated. It seems from statements of Mr. H. S. McEvoy, who was at that time postmaster at Matanzas, and Mr. P. H. Bristow, chief clerk of the department of posts, copies of which are herewith submitted, marked, respectively, "Exhibit 57" and "Exhibit 58," that Director-General Rathbone took the matter up with Neely on his return to Habana, and that it was afterwards satisfactorily adjusted with the Matanzas postmaster. It is not known what Mr. Rathbone found as to this alleged discrepancy. He states that he remembers nothing whatever about the conversation he had with Mr. Williams, and that if he had such a conversation it made no impression upon his mind.

Regardless of these warnings, however, Neely seemed to retain the full confidence of the director-general of posts until the defalcation in his accounts was discovered and Neely was arrested.

In connection with the statement of the late assistant auditor, Reeves (Exhibit 22), regarding his conversation with Neely on the 27th of April, in which he says that Neely told him the "old man" (meaning Rathbone) had at times called upon him heavily to help him out of financial difficulties, I desire to submit the following for consideration:

It will be remembered that Mr. Rathbone was appointed director of posts on December 21, 1898. At that time he appears to have been involved in financial difficulties. His salary was fixed at $4,000 per annum. On January 30, 1899, he was allowed by the Postmaster-General a per diem of $5, to date from January 1. There was no change in compensation from that date to December 19, 1899, when his salary was increased to $6,500 per annum, made effective from August 1, 1899. His salary and per diem, therefore, from December 21, 1898, the date of his appointment, to October 1, 1899, amounted to $4,473.76.

On January 30, 1890, General Rathbone borrowed $3,000 from Lewcelle S. S. Rathbone and Sara D. Rathbone, with interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum, due one year after date. He paid interest on this amount to July 20, 1898. From that date no interest was paid until the 21st day of September, 1899. On that date he paid $990.10; on October 6, 1899, he paid $894.64; on October 20, 1899, he paid $1,320.41, making a total of $3,205.15 paid within three weeks—the only payments that had been made for over six years. It will be remembered that these payments were made within thirty days of the date of the alleged destruction of the $310,000 worth of surcharged stamps. This information as to the payment of this note was secured after I left Habana, and I have therefore been unable to inquire of Mr. Rathbone how he came into possession of the money to pay this note at that time. An examination of his correspondence left at the department of posts shows that since his appointment and prior to October 1, 1899, he had also paid numerous small debts, amounting in the aggregate to several hundred dollars. I have been unable to learn of any sources of income which Director-General Rathbone had other than his compensation as director-general of posts. Prior to the payment of this note he had expended several thousand dollars for his living expenses, and it is evident that the money with which the note was paid was secured from some other source than his salary. The two warrants of $500 each, which were evidently cashed by him, and for which he has rendered no accounting, were cashed prior to the payment of this $3,205.15; but, adding this to his salary and per diem, and still it would, in my opinion, fall short of a sufficient amount to pay the debts referred to and support his family as they lived in Habana. Copy of report of Inspector William B. Smith in regard to this matter is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit 59."

CONCLUSION.

In this report I have not endeavored to go into minute details, presenting as briefly as practicable the more salient features. There are numerous matters of less importance that might be referred to, but since these will all be covered in detail by investigations of inspectors, I do not deem it important that they should be incorporated herein. Additional information will probably be secured bearing upon the subjects discussed, but, in my judgment, it will not be of such a nature as to materially change the conclusions.

Director-General Rathbone maintains that he is innocent of wrongdoing; that these extensive embezzlements are the result of dishonesty on the part of subordinate officials who had been well recommended to him as honest and upright men, and that during the year and four months he was associated with them he had no cause to doubt their integrity or efficiency of administration; that the revelations brought out by the investigation were a great surprise to him and wholly unexpected; that he had believed up to the 6th of May last that the accounts of the department of posts were kept systematically and honestly.

Granting that what Director-General Rathbone says is true, he convicts himself of the grossest carelessness in the administration of the affairs of his office, or of an utter incapacity to comprehend its duties and responsibilities.

That he was careless, loved ease, and refused to give attention to details, there is no doubt. He depended largely upon his subordinates, even requiring his chief clerk to sign his name to a large part of his correspondence, apparently for no other purpose than to save the physical labor necessary to append such signatures himself. But carelessness can not account for the appropriation of the per diem that was unauthorized. It can not account for the unwarranted personal expenditures from the postal revenues, nor for the cashing of the warrants and a failure to account for the money received thereon. Whether General Rathbone was guilty with Neely in the embezzlements endeavored to be covered up by the destruction of surcharged stamps is at this time a question more of opinion than proof. But there can be no doubt that in the matter of the per diem and the warrants which were cashed and the money unaccounted for, he unlawfully and fraudulently appropriated to his own use money from the Cuban postal revenues. Neely, Reeves, Thompson, Moya, and Mascaro are now under arrest. Rich is held as a Government witness, and I understand has been promised by the governor-general immunity from prosecution if it should appear that he did not personally profit by the embezzlements of which he had knowledge.

From the information obtained by this investigation, which I have endeavored to set forth in the foregoing pages, it is my belief that I was justified in recommending the removal of Director-General Rathbone from office; and I further believe that he should be required to answer for fraudently and unlawfully appropriating to his own use moneys from the postal revenues of Cuba.

Very respectfully,

J. L. BRISTOW,
Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General.

The Honorable,
The POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

EXHIBIT 1.—Copy of letter of instructions, May 12, 1900, from Postmaster-General to Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General.

OFFICE OF THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL,
Washington, D. C., May 12, 1900.

Hon. JOSEPH L. BRISTOW,
Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General.

SIR: You are directed to proceed to Habana, Cuba, at once. As you are aware, a force of inspectors has been detailed to make a thorough investigation into the administration of the postal service of the island.

Besides giving the inspectors the benefit of your counsel, it will be your special duty to examine and report upon the organization of the department of posts. You will confer freely with the governor-general, and will hold yourself in readiness for any service that may be indicated by later instructions.

Very respectfully,

CH. EMORY SMITH,
Postmaster-General.

EXHIBIT 2.—Copy of letter of instructions May 16, 1900, from Postmaster-General to Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General.

OFFICE OF THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL,
Washington, D. C., May 16, 1900.

Hon. JOSEPH L. BRISTOW,
Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General.

SIR: Supplementing my letter of May 12, directing you to proceed at once to Cuba, the following further instructions are given for your guidance:

You will immediately on your arrival at Habana confer freely and fully with General Wood, military governor, and will keep in constant communication with him in the work on which you enter. You will cooperate with the military governor both in the investigation of all irregularities in the postal service of Cuba and in any measures for the reorganization of the system that may be undertaken.

The examination by the inspectors, already provided for, will have begun before your arrival. You will assume general supervision of this examination, and will enforce the instruction heretofore given that it shall be of the most searching and thorough character. If you find that you need a still larger force for the prompt and complete performance of this duty, you will call for it. The investigation must be comprehensive and minute, covering every branch of the service and all classes of officials. Its prosecution must be governed solely by the purpose of ascertaining the truth and the whole truth, and it must be uncompromising and unsparing.

Besides supervising the investigation in cooperation with the military governor, it will be your duty to examine the organization of the postal service, with its system of checks and balances, and report what greater or additional safeguards can be provided. Under the system established at the beginning of the American occupation of Cuba the administrative side of the service was placed under the control of this Department and the auditing or checking side under the control of another. This is the system of the United States Government. The irregularities and peculations which have been brought to light were apparently accomplished because officers appointed by and responsible to different Departments, and who should have been a check upon each other, entered into collusion and conspiracy to perpetrate these wrongs on the one side and to pass and cover them up on the other. You will carefully investigate by what defects of supervision or defense they were consummated, and what further measures of protection in the passing and auditing of accounts and in the handling of public funds and property may be needed.

It is desired also that the central organization of the postal service in Cuba shall receive your special attention. You will examine as to whether it is framed in the best manner for efficient administration. You will see whether, compatibly with a good mail service for the people, any retrenchments can be made, and whether economies can be effected by a consolidation and reduction of bureaus. It is desired to bring the postal expenditures within the postal revenues so far as may be consistent with the obligation of providing a satisfactory mail service.

Your presence in Cuba as the representative of the Department with these instructions makes you the ranking officer of the postal administration. You will consider and advise what removals or other action may be required in the cause of justice, for the interest of the Government and of the people of Cuba, and for the welfare of the service.

You are chosen for this duty with the approval of the President, who is deeply shocked at the shameful betrayal of trust on the part of officials in whom confidence had been reposed, and who directs that in dealing with all irregularities which have been or may be disclosed the sole rule of action shall be thorough and complete investigation, the rigorous and unsparing prosecution of all guilty persons, and their swift and condign punishment.

You will communicate these instructions to General Wood, keeping him fully informed as you proceed, and reporting regularly to the Department.

Respectfully yours,

CH. EMORY SMITH,
Postmaster-General.

HEADQUARTERS DIVISION OF CUBA,
Habana, May 19, 1900.

Mr. E. G. RATHBONE,
Director-General of Posts, Island of Cuba, Habana, Cuba.

SIR: I have the honor to inform you, after conference with General Bristow and careful consideration of his instructions, it has been decided that he is to take immediate and complete official charge of the department of posts of the island of Cuba. In this connection it is suggested that you abstain from visiting the department of posts unless requested by General Bristow to do so.

Very respectfully,

LEONARD WOOD,
Major-General, Military Governor.

EXHIBIT 4.

Copy of cable message, May 19, 1900, from Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General to Postmaster-General.

HABANA, May 19, 1900.

Hon. CHARLES EMORY SMITH,
Postmaster-General, Washington, D. C.:

After looking over the situation and consulting General Wood, I have thought it best to take immediate charge of the department of posts. General Wood urges such action and thinks delay would be very detrimental. In this opinion I heartily concur. A thorough reorganization of postal affairs is imperative. It can not be done under the direction of Rathbone. I therefore recommend his immediate removal as director. In this recommendation General Wood heartily concurs.

(Signed) BRISTOW.

Copy of notice, May 19, 1900, of Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General to the director-general.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, May 19, 1900.

MY DEAR GENERAL: After consulting with General Wood, I think it best, in pursuit of the investigation, to take complete charge of the department of posts.

I endeavored to reach the department before you left, so as to advise you of the decision, but was detained at General Wood's office until you had gone.

I have notified Chief Clerk Bristow of this decision. I endeavored to get you by telephone, but failed.

Very respectfully,

J. L. BRISTOW,
Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General.

Hon. E. G. RATHBONE,
Director-General of Posts, Habana, Cuba.

HEADQUARTERS DIVISION OF CUBA,
Habana, May 21, 1900.

Gen. JOSEPH L. BRISTOW,
Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General United States,
Habana, Cuba.

SIR: The military governor of Cuba, by virtue of authority vested in him, hereby authorizes you to take charge of, as acting director-general of posts, all public property belonging to the postal department of the island of Cuba for which the director-general of posts may be properly held responsible, and, in the absence of instructions from higher authority, to proceed with the reorganization of the postal department in accordance with instructions of the Postmaster-General and the postal regulations governing in the island of Cuba.

You are respectfully requested to submit estimates for funds necessary to maintain that department, on forms which will be furnished by the auditor.

Very respectfully,

W. V. RICHARDS,
Adjutant General.

HABANA, May 20, 1900.

Gen. J. L. BRISTOW,
Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General, Habana:

DEAR SIR: I have yours of last evening, stating that after consultation with General Wood you have concluded to take complete charge of the department of posts. I do not wish to be technical, but you will recognize that I should be shown or given proper authority for your so doing. Be good enough to furnish it to me.

I am worn out, or would come to you.

I ask this to keep the records straight.

Very truly,

E. G. RATHBONE.

HABANA, May 21, 1900.

POSTGEN, Washington:

Have in my possession all records and correspondence of Rathbone that were found at department of posts on my arrival. Think that he went over his correspondence carefully about May 10, as there is some evidence that files were made ready for an investigation. Rathbone questions my authority to take charge to his exclusion. General Wood suggests that he put me in charge by military order. I prefer to act under authority from my own Department. I have therefore taken possession by virtue of being the superior postal official on the island. Think it wise, however, to avoid any controversy, that you cable me specific authority to perform the functions of director of posts under the postal laws of the island. I hereby renew my recommendation of May 19. General Wood has notified Rathbone not to appear at department of posts unless requested.

(Signed) BRISTOW.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 21, 1900.

JOSEPH L. BRISTOW,
Hotel Inglaterra, Habana:

The appended order has this day been issued and is herewith communicated to you.

Ordered, That Estes G. Rathbone be, and he is hereby, suspended from the office of director-general of posts of Cuba.

That Joseph L. Bristow, Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General, be, and is hereby, appointed acting director-general of posts of Cuba, without other salary than that of Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General.

That all records, books, papers, supplies, and other property of the department of posts of Cuba shall be immediately delivered to the custody of the acting director-general of posts, hereby appointed.

CH. EMORY SMITH,
Postmaster-General.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
FIRST ASSISTANT POSTMASTER-GENERAL,
Washington, December 13, 1898.

MY DEAR MAJOR: I intended to say to you when you were here that there is one man, Mr. Charles F. W. Neely, of Muncie, Ind., who wants to go into the Cuban mail service, in whom I am more interested than any other man among thousands of applicants for positions of that character. He is a newspaper writer and publisher and about 42 years of age, splendidly educated, a hustler, a man with the very best habits, and as loyal as loyalty itself. He would make a grand confidential man for you. I will write and ask him to go and see you. This is a man you will warm up to, and would like to have as a companion as well as an executive officer.

Yours, faithfully,

PERRY S. HEATH,
First Assistant Postmaster-General.

Maj. E. G. RATHBONE,
Hamilton, Ohio.

APPOINTMENT.

HABANA, CUBA, February 6, 1899.

SIR: You have been appointed a clerk in the military postal service at a salary of $1,800 per annum, to take effect December 24, and will report to Hon. E. G. Rathbone, director of posts for Cuba; your railroad fare between Muncie, Ind., and Hamilton, Ohio, and your railroad fare between Hamilton, Ohio, and Tampa, Fla., and your transportation between Tampa, Fla., and Habana, Cuba, will be allowed you.

Secure vouchers for all railroad fares and transportation. You will then be reimbursed for your expenditures through one of the postal agents in Cuba, upon authority from this office.

Execute enclosed oath of office and return to me.

Very respectfully,

GEO. M. ALLEN,
Acting First Assistant Postmaster-General.
(G. W. B.)

Mr. CHARLES F. W. NEELY,
Hamilton, Ohio.

NOTE.—This copy was made from a copy of the original letter, which copy is now on file in the appointment bureau, Habana, Cuba. (The heading and date as given in this copy are obviously incorrect.)

EXHIBIT 8.

Copy of order of director-general establishing bureau of postal accounts.

No. 12.

General Order.
Original No. 10.

A bureau of postal accounts is hereby created in the office of the director of posts until otherwise ordered, to be in charge of a designated chief.

The chief of the bureau of postal accounts shall receive all accounts arising in connection with the postal service of Cuba or relative thereto, with all the vouchers necessary to a correct adjustment thereof, and shall audit and settle the same, and shall certify the balances arising thereon to the director of posts.

He shall keep and preserve all accounts and vouchers after settlement.

He shall close the postal account of the department quarterly, and submit to the director of posts quarterly statements of its receipts and expenditures.

He shall report to the director of posts, when required to do so, the manner and form of keeping and adjusting the accounts of the department, and the official form of the papers to be used in connection with its receipts and disbursements.

He shall report to the director of posts all the delinquencies of postmasters and postal officials in rendering the accounts and returns, or in paying over, as required, the receipts of their respective offices.

He shall register, charge, and countersign all warrants upon the designated depository of postal revenues for this department, for payments issued by the director of posts, as warranted by law or regulations.

He shall perform such other duties in relation to the financial concerns of the department as may be assigned to him by the director of posts, and make such reports concerning the same as the director of posts may require.

The laws, rules, and regulations of the United States of America concerning the settlement and adjustment of postal accounts are hereby declared in force so far as the same may be applicable to the service as organized or recognized by the director of posts.

E. G. RATHBONE,
Director of Posts of Cuba.

EXHIBIT 9.

Summary of surcharged postage stamps received and accounted for by bureau of finance, department of posts, January 1, 1899, to August 31, 1899 (inclusive), as prepared by United States Post-office Inspectors C. M. Waters and H. T. Gregory, June 14 to June 18, 1900 (inclusive).

Aug. 31, 1899. Total amount of surcharged stamps received by the bureau of finance, January 1 to August 31, 1899 (inclusive)	$522,000.00
Aug. 31, 1899. Total amount of surcharged stamps disposed of by the bureau of finance by issue to bonded postmasters and cash sales, January 1 to August 31, 1899 (inclusive), less $5,540.60 damaged and unsalable stamps returned by postmasters	230,179.20
Balance on hand August 31, 1899	291,820.80

Dec. 14, 1899. Total amount of surcharged stamps alleged to have been burned September 11 and December 14, 1899	$392,589.37
Aug. 31, 1899. Amount of surcharged stamps on hand at close of business August 31, 1899	291,820.80
	100,768.57
May 20, 1900. Addition of amount found in the bureau of finance and counted by inspectors May 20, 1900	44.59
Amount of fraudulent claim	100,813.16

NOTE.—This computation is based on present data, which are not final. The amount fraudulently alleged destroyed, $100,813.16, is liable to increase by further discovery of sales of surcharged stamps subsequent to August 31. The present figure represents the absolute minimum of fraud. Adding to this the debit balance on the formal account, $30,600.73, makes a total deficit of $131,413.89.

BOX RENTS.

Date.	Amount.	Remarks.
1899.		NOTE.—Postage on second-class matter has been accounted for, since Jan. 1, 1899, by the use of ordinary postage stamps, and not by cash collections for same. Prior to receipt of postage-due stamps, collections on account of postage-due matter were accounted for by the use of ordinary postage stamps in lieu thereof.

Copy of order of director-general appointing commission to destroy surcharged stamps.

No. 65.] OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, September 11, 1899.

Ordered, That a commission be, and is hereby, appointed, consisting of C. F. W. Neely, chief of the bureau of finance, chairman; W. H. Reeves, assistant auditor for the department of posts, and Delano Marfield, chief of the bureau of registration, with directions to proceed at once to count up the old surcharged United States postage stamps now on hand, which are of no value, by reason of the new Cuban postage stamps being put in use on the island of Cuba.

The commission will reserve a sufficient number of each denomination of surcharged stamps to meet the requests of stamp collectors. The remainder they will proceed to destroy by burning, and make full report thereon to the director-general.

E. G. RATHBONE,
Director-General.

EXHIBIT 19.

Copy of testimony of Director-General Rathbone, also additional statement, together with statement of Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 19, 1900.

Attached hereto is an additional statement made June 26, 1900, by E. G. Rathbone, after he had read the testimony as taken down herein (Exhibit 19). Most of the corrections are immaterial.

The change suggested in the first paragraph of the additional statement, I believe, is correct.

The suggested change in the second paragraph is correct.

The change suggested on page 120 is correct.

The first change suggested on page 122 is not exactly correct. His answer was "by myself officially." The stenographer mistook the word "officially" for "family."

The second change suggested on page 122 should not be made. As I remember, the stenographer took the answer as it was given. I have a clear recollection of his stating "every country."

The suggested change on page 141, as I remember, is correct.

J. L. BRISTOW,
Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENT OF E. G. RATHBONE IN RESPONSE TO QUESTIONS OF ACTING DIRECTOR-GENERAL OF POSTS, JUNE 26, 1900.

On page 114, last answer from bottom, I am made to say, "I do not think this was put forward as a proposition." The words "do not" should be eliminated, making it read, "I think this was put forward as a proposition."

Page 119, question 2 from the top, General Bristow is made to say, "Is this warrant, rendered by Mr. Wilmot, authorized by you?" It should read, "Is this account, rendered by Mr. Wilmot, authorized by you?"

Page 119, last answer, which says, "That question was asked me by the auditor * * * ," is wholly irrelevant, and I did not intend to say anything of the kind. I was asked why I did not turn the money back to Reeves on this. I will say in answer to the question that when you asked me why I turned unexpended money back through the auditor, I can only say that I thought at the time that that was the proper way to get it on record. I turned money back in this way several times; at one time I turned back $600 or $700.

Page 120, twelfth question, reads: "Here is a receipt given by yourself for 131 meals for 7 days." The words "given by yourself" should be stricken out, because it is not in accordance with the facts.

Page 122, in the seventh answer from the top of the page, I am made to say, in response to a question as to whom certain rooms were occupied by, as follows: "By myself and family; it was a suite of rooms." The words "and family" should be eliminated, so as to read "By myself; it was a suite of rooms."

Page 122, last answer, I am made to say, "Because it is the rule of every country to clothe their coachman and footman." It should read. "Because it is the rule of 'the' country * * * ." In the third answer from the top, page 123, which is recorded "yes," I desire to add "I so understood it."

On page 128, in the third answer from the bottom, I am made to say, "I am sorry to say they were not." I intended and desire to say, "I am sorry to say that all of them were not."

Page 129, last answer, I am made to say, "We had a quantity of stamps in boxes for Military Station No. 10." It should read "at Military Station No. 10."

On page 136, in the second answer, I am made to say, "No, I remember of his talking to me several times after this thing was discussed." The word "discovered" should be used instead of "discussed." In the last line of the same question it reads, "It put him in a position, for he was out the money." The word "where" should be substituted for the word "for," so as to read, "it put him in a position where he was out the money."

Page 138, in the sixth answer, I am made to say, " * * * and I advised him in substance to let the matter rest until I got back." Those words should be cut out of the answer.

On page 141, in the third answer, which reads, "You must bear in mind that they were honest men," etc., it should read, "They were presumably honest men."

Page 143, third answer, I am made to say, "I know that we had a job with the Journal," etc. It should read, "I know that we had bids from the Journal," etc.

I desire to make a part of this statement, and ask that copies be attached hereto of my letters of February 8 and April 25, 1900, to the Postmaster-General.

I also desire to have made a part of this statement copy of my personal letter to the Postmaster-General of March 30, 1899, concerning the matter of assisting Madam Serafina Moliner de Jorrin in getting certain bric-a-brac from Washington to Cuba.

It is a matter of regret to me that the authorities in Washington have not been afforded an opportunity to become familiar with the operations of the Department here in building a postal service from the foundation up, enabling them to know of the difficulties that were encountered and overcome. I had hoped to have had an opportunity to go over the whole matter very carefully with General Bristow before it became necessary for him to leave for the States.

I wish to renew my request, made some two weeks ago in writing, to be furnished copies of monthly estimates and Auditor's reports since July 1, 1899. These are essential to me in making answer to numerous suspensions and disallowances made by the Auditor of items of expense.

D. J. SHOOK, Stenographer.

STATEMENT OF THE LATE DIRECTOR-GENERAL OF POSTS, E. G. RATHBONE, IN RESPONSE TO QUESTIONS BY ACTING DIRECTOR-GENERAL OF POSTS J. L. BRISTOW, IN THE LATTER'S OFFICE, JUNE 20, 1900.

General BRISTOW:

Q. General, when were you appointed director-general of posts?—A. In December, 1898.

Q. What was your compensation?—A. Four thousand dollars.

Q. When was any additional allowance made other than the $4,000?—A. In January, 1899.

Q. When did it date from?—A. January 1, as I remember. You have the records here.

Q. How came the additional allowance to be made?—A. I don't recollect.

Q. What was the aditional allowance?—A. Five dollars per diem.

Q. What was the purpose of that per diem? That is, why was it allowed?—A. I suppose because they thought my salary was too small. You have the letter on file here, which speaks for itself.

Q. Was there any preliminary conversation between you and the Postmaster-General in regard to it, other than what the correspondence shows?—A. No. I did not see the Postmaster-General from the latter part of December until March. There had been no personal conversation.

Q. The correspondence between you and him would show the reasons for this additional allowance, would it not?—A. I do not know what the correspondence shows; I have not looked at it.

Q. What I am trying to get at is what you understood this additional allowance of $5 per diem was made for?—A. I understood it to be an additional compensation.

Q. Why was it made as a per diem allowance instead of an increase in salary?—A. I do not know.

Q. When was your salary increased above the $4,000, General?—A. I do not recall the date. The record will speak for that.

Q. You speak of the records showing for themselves. Is that a copy of the original order making your appointment [shows copy of letter]?—A. I do not know whether it is or not; I presume it is.

Q. In this order your compensation is fixed at $4,000 per annum; that was your understanding as to the amount?—A. Yes.

Q. According to this letter book (No. 1), official correspondence, on January 23, 1899, you wrote the Postmaster-General a letter beginning as follows: "Referring to the matter of my personal expenses, which I requested be paid and which you stated we would take up later, I wish to renew my request that I be allowed my actual necessary expenses. I believe this but right, just, and fair, as I am subject to extraordinary expenses here."—A. Is that letter personal and unofficial?

Q. It is marked "Personal and unofficial." That was a request on your part for an allowance for expenses, was it not, General?—A. It seems so, from what you read.

Q. In response to that letter the Postmaster-General wrote you this letter under date of January 30, didn't he? [Shows letter.]—A. Yes. I request that an official copy of the letter of January 30, 1899, from the Postmaster-General to myself, granting an allowance of $5 per diem, be furnished me.

Q. All right. Now, in this letter referred to, the Postmaster-General states that in addition to your salary an allowance of $5 per diem for expenses shall be made.—A. And he states further in the letter: "While the amount is not sufficient to cover all your expenses, it is believed that as a practical addition to your salary it makes a fair compensation."

Q. What is your understanding of that letter?—A. That I be allowed a per diem of $5 in addition to my salary of $4,000.

Q. Why was that additional allowance made?—A. The Postmaster-General states expressly in his letter why it was made.

Q. Do you understand that it was to cover expenses or to be an additional salary irrespective of your expenses?—A. I understand just what the letter states. I consider it as meaning exactly what it says, as I just read: "While the amount is not sufficient to cover all your expenses, it is believed that as a practical addition to your salary it makes a fair compensation."

Q. You do not answer what I want to get at. What I would like to know is whether you considered this allowance as an additional salary, irrespective of expenses, or as an additional compensation because of the expenses that you were under here—to cover those expenses, in a measure?—A. I considered it a temporary arrangement to meet the then present emergency.

Q. What was the emergency you referred to there, General?—A. The letters that you have cited explain it.

Q. The letter of January 23, 1899—that is the only one I referred to—is that it? [Shows letter.]—A. Yes. If you have in your possession or if there exists any official communication or communications rescinding the provisions of the letter of the Postmaster-General dated January 30, 1899, I will thank you to give me authentic copies of such official communications.

Q. All right. General, I find here, under date of June 19, this letter from the Postmaster-General. [Shows letter.] Is that in answer to a letter you had written him in regard to additional salary or compensation?—A. I do not know. In this connection should be considered all of the unofficial and personal correspondence between the Postmaster-General and myself relating to expenses, per diems, salaries, etc., and I will thank you to furnish me certified copies of them.

Q. You mean your own salary, of course, and not the salaries of other people in the Department.—A. Yes.

Q. The clause of this letter which reads as follows, General: "We thought it should all be treated as salary, rather than fix a less salary with allowance which would bring it up to that amount." Did you understand that with the salary fixed at $6,500 the per diem of $5 would cease?—A. That letter was written pending negotiations, and I repeat my request to be furnished with authentic copies of personal and unofficial letters between the Postmaster-General and myself regarding this matter.

Q. Did you understand from this letter that if your salary was fixed at $6,500 per annum the $5 per diem would cease?—A. I do not think that this was put forward as a proposition, because he says in the letter from which you have been reading that "If this is satisfactory to you I will issue order to change your salary, to be paid out of the postal revenues of Cuba."

Q. Did you ever express any dissatisfaction with the provisions of this letter referred to?—A. I think you will find in the correspondence that I stated in substance to the Postmaster-General that I could not do what was expected of me in the matter of entertaining under that arrangement.

Q. Here is a letter from the Postmaster-General, dated July 8, in which he refers to the renting of a house. What is your understanding of the matter of compensation and the provisions for a house for you?—A. My understanding was that a proper official residence for the purpose of entertaining was to be furnished me.

Q. And that was to be an additional allowance over and above your salary of $6,500?—A. The letter speaks for itself.

Q. What I want is your understanding, General.—A. My understanding was that the government, the insular government of the island of Cuba, was to pay for the rent and maintenance of the official residence. That is specifically stated in the official correspondence.

Q. And that was in the nature of an allowance over and above your salary, was it, General?—A. I do not know whether you would call it an allowance or not.

Q. That is what is referred to in the cablegram, is it not?—A. It speaks for itself.

Q. The cablegram referred to in my questions reads as follows: "Will make full allowance for house besides salary. Particulars mailed. (Signed) Postgen." Any other allowance except this for house spoken of, over and above your salary of $6,500?—A. I do not recall now. I was allowed a carriage, equipment, coachman, and interpreter.

Q. That was a personal allowance authorized by the Postmaster-General?—A. Yes; in March, 1899, personally, in Habana.

Q. What record was ever made of that?—A. Nothing that I know of.

Q. How can a personal allowance be made by one public official to another without some record being made?—A. There have been a good many things done on the island of Cuba during the early days of the American occupation and up to date that have not been made the subject of written official order. The business could not, under the condition of things, have been conducted in that way, and it has not been conducted in that way in all particulars.

Q. Are there any reasons why this allowance you speak of by the Postmaster-General could not have been made a matter of record?—A. I suppose it could have been.

Q. Well, why was it not?—A. You better ask the Postmaster-General. The carriage and equipment was procured about the time he was here. He knew of it, and approved it personally to me. If it was improper, why didn't he tell me so at the time? We talked about it, and it was considered a proper thing to do in the interest of maintaining the official position which I held. The Postmaster-General knew of my acquiring the carriage and harness and of my borrowing the team (borrowing, you might say) from the military authorities.

Q. How did he know of this?—A. Because he was in Habana in March, 1899; saw the team and carriage, used it sometimes by himself and sometimes in connection with myself. I told him all about it—what I paid for it, and my reasons for doing it—and he approved it.

Q. That was in person and not by any written correspondence?—A. Yes.

Q. Here is a letter of December 19 from the Postmaster-General. [Shows letter].—A. I received that letter.

Q. That letter fixed your salary at $6,500 per annum, did it not?—A. Yes.

Q. Independent of the provisions for a house?—A. That would seem to indicate that the house had already been provided for. I ask your consideration of it.

Q. It seems that the War Department and the Postmaster-General understood that they had arranged for the house for you. This letter refers to personal conference and personal communications respecting your compensation as director-general of posts of Cuba. That would seem to indicate that he desired the personal negotiations respecting your personal compensation should be made a part of the record, would it not?—A. I do not think so.

Q. General, what salary have you drawn—salary, per diem, etc.—since you have been director-general?—A. I do not know; I never figured it up.

Q. How long did you draw a salary of $4,000 and $5 per diem?—A. The records tell that story.

Q. Did you draw a salary—per diem, after your salary was fixed at $6,500?—A. Yes; I thought I was entitled to it, and I still think so, up to the time I received my last pay, which I think was the 1st of May, and it seems that others thought so.

MISCELLANEOUS EXPENDITURES.

Q. It appears from the records, General, that you have drawn quite a good deal of money for miscellaneous and incidental expenses in traveling—a trip around the island made in 1899, in April, and a trip to the United States made in May, your expenses being charged to the postal revenues, and you were reimbursed from those revenues. Do you think that you were entitled to expenses over and above the per diem allowance of $5?—A. Yes.

Q. Why do you think that you were entitled to this expense?—A. Because they were traveling expenses.

Q. Were those trips made on official business? A trip around the island—was that official? A trip to the United States—was that on official business; what official business did you have there at that time?—A. Well, I could hardly recite everything which I did; but I can tell you one thing which ought to be sufficient of itself, although I did many other things. The Assistant Attorney-General for the Post-Office Department and myself prepared what is now the postal code of the island, under the direction of the Postmaster-General.

Q. You went to the United States for that purpose, did you?—A. Yes; and others.

Q. Was that the postal code which you have here now?—A. Yes.

Q. I see, also, that you made a trip to Cincinnati, Ohio. Was that an official trip? What official business did you have there?—A. I do not just recall now; I do not remember what official trips I made to different places; there have been so many things I had to see to that I do not remember; perhaps it was in connection with lock boxes.

Q. Did you make the contract with the Indianapolis firm for lock boxes?—A. My recollection is, and I speak only from recollection, that we invited proposals from different firms to supply that sort of material; with such firms as the Keyless, Yale, Town, and Corbin, and my recollection is that the Keyless was the lowest.

Q. You negotiated the contract, then, after the bids were received?—A. I do not know that I did; someone did. I suppose representation was made to me that the Keyless was the best; I had to depend on other people a great deal; I could not do everything myself.

Q. What I wanted to get at was whether you gave it personal attention or not.—A. I do not know whether I did or not; the records of the Department should speak for that.

Q. You do not remember the official business you had at Cincinnati?—A. I do not.

Q. I notice also that you were at Hamilton, Ohio. You were there on official business, so your expense account shows.—A. Was I at Hamilton, Ohio? I do not recollect.

Q. Did you have official business there?—A. I do not recall; I can not recollect all details. In connection with your question to me about written official orders in each instance, and pertaining to official acts of mine as director-general, I want to say this, that in very many instances, and I can recall one which I will use as an illustration of what I mean: When the Postmaster-General was here in March, 1899, we discussed at considerable length the matter of compensation to postmasters, and we agreed, after a thorough discussion, that I should fix the salaries arbitrarily for the present. I did not stop to ask him to give me a written order. I carried out his wishes, desires, and directions in the matter. This is only one of many instances which I at this time recall. When the time came we took up the question of classifying the offices on the island and of regulating salaries, based somewhat on the system in vogue in the United States. That classification scheme was on my desk when I left the office on May 19, and we were about to put something of that sort into effect. There were no written orders from the Postmaster-General or any other authority concerning the matter, except that contained in the postal code.

Q. That postal code was promulgated by the Postmaster-General?—A. I think it was an order of the President, promulgated by the Secretary of War——

Q. It was signed by the Postmaster-General?—A. Yes.

Q. So there is no question as to your authority here to fix salaries of postmasters, or other subordinates, as I understand it?—A. I think not, under that code.

Q. Is it not a fact, General, that you had no official business at Hamilton, Ohio; was you not there attending to personal business in lawsuits, etc.?—A. I do not recall; I do not remember.

Q. Were you not a witness there in court in May?—A. I don't recall; the records there will speak.

Q. Is it not a fact that you were there as a witness for three or four days?—A. I do not remember what I was there for.

Q. And didn't you go up from Cincinnati to Hamilton every day to attend these lawsuits, and come back in the afternoon?—A. I do not recall.

Q. You don't remember any official business you had in Cincinnati or Hamilton at that time?—A. I have answered that.

Q. I just want a statement of any official business you had out there.—A. I can only recall at this time one particular thing that I did on that trip; that is classifying the postal code. I have no doubt but that I did many other things of an official nature while in the States.

Q. Did your trip to Cincinnati or Hamilton have anything to do with the postal code?—A. I do not know that it did.

Q. What I wanted, General, was, do you remember of any official business of any character that you had in Cincinnati or Hamilton?—A. I don't recall.

Q. This postal code that you speak of, General, was that prepared previous to your visit to the United States?—A. No.

Q. Was it prepared by you in Washington in connection with the Assistant Attorney-General for the Post-Office Department?—A. Mr. Barrett and I did most of the work on it.

Q. Had there been anything done on it before?—A. Not as to putting it in shape to fit the conditions here on the island, that I know of.

Q. What were your expenses on this trip about which we have been speaking?—A. I do not know. My secretary, Mr. Wilmot, was with me, and he acted as sort of paymaster and cashier, paid our expenses, and rendered an account for me.

Q. Here is a copy of the voucher that was sent to me by the Auditor, purporting to show an account of your expenses during that trip. Is that the voucher which you filed for which you were to be reimbursed [shows voucher]?—A. I don't know.

Q. That is given us as a copy of the voucher you filed for expenses upon that trip by the auditor. From those items there do you think it is what it purports to be?—A. You say it purports to be a copy of a voucher for an expense account I rendered. Let me ask you the object of this interview. I have been notified by the auditor of disallowances made. I have called on you for records, copies of records, and other documents which are vitally essential to me in answering the auditor, and you have not furnished them to me. I don't speak of this complainingly, but they are actually essential. I called upon you in writing to give me copies of certain things, and until I get them I can not make intelligent answer. I ask you, now that you are going away, to furnish me with all that is necessary and essential to me in this matter, and give me access to the records of the department, that I may have a chance to make a proper showing. Of course, I do not think that you, or any one, intend to deprive me of the use of records and books and papers which are so essential to my making an intelligent answer to these disallowances by the auditor. Let me say, further, that if you apply the same rigid rules of auditing and accounts that obtain in the States to all of the accounts of the island of Cuba since American occupancy, there will be a great many disallowances. I do not see how it is possible to do it. I came down here in an emergency. The country had just emerged from the chaos of war, and we had to do a great many things which were right and proper to which you could not reasonably apply the rigid rules of auditing and accounting that obtain in the various departments of the United States. This should be borne in mind in all this overhauling, and not only the accounts of the postal department, but all other departments of the island.

Q. Is that the voucher which you filed for reimbursement of your expenses on your trip to the United States [shows voucher]?—A. This seems to be an account rendered by Mr. Wilmot of the expenses of the trip, sworn to by him and passed on by the auditor over a year ago.

Q. That warrant there is one that you drew and got the money for? That is your signature on the back?—A. Yes.

Q. That is the warrant that paid the expenses of your trip to the United States?—A. I do not know.

Q. What do you think about it? Can not you tell from the voucher?—A. (After examination.) I do not know whether that is the warrant or not. It seems to be a warrant drawn by me and indorsed by me, but it does not say what it is for. Prima facie, it looks as though that was it.

Q. Is this warrant rendered by Mr. Wilmot authorized by you?—A. I do not remember of authorizing him or not authorizing him.

Q. Did you not say that he was the cashier, kept a record of the expenses and rendered account? Is this the account that he rendered?—A. I presume it is; it seems to be. I judge that is the one.

Q. You got the money on that warrant, did you, General?—A. I don't know whether I got it or not.

Q. Is it your custom to sign warrants on the back that way and not get the money on them?—A. It is not my custom; I don't know what was done in that case.

Q. That is to say, you might have signed the warrant in that way and not have gotten the money on it?—A. Prima facie, it looks as though the warrant had been drawn and the money turned over to Mr. Wilmot; that is the way it looks on the face.

Q. What do you think the warrant was drawn for? You think it was drawn for that purpose, don't you?—A. It looks as though it was, but I can not remember instances of that kind over a year. My recollection is that my practice was to turn the money over to Mr. Wilmot when we were traveling together, and he paid the bills and kept the accounts and rendered bills.

Q. (Shows two warrants.) Now, General, here is a warrant the same date as that and for the same amount, $500.—A. I do not know what this means, but my guess would be this, that that warrant was probably cashed here to start out with, and this other warrant Mr. Wilmot put in his pocket, and when that was exhausted this was used. I think I remember of General Heath sending out and getting it cashed for me, and when I returned the unexpended amount was turned back.

Q. The auditor advises me that no part of this was ever turned back.—A. Is that so?

(Wilmot called in.)

General BRISTOW. Mr. Wilmot, what became of the $500 drawn on this warrant?

Mr. WILMOT. I do not know. I remember of this warrant being cashed, but I don't remember anything more about it.

General RATHBONE. I remember of getting it cashed and turning back the money

General BRISTOW. The $74 returned on the other warrant is accounted for, but the auditor says there is no record of any part of this warrant having been returned. Why did you turn the money back to Reeves on this?—A. That question was asked me by the auditor, and I do not know as I answered it, except that that was the proper way to get it on record. I turned back money in this way several times. I turned $600 or $700 back in this way at one time.

Q. This second warrant of $500 that was cashed at Washington by Mr. Merchant, the disbursing officer there, and signed by yourself and First Assistant Postmaster-General Perry S. Heath, seems to be for expenses upon this trip concerning which we have been talking, though the first warrant seems to have covered the entire expense, and $74 remained, which was turned back to the auditor. What became of the money which you received on this second warrant of $500?—A. Whatever balance there was left from the two warrants I am sure was turned back to the auditor, but I can not put my hand on the evidence of it at this time. I have an indistinct recollection of turning back the money, but whether I took a receipt or not I am unable to state at this time.

Q. You would not turn back $500 without taking a receipt for it, would you?—A. I may have done so, depending upon the honesty of others.

Q. The auditor advises me that no part of this was ever accounted for. Will you endeavor to furnish me with a receipt or some evidence that this was turned back?—A. Yes; I will do the best I can.

Q. You made an official trip around the island, did you not, in April, 1899?—A. Yes.

Q. Who accompanied you on that trip?—A. My secretary, Mr. Wilmot, my interpreter, and my wife and son. There was also a newspaper woman accompanied us as far as Santiago, and then left us.

Q. Were the expenses of the entire party paid from the postal revenues?—A. No, sir; just my official party.

Q. Who constituted your official party?—A. My secretary, my interpreter, and myself.

Q. Is that the voucher stating the expense of the trip referred to? [exhibits voucher]—A. This seems to be a statement of expenditures by Mr. Wilmot.

Q. Did he act as your cashier on this trip?—A. I think he did; he swears to it himself that he was the cashier. I recall an instance of this kind, that he took in his pocket an extra warrant for $500 and lost it, and that he immediately telegraphed up to stop payment on it.

Q. This warrant, however, represents money drawn for the purpose of paying these bills?—A. I do not know what it represents.

Q. What do you think it represents?—A. It was drawn to Wilmot, as cashier. It looks, prima facie, as though it was for the purpose of paying the expenditures down there.

Q. There seems to be a balance returned of $219. Do you know anything about it?—A. I do not recall it. I relied upon my secretary to take charge of the matter.

Q. Here is a receipt given by yourself for 131 meals for seven days. Three people would not eat 131 meals in seven days, would they, General?—A. I don't know; you better ask Mr. Wilmot; he knows more about that than I do.

Q. Mr. Wilmot, how about this—131 meals for seven days, on transport?—A. Well, there was simply 131 meals.

Q. How many people did that represent—the 131 meals?—A. That represented four people.

Q. How many meals did you eat a day?—A. Four—three meals and a lunch.

Q. Well, let us see how many meals that would be. Seven days, 4 meals per day, equals 28 meals for one, and four times 28 equals 112 meals for the four. Is it not a fact that you included more than four persons?

Mr. WILMOT. No, sir; it may have been eight days, and figuring at eight days it would be 128 meals. I remember the bill checked up all right when it was paid.

General BRISTOW. What time did you leave Santiago?

Mr. WILMOT. At noon.

Q. Where did you get off the boat?—A. At Habana.

Q. What time did you get to Habana?—A. The morning of the 20th.

Q. How came this receipt to be dated the 19th?—A. It may have been the morning of the 19th that we arrived.

Q. Considering it the 19th, as this record shows, how will you account for the 131 meals for the four persons? Did you not include the entire party? That makes it come out straighter.—A. No.

General BRISTOW. Here is a warrant, General, that you referred to a while ago.

A. Which one is that?

Q. The one you had issued in lieu of the one lost by Mr. Wilmot.

General RATHBONE (after examining warrant) (to Mr. Wilmot). Why should that have been issued?

Mr. WILMOT. I can not say why.

General BRISTOW. The auditor says that was issued and paid and no account rendered.

General RATHBONE. Warrants were often brought to me in big bunches, and I could not stop to examine each one before signing it; and that one seems to have been issued June 30, three months after the warrant was lost. I can see no reason in the world why that should have been issued, and it was issued without my knowledge, although it bears my signature. Mr. Wilmot, why did you make this statement attached to this certificate?

Mr. WILMOT. I was requested to make that statement in the presence of Dr. Reeves and yourself. My recollection is that I made that statement considerably after June 30. I think the reason given to date it June 30 was so that it would appear on the records of the last fiscal year. That is my recollection. He brought up the matter, that that statement should appear, and that is the reason I made it.

General BRISTOW. General, what became of the money for this warrant, issued in lieu of No. 1204, which Mr. Wilmot lost on that trip?

A. I have no idea. I have no knowledge even of the issuance of the warrant, although it was evidently issued by me, because it bears my signature. It was probably laid down before me for signature with a lot of others, and my attention was not called to it, and I signed it.

Q. This warrant is drawn to your own order, General. It is countersigned by Reeves and initialed by Reeves. I notice in some of the other warrants that one is drawn by one person and another by another. Is it not possible that the auditor's records will show the date that the warrant was actually written up? It was paid on July 5, and the auditor has informed us that no accounting has ever been made of this $500.—A. I do not know anything about it.

Q. This is a voucher for expenses rendered on a trip made to the United States in October and November, 1899. Was that trip made on official business?—A. I refer you to the Postmaster-General. I went there on his orders.

Q. Did the Postmaster-General direct you to take your secretary with you?—A. No, sir.

Q. I see by this voucher that you spent three days in New York before going to Washington after you arrived there. Were you in New York on official business at that time?—A. I was sick and in telegraphic communication with the Postmaster-General. I came very nearly dying there, so my physician told me.

Q. What do those extra meals mean there, General, in that hotel bill?—A. I suppose they mean meals brought up to my room while I was sick; that is what I take them to be.

Q. I see you made a trip to Cleveland, Ohio. Was that an official trip?—A. I refer you to the Postmaster-General.

Q. I see that you were in Washington eight days. Were you there on official business at that time?—A. Yes; in conference with the Postmaster-General and other officials of the Department.

Q. I see that you remained at New York eight days after you left Washington. Were you detained there on official business?—A. Yes; I had official business there; I had to wait for a steamer.

Q. I notice that your hotel bill at the Empire Hotel is as follows: Rooms, $97.50. How many rooms did you occupy?—A. Three, and possibly four; I think I had four all the time.

Q. How much per day did you pay for these rooms?—A. I do not know.

Q. Were those rooms occupied officially?—A. By myself and family; it was a suite of rooms.

Q. I notice your board bill for those eight days aggregates $97; that is, your personal bill, exclusive of Mr. Wilmot's. Did you pay that amount for your own meals?—A. I think so.

Q. Twelve dollars a day. You must have a good appetite, General. Livery $16 during that time. What was that livery for?—A. I suppose I used it going down town, etc.; I made several trips down town.

Q. Is it not a fact that this hotel bill during eight days, aggregating $236, was the board of yourself, wife, and child?—A. No, sir; their bill was separate and distinct.

Q. And your own personal expenses there was $236 (hotel), as shown by these vouchers, for the eight days?—A. I do not know; Mr. Wilmot was the bookkeeper and cashier.

Q. Mr. Wilmot, how about that?

Mr. WILMOT. That is only one bill; I know Mrs. Rathbone's bill ran away up.

Q. On this trip, General, you seem to have drawn $1,500 and returned $673.23. Why did you return that to Reeves?—A. Because I supposed that was the proper place to return it. He in turn would turn it over to Neely, and he should have put it into the fund; that was the proper way to do it. Of course now it is a case of "hind sight." You can see many things now that you could not see then.

Q. This duplicate warrant that we spoke of, that was paid on July 5 and drawn on June 30 for $500, what became of that money?—A. You mean the one that was issued in lieu of the one which was lost?

Q. Yes.—A. I don't know; I have no recollection of signing the warrant. It must have been passed under my hand and my signature obtained without my knowledge. Of this I am sure. I would not have signed it had I known its true character.

Q. I notice in the numerous suspensions and disallowances which the auditor has made that there are a number of items for boots for the coachman, suits for the coachman ranging from $15 to $35 each. Do you think that the clothing of the coachman is a legitimate expenditure against the revenues of the postal service?—A. I do.

Q. Why should the coachman be furnished with clothing any more than the mail carriers or postmasters?—A. Because it is the rule of every country to clothe their coachmen and footmen.

Q. At the expense of the Government?—A. Yes; and I think you will find, I am sure you will, unless it is covered up some way, very many coachmen's suits, footmen's suits, boots, rain coats, and other paraphernalia that is necessary for them that have been paid for out of the insular funds. I am not guessing. I know what I am talking about. I want to say that it is the custom of this country.

Q. It is not the custom of the United States officials, is it?—A. I do not know. I want to say further in this connection—I dislike to say it, but you this morning seemed to think that I ought to make the statement—that the matter of uniforming the coachman and interpreter (who afterwards became known as a footman, but who in fact was an interpreter) was done at the suggestion of the Postmaster-General when he was here in 1899.

Q. Do I understand you to say that the Postmaster-General suggested to you that you uniform your coachman and footman and pay for that out of the postal revenues?—A. Yes.

Q. Where did that conversation occur?—A. Driving in the carriage in Habana. Both the coachman and the interpreter were on the box at the time. We were trying to make our service distinctive and popular, to the end that we might not only give the Cubans a good postal service, but to leave our impress upon the people.

Q. What kind of an impress did you want to leave, General?—A. A good one; a favorable one. And in that connection you should know, and probably do, that in countries like this it is the proper thing for officials to live in a way that would not be recognized in a country like our own. They expect a great deal of grandeur or display, more so than they do in our country.

Q. When you first came here you boarded where, General?—A. At the Inglaterra Hotel.

Q. After you left the Inglaterra where did you board?—A. At Cerro.

Q. With whom did you board at Cerro?—A. With Madam Jorrin.

Q. What board did you pay there for yourself and family?—A. I do not recall.

Q. I notice in the vouchers here which have been referred to us by the auditor for investigation that there is an expenditure for office of $75 per month. What was that office?—A. An office about a third larger than this room.

Q. Where was it?—A. At my residence.

Q. What was the occasion for an office at the residence?—A. Because a great many people came to me there by night. You have no idea of the number of people who follow up a man here who has places or positions to give. I used the room as a semiofficial office. Later I gave it up.

Q. You never had an office after you left there, then?—A. Not except the one here. Colonel Bliss was there at the same time, and he thought of taking a room just across from me for his office, but he hesitated on account of the price; she wanted too much for it.

Q. Why did the occasion for an office cease after you left there, General?—A. I went back to the Inglaterra again, where I used the corridor for an office.

Q. I notice a good many vouchers for $110 in the expenditures to Madam Jorrin by yourself for office, coachman's room, etc.—A. It was a stable, carriage house, and coachman's room right in the house. You saw it, and the Postmaster-General saw it, in March, 1899.

Q. That was Madam Jorrin's stable that you had rented at $110 per month?—A. You knew about it at the time.

General BRISTOW. No; I beg your pardon. I did not know anything about it.

Q. It also appears that your personal bill in these vouchers was $195 per month; a total of $305; $195 personally that seems to be paid for yourself, and warrant for $110. What did that personal bill for $195 represent?—A. I do not recall it. Why should my personal bills be in with the vouchers?

Q. It seems to be a statement that was made to you, and that much was deducted as personal, while the rest, $110, was paid on vouchers. What arrangement did you have with her in regard to board for yourself and family, and this coachman, footman, etc.?—A. The coachman and interpreter (not a footman) had some personal arrangements with her themselves; I do not know what. I may have known at the time, but it does not occur to me now.

Q. Did you pay $120 per month for board for yourself and wife?—A. I do not remember.

Q. And $75 for the maid and boy?—A. I don't recall what I did pay. I may have something at the house that will throw some light on it.

Q. I notice in the correspondence here that you wrote a letter to Inspector Erwin, of which this letter handed you is a copy, to what does that refer?—A. I don't know.

Q. Here is another to P. H. Bristow, who was your chief clerk at that time; perhaps that will recall it.—A. What is this Porto Rico business?

Q. I do not know.—A. I presume that this has reference to the matter of bringing down some bric-a-brac, pictures, furniture, etc., belonging to Madam Jorrin, that was sent away from the island under the protection of General Lee before the bombardment. I had talked with the Postmaster-General—and I think you will find letters on file here in the matter—about trying to help her get that back here without so much cost to her. She was a prominent Cuban woman and we were trying to help her, and it was finally arranged so that the property was sent down here in my name on United States transport. The Postmaster-General knows about it. The property was in Washington.

Q. Did you have it brought in your name to the department of posts?—A. I do not recall the particulars now. I can tell you another thing still later. The quartermaster brought some more things down for her in the same way. I was simply trying to help a worthy prominent Cuban woman who had been a patriot during the war—spent her time and money in taking care of the reconcentrados. When I went to her house to live, there were several reconcentrados quartered in her stable which she had cared for.

Q. Referring again to the per diem, General, there is a matter that I forgot. You seem to have had that copy made for Colonel Burton, so Mr. Wilmot advises me [shows copy of letter].—A. I don't remember. That is a copy of a letter of June 19. I ask you to furnish me with an official, authentic copy of an official letter from the Postmaster-General, dated October 2, 1899, in response to my letter of the 26th of September, in which I advised him that I had succeeded in renting an official residence.

Q. Why did you stop there in having a copy of that letter made [shows stars on bottom of copy]?—A. I do not recall having a copy made.

Q. Mr. Wilmot, did you not state to me that you made that copy—so much of it—of this letter at General Rathbone's request, for Colonel Burton?

Mr. WILMOT. That is my recollection. It seems to me that that copy was made when Colonel Burton first came in here preparatory to taking up the investigation. I think the day that he got the contracts for the house, the official residence, he asked for certain figures, and that copy was made at the request of General Rathbone. I think the letter was handed me in the presence of Colonel Burton.

Q. Do you recollect anything about it, General?—A. No, sir. I want to request that official copies of the leases for the official residence and the furniture be furnished me at the earliest practicable date.

Q. By what authority did you purchase furniture for the house?—A. By authority vested in me in the postal code, and by the authority vested in me by the cablegram of General Corbin to the governor-general of about last July. And it was the evident purpose and intention of those in authority in the States to give me an official residence for the purpose of entertaining; and if you will give me official copies, which you stated you would, and as I believe you will, of my correspondence with the Postmaster-General, of personal, unofficial, and official, I can demonstrate it. To fix up an official residence did not mean a house without any furnishings, and you will find in my correspondence with the Postmaster-General—the correspondence will show that I was endeavoring to rent a furnished house. It would be unreasonable to assume that I would take a house without furnishings and go to an expense of from $3,000 to $5,000 to furnish it myself when I did not have the money to do it with, and would not have done so if I had, because of the uncertainty of the length of time we were to stay here. Now, the facts are that I rented a house partly furnished, of which the Postmaster-General was advised, and the correspondence will show. I bought some things, enough to finish out the furnishing, in order to make it barely habitable. It is a shabby official residence, and I invite you to go out there with me to look at it. There is too much economy practiced. I think I had the right and authority to furnish that house, to buy the furniture and fixtures that were lacking to make it a respectable official residence; and it seems that others concur in that view. And I want to say in connection with all these expenditures that we first had to make a statement of our wants each month in the way of money to run the service to the governor-general and the auditor on specially prepared blanks; that we made those requisitions under classified heads of something like 20 or 30; they were approved by the auditor, the governor-general, passed on by the auditor, and reported to Washington. Therefore they knew about it. The auditor and governor-general passed on all requisitions for money, and the exact line of procedure laid down for them to follow you will find in the President's order of May 8, 1899, promulgated by the Secretary of War on May 11, 1899, entitled "Rules and instructions to carry into effect the Executive orders relating to the military government of the United States in the island of Cuba, etc." In every requisition we made for money we made detailed statements, as far as the governor-general and the auditor required of us; and in that connection I ask you to cause to be brought in here now a copy of one of our requisitions for money which is in the hands of the chief clerk, also a copy of one of the monthly reports of the auditor. Please bring it in; I want to explain it to you. [Exhibit A, herewith.] This requisition seems to be under 38 different heads. This was for the month of April. We were required to make a requisition, and this one is shown under 38 different heads; and that is itemizing it about as fully as was possible without knowing just what the different items would be. So it is very plain that from those requisitions the auditor and the governor-general know what expenditures are contemplated to be made.

Q. Is it not possible, however, for this money to be expended for improper purposes after it is received?—A. I suppose it might be, or a thief might steal it. It has been stated that the authorities in the United States had no knowledge of the expenditures of the department of posts here. Here is a report made by an officer of the War Department, to wit, the assistant auditor of the island of Cuba to the auditor of the island, both War Department officials, a copy of which has been left with me and a copy with the War Department of the United States, as I understand it. It goes on and explains, under classified heads, what the expenditures for the month have been. In this one, which I hold in my hand, is a report for the month of April. It is first stated under twenty classified heads, such as "Miscellaneous salaries," "Department of posts," "Clerks in post-offices," "Printing," "Stationery," "Furniture," "Mail transportation," etc. Then it gives a detailed statement of each item of expenditure, giving the date, the name of the man to whom the money is paid, his rank, designation, and amount paid. That is detailed. Now, it will not do to say that the War Department or the island authorities did not know and have not known of the expenditures of the department of posts, because every month a statement of this kind has been rendered for nearly a year, and the vouchers and pay rolls upon which the payments are based are in the hands of the War Department, to wit, in the hands of the assistant auditor for the island of Cuba, who has been until recently in effect the bookkeeper of the department of posts and the custodian of all its vouchers, pay rolls, etc.

Q. As I understand you, General, a request is made for the money to maintain this department for the month under separate heads, as indicated by Form 01 (Exhibit B, herewith). Now, it would easily be possible for this money, after it is received, to be misappropriated or misspent by the executive officials of the department of posts, would it not?—A. No; because the assistant auditor is supposed to scrutinize every account, pay roll, voucher, etc., that comes into his possession, and he himself draws the warrant—that is, does the mechanical work, all but signing by the director-general.

Q. Is that before payment is made?—A. Yes; therefore there would not be wrong payment, except by derelictness or error on the part of his office.

Q. You hold, then, that if there has been a misappropriation of funds or a misuse of island funds by the department of posts that the War Department is equally at fault?—A. I hold that they were in a position to know of each item of expenditure, and they did know it, because all vouchers, pay rolls, and bills go to them for scrutiny, and are passed on by them before the warrant is made effective by the signature of the director-general.

Q. Did the auditor ever refuse to pay any of the bills which you presented?—A. I can recall several instances where he has brought bills or vouchers back to me to have them put in different form—in proper shape.

Q. Did he ever refuse to pay a bill which you requested or ordered paid?—A. My recollection is, and I may be mistaken about it, that he disallowed a certain item in the special agents' account which I was satisfied in my own mind was right and proper, and he hung off a long time about it. Whether it has been paid or not I do not know.

Q. That is all you recollect now?—A. I recollect several instances where the auditor came to me, but none that I can name specifically, with bills or accounts which he thought were not in proper form—that is, as to form, but not as to substance. I directed Mr. Reeves, when he was chief of the bureau of postal accounts, to bring to me every bill or voucher that was not in proper form—that was not self-explanatory—and I would see that it was put in proper form before being passed. The records of this office will show that I have written him letters on that subject since he has been assistant auditor requesting him to do the same thing. He then being an officer of the War Department, I could not direct, but request.

Q. Did you report regularly to the Postmaster-General the amount of expenditures, or an itemized statement of the expenditures?—A. I think the records will show that I advised the Postmaster-General from time to time. My report shows the expenditures from January 1, 1899, to July 1, 1899. Since that time it was the business of the auditor to make detailed monthly report, such as the one you have before you. I can recall sending one of those reports to the Postmaster-General, and my recollection is that he complimented the manner in which the account was kept.

Q. When did you send that?—A. Within the last three or four months.

Q. Do you remember of having sent more than one?—A. I do not recall. Those expenditures were supposed to be controlled by the military authorities, therefore the reports would be made by one of the military authorities to the Auditor, and he in turn to the War Department, and in that way this office assumes that the Auditor in Washington was advised as to the expenditures.

Q. Referring again to the per diem. Did you and Reeves, the assistant auditor, ever have any consultation as to whether you were entitled to per diem or not after August 1?—A. I am not positive.

Q. Did he ever call in question your right to per diem after your salary was fixed at $6,500?—A. No, sir.

Q. Well, now we will go back to the reorganization of the postal service. I want to take up the subject of the original appointments that were made. Who appointed the officials of the department of posts of Cuba when it was first organized?—A. Their original appointments came very largely from the Post-Office Department—I mean the Americans that came down here.

Q. Were there many of them?—A. Well, I should say, to make a guess, about 150.

Q. What was the character of the appointments made?—A. I think the most of them were appointed as clerks from the New York post-office, and then later I took them on the rolls of the Cuban postal service.

Q. When were they taken on the rolls?—A. I do not recollect.

Q. Who fixed their salaries?—A. Their salaries were fixed by postal authorities in Washington; and the most of them came down claiming per diem, and I had quite a time about it, but finally succeeded in cutting them off. I remember writing the Postmaster-General two letters while on this official trip around the island in 1899 on that subject, and I refer you to copies of those letters. The result was that I cut off per diems and allowed per diems up to a certain time and stopped them at a certain time, the result of which got me in very bad repute with some of the men who came down here claiming from $1.25 to $2 per diem. I think I found one man who was drawing $2,000 and, I think, $6 per diem, or perhaps $5, and when that was cut off there was an unpleasantness. I refer to Mr. Kempner.

Q. Was this cutting off of per diem your own suggestion, or was it suggested from Washington that it be done?—A. I think it was my own suggestion.

Q. Did the President not ask that such allowances be dispensed with?—A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did the Postmaster-General or any of the postal authorities in Washington direct to cut them off, or did they consent for you to do it at your own request?—A. My recollection is that I did it of my own motion. I wrote, as I told you, two letters to the Postmaster-General while on this trip around the island on that subject. I refer you to those letters, dated in April, 1899, in which I took strong grounds, according to my recollection, against the further allowance of per diems. I think you will find, in substance, that I stated that we could get men to serve for $1,400 per annum without per diems. My belief is that the per diems were cut off on my own motion, with probably the knowledge and consent of the Postmaster-General.

Q. Were the salaries of these postal officials fixed by yourself or by the Department in Washington?—A. They were fixed by the Department in Washington when they first came here, and I continued them on the rolls at the salaries named in the States—that is, the most of them. I am speaking generally, not specifically.

Q. Don't you think that the salaries that have been paid the officials of the department of posts have been excessive?—A. I do not.

Q. Why should the salaries be higher for the same class of work in Cuba than in the United States?—A. Because it costs more to live in Cuba—much more.

Q. Do you think it wise, or good administration of the affairs of this island to create a system here and fix high salaries when citizens of the island can be found to do the work equally as well as the Americans at lower salaries?—A. I would say that it was not a good system if citizens of the island could be found to do the work done by the Americans; but bear in mind this, that it has been my policy, and the records of the Department are full of it, to use the Americans as teachers to teach the Cubans, and as fast as they have perfected themselves they have been given the places in most instances. These men were sent down here as experts—supposed to be expert—to teach the Cubans how to run a postal service on an American basis.

Q. Were they experts?—A. I am sorry to say they were not.

Q. Why, then, were they paid the salary of an expert?—A. I will have to refer you to the gentlemen in Washington who fixed their salaries. I can not answer that question.

Q. Did you not continue them at the salaries that were fixed when they came here?—A. At the salaries, yes, but cut off the per diem as soon as I could get around to it. Early in the American occupation it cost much more than it does to-day to live in Cuba, for the reason that the Americans on the island have learned the Cuban ways to some extent, and they have learned not to be imposed upon as much. I presume the time has come, or is near at hand, when these salaries might be greatly reduced, and it was my aim, as I said before, and the records of this Department are full of it, to get this system down to a Cuban basis. Many times have Cubans come to me and said: "Why am I made to work beside an American for $700, $750, or $800," as the case might be, "while the American is getting $1,400?" My answer to that has been in a good many cases that "these Americans are nearer to us; they came here to teach you men how to run a postal system the same as that in the United States, and when you have learned it and when you have made yourselves proficient you will get the positions and the Americans will be retired." That policy has been carried out to the best of my judgment and ability, and a great many Americans have been retired.

Q. You say that a number of these employees sent down here by the Department at Washington were inexperienced and not equipped to teach the Cubans the postal service. Did you report that fact to the Postmaster-General at Washington?—A. Verbally, yes; officially and in writing, I am not certain.

Q. Don't you believe that if you had refused to receive inexperienced and incompetent clerks who had been sent down here that the Postmaster-General would have sustained you in it, if you had given that as a reason?—A. I expect he would, and I did send back a good many for various reasons, largely incompetency. It was difficult to get experienced men. I labored under great disadvantages in this regard and was often embarrassed.

General RATHBONE. I stated to you yesterday that the cutting off of the per diems of the men who were sent down here in the early days of the American occupation was at my own motion, and to substantiate that statement I refer you to a personal letter to the Postmaster-General, written at Santiago de Cuba, April 10, 1899. (See Exhibit C, herewith.)

Q. When did you first meet Mr. Neely, General?—A. In December, 1898, about Christmas time.

Q. Why did you select him as your financial clerk?—A. He drifted into the position in a peculiar sort of way. It was this: On the evening of January 31, 1899, as I recall, Maj. Russell B. Harrison, who was then stationed at Quemados, or Camp Columbia, about 8 or 10 miles from here, came to my rooms at the Inglaterra, and in the presence of several members of the postal commission who were here, asked for some postage stamps. This was in the evening, perhaps 8 or 9 o'clock. We had a quantity of stamps in boxes for Military Station No. 10. Mr. Neely, who happened to be standing by, was requested by me to procure a hatchet and open one of the boxes and give Major Harrison some stamps and get the money for them. As he was about to leave the room I said to him in substance: "By the way, I will put you in charge of these stamps and hold you responsible for their custody." In that way he drifted into the matter of having custody and sale of the stamps without any premeditation or thought before that time on my part.

Q. Had you known him for a long time?—A. I stated to you in answer to previous question that I never saw him until about Christmas time, in December, 1898. He came to me in Hamilton with his letter of appointment to accompany me to Cuba.

Q. What kind of letter of appointment did he have?—A. I can only speak from recollection. The records of the Bureau of Appointments ought to show. I think it was a letter from the Post-Office Department of the United States appointing him as a clerk in the military postal service of Cuba as an attaché of the New York office.

Q. Was he appointed upon your request?—A. No.

Q. Do you know upon whose recommendation he was appointed to the service?—A. I only know this, that Mr. Perry S. Heath, First Assistant Postmaster-General, seemed to want him to have an appointment. He spoke to me about it in Washington the day that the Postmaster-General and I completed our arrangements for me to come to Cuba.

Q. What did he say to you about it?—A. I don't recall the specific language, but it was to the effect that he would like to have him have a place in Cuba.

Q. Have you any letters of indorsement of any kind in his behalf from anyone speaking of his integrity or honesty?—A. I do not know that I have.

Q. Are there any about the Department that you know of?—A. I presume the appointment papers would develop that.

Q. What reason had you to believe that he was an honest man when you put him in charge of these stamps; you say you had not known him but a short time?—A. He was recommended to me by the First Assistant Postmaster-General.

Q. In any other way except just stating that he would like to have him have a position?—A. I do not recall all he said about it. The fact that he asked for him a place in the postal service carried with it the implication that he was an honest man, or he would not have asked for an appointment for Neely in the Cuban postal service. I ask you to get me Neely's files, the appointment papers, and see whether there are any letters of recommendation. [Copies exhibited herewith, marked "Exhibit D."]

Q. You ask for the records of the appointment division of the appointment of Mr. Neely. You have them here. That seems to be a copy of the appointment referred to. Where is the original?—A. I don't know. This can not be a correct copy, because it is headed: "Habana, Cuba, February 6, 1899." I suggest that you get a copy from the letter book in Washington, which will tell the story.

Q. You are certain he was appointed by the Department at Washington before you came to Cuba?—A. I am reasonably certain of that; the records in Washington will show.

Q. Had he been appointed before he came to your place in Hamilton, Ohio?—A. Yes; I think he came there with his letter of appointment in his pocket.

Q. He had been appointed before you had ever seen him?—A. Yes.

Q. There seems to be in these files a letter from the First Assistant Postmaster-General. Did you ever receive that letter [presents letter]?—A. Evidently I did. It is addressed to me at Hamilton, Ohio.

Q. It is dated December 13, 1898. Do you remember whether you received the letter before Neely called upon you with his appointment?—A. No; I do not remember; I probably did, judging from the date. That letter had passed out of my mind, but the substance of it is what I recollect that General Heath said to me. It may be that my recollection is based upon this letter rather than on the conversation in Washington, but I think not.

Q. Did the recommendations that General Heath made of Neely, verbally and by letter, have anything to do with your placing him in this position of special confidence and trust?—A. No, I think not, except so far as it would have a bearing on my mind when I came to cast about me for men to put in "key" positions. It was reasonable for me to presume that Mr. Neely was a very excellent man, from my conversation with General Heath and from that letter. I might add that when Mr. Neely came to me in Hamilton he was accompanied by Fletcher S. Heath, a brother of General Heath, who stated to me in substance that Mr. Neely was a very excellent man, that he had known him a long time—had lived in the same town with him.

Q. Have you ever had any reason to suspect that Neely was not an honest man, up until April of this year?—A. I think not. There were rumors started along in March or April, the result of which was my getting him back from the States and having him "counted up," as the post-office men call it; but I don't know whether there were more rumors about Neely than the other officials in the department. You know, as a post-office official, unfounded rumors often start and gain some currency about a man that are unjust.

Q. Did not Inspectors Letherman and Sullivan state to you in a conversation in May, 1899, that they believed Neely was speculating in Spanish silver and making a profit?—A. I think I recall Letherman saying something of that kind to me, and I directed him to go to the bottom of it.

Q. Did he not state that when they inspected Neely's office they found him $6,000 long, and that that $6,000 in their judgment was money which he had made by speculating in Spanish silver which had come to him as financial clerk of the post-offices throughout the island?—A. No; I have no such recollection. Letherman did state to me in substance that he heard a rumor that Neely had been speculating in Spanish silver, and I asked him to go to the bottom of it and investigate the matter.

Q. Did you ever make further inquiry as to the result of the investigation?—A. I do not recall as he reported anything to me, and therefore I assumed that he found nothing.

Q. It has been stated to me that on the last day that Inspectors Sullivan and Letherman were here they had a conversation with you in which they stated to you that they believed Neely was carrying on transactions which were, at the least, suspicious, with this Spanish silver, and that it would be well for you to look into it carefully.—A. I have no recollection of it. If that was so, why did they not embody it in their report to me of the inspection of Neely's office?

Q. In their report of the inspection of Neely's office they seem to have recommended that blanks be prepared that would serve as a check upon the financial bureau, such blanks to be forwarded to postmasters, and postmasters required to send duplicate statement of their remittances to Neely, chief of the bureau of postal accounts, to the auditor, so that there would be a record as to the amount of cash Neely had received in his office, in another department. Was such a blank ever prepared?—A. I think so. I ask you to have that original report brought here. I repeat the inquiry: If it was a fact that Post-office Inspectors Sullivan and Letherman found Mr. Neely's accounts long to the amount of $6,000, as alleged, or wrong in any other regard, why did they not report it to me officially and in writing in their official report? In the matter of the report of Inspectors Sullivan and Letherman of their investigation of the bureau of finance of the department of posts, under my direction of May 26, 1899, it will be observed that they recommended, in substance, that postmasters be required to make monthly or quarterly statements of receipts of stamps and stamped paper, reporting remittances of money, etc., as will be seen in the summary of the report under date of May 30, 1899, of Chief Special Agent Maynard. This shows that the recommendation is made that postmasters report monthly or quarterly to both the chief of the bureau of finance and the chief of the bureau of postal accounts. It will be observed that on June 5, 1899, this recommendation was noted and referred to the bureaus of finance and postal accounts; that an acknowledgment was made by some one on behalf of the chiefs of those bureaus, as follows: "C. F. W. N., per H. M.," chief of the bureau of finance; and on behalf of the chief of the bureau of postal accounts, as follows: "W. H. R., per I. C. E." I think it is proper to say that in cases of this sort, where recommendations have been made by special agents, it was the practice to refer the recommendations to the bureaus which they affected for their consideration and remark. In this case it appears that the recommendation was acquiesced in by the chiefs of the bureaus of finance and postal accounts, returned to me, and I ordered it done in the following language: "Ordered, E. G. Rathbone, director-general." I supposed that it had been done, and my information now is that it was put into effect, so far as the bureau of finance was concerned, but was not put into effect by the bureau of postal accounts. I discovered this fact about May 1 of this year, and immediately put on foot an inquiry for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not my order of June 5, 1899, had been carried into effect; if not, why not, and who was derelict in the matter.

Q. Was that the first inquiry you ever made as to whether the order was put into effect or not?—A. I don't remember of making any inquiry about it previous to that. You know from your own experience as an Assistant Postmaster-General that it is the duty of your subordinates to carry into effect your orders. You are not supposed to follow up every official to whom you give an order and see that he obeys it and carries it out in every respect.

Q. Don't you think in a matter of this kind it is important to have some kind of a check upon a man who is handling a large amount of money intrusted to him?—A. That probably would be good official business, but there were so many things crowding upon the heels of another demanding my time and attention that it was impossible for me to follow up each and every order I gave for the purpose of determining whether or not it was obeyed in every particular.

Q. Did you think, General, there was anything of equal importance to having an absolute check upon the financial transactions of the department here?—A. I knew that it was important to have such a check; if I had not known it, I would not have had it done. I regarded it of sufficient importance to order it done and supposed it had been done.

Q. This was a general order regulating the manner of keeping the accounts of the entire department and postal service of the island.—A. I did not regard it as a general order. I regarded it as a specific order directing that a specific thing be done.

Q. But the result was affecting the entire service and safety of the money accumulated from the postal revenues?—A. The object of the order was a proper check upon the handling of the money. That is apparent upon its face.

Q. And still it appears that you never inquired as to whether this important order was carried out until the recent investigations of the War Department began. Did Special Agent Williams state to you at one time that in his judgment the postmaster at Matanzas was not given full credit for remittances made to the department?—A. It seems to me I do recall something of that sort; but he had no data at that time, as I understand, to determine whether it was so or not.

Q. Did you ever take the matter up with Mr. Neely?—A. I don't think I did, personally. I suppose Williams did, if he thought there was anything wrong.

Q. Do you know whether he did or not?—A. No.

Q. Was it his duty to do it?—A. I think so.

Q. Don't you think a special agent, when he reported that fact to the director-general of posts, would feel that he had discharged his duty, if it was a specific charge?—A. I did not so understand it. I recall his saying something to me about it in Matanzas a few months ago. My recollection of it is very hazy, but I think he stated in substance that he thought the postmaster at Matanzas had not gotten full credit.

Q. And you never made it the subject of any further inquiry either of Williams or of Neely?—A. I don't recall now. It would have been quite natural for me to have told Williams to look it up.

Q. When Mr. Neely was away in October last year did not Mr. Marshall reserve a part of the money which was received and not deposit it, and you asked him why he was doing it, and he told you that Mr. Neely had instructed him to only deposit a part of it?—A. I don't recall that.

Q. Mr. Marshall states that he brought in the deposit slip amounting to several thousand dollars, and you asked him if that was all, and he said "No;" that Mr. Neely had asked him to reserve $8,000 and that he would afterwards deposit it, because he wanted to show a growth in the postal receipts of the island.—A. I have no recollection of that. But, on the contrary, you will find by going through the records of this office that I have on more than one occasion addressed letters to the chief of the bureau of finance giving him specific directions what to do; one you will find dated sometime in February, 1899, in which I think I "jacked him up" very severely. You will find about the time this order of May 11 came out, which inaugurated a system of audits, etc., that I submitted a copy of it and directed him in specific terms to comply with it. You will find other letters of a similar character addressed not only to Mr. Neely, but to others.

Q. Did you ever follow up those letters to see whether your directions were complied with or not?—A. No; it was reasonable for me to presume that he did comply with them. He was a sworn officer of the Government and a chief of a bureau, and it was very natural for me to presume that he would comply with the instructions. It seems to me that if anything was wrong in the bureau of finance, or in the matter of transmitting money from the postmasters to the department, that the special agents ought to have found it out, as that is what they are for. As you know in your own department, you don't go nosing around trying to find out such things personally. You have not the time; other duties engage your attention. That is what the special agents are for.

Q. These special agents investigate cases that are referred to them, don't they?—A. Their duties are very similar to the duties of the post-office inspectors of the United States who are under your direction, and you know it is their business to not only report on specific matters, but it is their duty as well to report any irregularities or derelictions in the service which come to their attention.

Q. Did you transmit a copy of this order to the chief special agent and request that it be carried out?—A. I don't recall.

Q. Did he know anything about these letters that you wrote?—A. I don't know that he did.

Q. How did you know that the instructions were carried out then?—A. The very nature of his business puts him on inquiry all the time, and no one knows that better than yourself, because you have charge of special agents in the United States.

Q. You think, then, that the negligence of the bureau of special agents is responsible for these large defalcations of Neely's not being discovered?—A. I would not want to say that. I would not want to put the blame on any specific person; but I do say it is the business of special agents to discover irregularities in any branch of the service that may exist; that is what special agents are for. I wish to embody in this statement my letter of February 23, 1899, addressed to Mr. Neely, and the accompanying memorandum made by myself, dated Habana, May 3, 1899, which is a part of it. I also desire to embody my letter of February 23, 1899, to Mr. Neely; also my letter of March 30, 1899, to Mr. F. E. Waring, acting chief of the bureau of postal money orders; also my letter of May 26, 1899, to Chief Special Agent Maynard, directing that an investigation be made in the bureau of postal accounts, and the report of Inspectors Sullivan and Letherman thereon; also my letter of May 26 to Chief Special Agent Maynard, directing an investigation into the affairs of the bureau of finance, and the report of Inspectors Sullivan and Letherman thereon, together with a copy of the résumé of the report made by Mr. Maynard, recommending that reports be made by postmasters to both the bureau of finance and postal accounts, and my order directing that it be done; also my letter of February 5, 1900, to Mr. Neely, giving directions concerning his bureau; also my letter of March 21, 1900, to Dr. Reeves, acting auditor of the island.

Q. I see you wrote a letter there on April 28 to Mr. Neely?—A. I would like to see the original copy of that letter; I am afraid the date is wrong. That letter is not addressed to Mr. Neely, but addressed to the chief of the bureau of finance.

Q. Who was the chief of the bureau of finance at that time?—A. I think Mr. Rich was acting.

Q. Was the letter delivered to Mr. Rich or to Mr. Neely?—A. I don't know. Naturally it would be delivered to Mr. Rich. My recollection is that Rich was acting chief of the bureau of finance from about April 23, or the date the special agents counted the bureau up and made their report.

(The letter to Mr. Neely referred to above being looked up, April 28 was found to be the correct date.)

A. That letter was intended for the acting chief of the bureau of finance; for, as stated before, I think he was acting about April 23.

Q. You say here that you well remember of my having often spoken to you about it. Would that apply to Rich?—A. I don't remember; the letter speaks for itself. It is a proper letter, giving good directions, as I think.

Q. Now, General, it seemed to be your plan to give instructions to your subordinate chiefs here by letter, but do not appear to have followed it up to see that they did their duty.—A. If you had been here since I first came on the island, and followed me around, you would see that I visited the different bureaus and talked with the chiefs very frequently.

Q. How was it possible that your chief of the bureau of finance, under those circumstances, could have embezzled money to the extent of thousands of dollars, covering a period of twelve months, without you detecting in some way the faultiness in his methods, that enabled him to cover this up?—A. That is the mystery of the day, and, as I understand, is what you were sent here for—to discover. I would aid you in any way I can, and give you any assistance possible, to try to determine how it was possible for these things to have been done without their having been discovered.

Q. Don't you think that the chief cause was because the director-general, who was in charge here, did not keep a sufficient personal familiarity with the operations of his bureaus—that he left it largely to the subordinate chiefs?—A. No, I don't think that was the cause of the defalcation; the cause was the dishonesty of trusted chiefs, who were here in the guise of honest men. I could not follow up and personally look after all of these things, and the business had to be trusted to the chiefs of the bureaus. You know that no officer in your position can follow up every order that he gives and see that it is faithfully carried out.

Q. No; but he can follow up the important ones.—A. And another thing let me call your attention to—running a postal service in the United States, where a perfected machine exists and trained men are employed, where specific laws, regulations, and precedents are laid down for their direction and for them to follow, is quite different from taking up a postal service like that found on the island of Cuba on January 1, 1899, where we had to build from the bottom to the top; where we were in a strange country, didn't understand the language; where some, at least, of the men sent from the United States were not as competent as they should be; where 75 or 80 per cent of the employees of the service that we found here were not skilled in postal matters. We had to unlearn them what they knew about the old postal system which was in vogue prior to January 1, 1899, and teach them the new system that we are operating now.

Q. Is that not the greater reason why you should have kept yourself in touch with all the bureaus in the department?—A. That is what I tried to do, but I could not do everything personally. I had to rely on my subordinates. I had to do a good many things and work long hours, and it was impossible for me to see after all the details; I had to rely on somebody. They were employed to help in the work, and if I could not rely upon them to do some of these things there was no necessity for their employment.

Q. Of course, the business of subordinates is to carry out the plans and policy their superior officer formulates, but does that relieve the superior from seeing that it is properly carried out?—A. As I say, the conditions were so different here that it was impossible for one man to attend to all the details. You can not realize that as I do, and as do others in the department here who have been here for the last year and a half.

Q. In a statement which Mr. Rich made, I find the following:

"About the time that Neely reached Hoffman Island, which was some time before he could leave the island, I went to General Rathbone and explained to him the situation, as I knew it, for the purpose of having him recall Neely. I told him as to how matters were when Neely left before—as to shortage of $14,000 on money-order account and ahead $14,000 on postal account; Neely's having me indorse on his books 'Examined by the special agents,' when, as a matter of fact, they were not examined by the special agents; and also about the stamps he left with me to be sold, for which he would give me half of the proceeds. Relative to the stamps—selling same—General Rathbone told me not to sell them, or words to that effect. General Rathbone said that Neely's vault checked up, according to the auditor's balance; that everything was all right; that I was just panicky, and not to let the people in my bureau get panicky. He said that I might be mistaken; that at times during the past he thought some things were not all right; and that on asking Neely about them, he (Neely) explained them away in a plausible manner. I replied, 'yes,' that it had been that way in my case in questioning Neely. I asked General Rathbone if he knew how many of the surcharged stamps were reserved from the burning. He replied that he would answer me as he had answered Colonel Burton—'for his part, he did not know, and did not give a damn.'"

Do you remember that conversation with Mr. Rich?—A. No; I remember of his talking to me several times after this thing was discussed, and finally he exhibited great evidence of being panicky and got offended at me, saying something about checks which Neely had left there for his salary. The special agents reported them to me and I ordered them taken out, and it seems that Rich took them out in his own name. What I mean is this: When Neely went away he left little slips—vouchers for his half-month's salary, May 1 to May 15, and from May 15 to May 31—and it seems that he had taken the money out of the vault, which was discovered afterwards, and left those slips, thinking they would be paid by the disbursing officer and the money put back. As soon as I found that out I said that they must be taken out. Then, as I recollect, I directed the disbursing officer not to pay those vouchers for Neely's salary, whereupon Mr. Rich became violent. It put him in a position, for he was out the money.

Q. Did you make the remark to him that you did not care a damn what became of the surcharged stamps?—A. No; and in this connection I want to say that you have got here, among my private papers, a copy of another affidavit that he made in connection with these $5,000 stamps that he turned over to General Wood.

Mr. FOSNES. In reference to Neely's going away before, when he was telegraphed to come back, and Rich wrote a letter on which you made an indorsement—what does he say about it?—A. He says that there are rumors on the streets that Neely says he has made $100,000 in Cuba, and there was discrepancy in the remittance from Remedios.

General BRISTOW. Do you remember that circumstance?—A. I remember this, that there were rumors afloat about Neely. It was a statement to this effect: That Neely was overheard to say in a café that he had made $100,000 clear on the island of Cuba. That rumor seemed to gain great currency about town, and we agreed that it was the proper thing to get Neely back here and have him counted up, and we did so.

Q. Where was Neely when he was away at that time?—A. In the States.

Q. What part of the States?—A. I think in New York or Washington.

Q. Do you know what business he had there?—A. He went up on official business.

Q. What was the official business?—A. You can find a copy of the letter of instructions here.

Q. Under what date would that letter be?—A. I can not give the date. One of the principal things that I can recall now—and there were a great many things he was to attend to—was the matter of arranging definitely with the War Department concerning the matter of our turning over money-order funds here to the paymaster. There was a hitch about that matter, and I think Neely had conferences with Major Lord about it, and I think I did, and he went up there to see about that.

Mr. FOSNES. Speaking of the money-order funds. At whose instance was that commission appointed some time last March, who recommended that the money-order funds go direct to the bureau of finance, instead of to the money-order division of the Habana post-office, as theretofore?—A. I don't know that it was at anybody's particular instance. I think Mr. Bristow, the chief clerk, will agree with me, and perhaps Mr. Thompson, in this. It is my recollection that there was some difficulty down in the Habana post-office in the handling of money-order funds, and somebody, I think, suggested that it be changed, and that instead of the money-order funds going in to the postmaster at Habana in his money-order division, and then from there sent to the bureau of finance, that it go direct to the bureau of finance. I appointed a commission to take that matter up and inquire into it and make recommendations. I think Mr. Bristow, the chief clerk, was chairman of that commission. The order will speak for itself, and their report, and I ask that it become a part of this statement. (See Exhibit E.)

Mr. FOSNES. Did you participate in the discussions of that commission?

A. No.

Mr. FOSNES. Who were the members of that commission?

A. Mr. Bristow, Mr. Thompson, Mr. Gerst, chief of the money-order bureau, and probably Reeves and Neely. The order will show.

General BRISTOW. This checking up of Neely's accounts after he came back—who checked him up?

A. I gave the order to the chief special agent, and it seems that he and Special Agent Neal did the work. I first called on the auditor for a statement of Neely's account up to a given date, and in doing that I followed the practice in vogue in the United States. This assistant auditor's office was supposed to bear the same relation to the department of posts that the Sixth Auditor of the United States Treasury bears to the Post-Office Department of the United States.

Mr. FOSNES. Was Neely forewarned of the inspection?

A. I don't know.

General BRISTOW. Did Neely know that he was to be inspected, so far as you know?

A. He may have known it, because Rich evidently knew it. He may have learned it from the auditor's office.

Q. Why didn't you inspect his office while he was away, if you knew there was anything wrong?—A. I didn't know there was anything wrong. After a conference with my officials here, we thought that was the best course to pursue. A man is ordinarily entitled to be present when being investigated. If your office was being investigated, it would be fair to you that you be present.

Q. Well, if I thought that a man was an embezzler, and the records of his office were open for investigation and he was my immediate subordinate official, I should make an examination of the books.—A. Nobody knew that he was an embezzler.

Q. Well, it was so reported on the street, and you called him back for the purpose of checking him up.—A. He came back here and was checked up and found all right.

Q. He seems to have come back here and was checked up and found all right, while if he had been checked up when the rumor started he would probably have been all wrong.—A. You will find in questioning Mr. Bristow, the chief clerk, that during my temporary absence in Florida, about the 1st of April, he had this Habana post-office checked up and he found things not exactly right down there, and I advised him in substance to let the matter rest until I got back. After I returned we concluded that the thing to do was to get Neely back here; and in that connection, to my mind, our getting him back saved the Government about $14,000 or $16,000, and I have thought so all along. That judgment is based on rumors. It looks to me as though that amount of money was saved by getting him back—saved to the Government. Of course if I had known, or anybody, or even Mr. Bristow had known, or believed, that there was anything wrong—that Mr. Neely was an embezzler—we probably would have acted differently.

Q. Would it be good policy for post-office inspectors to wire a postmaster who was absent, asking him to return, as they wanted to check him up and they wanted him to be present while they were doing it?—A. Unless you have reason to believe that he was an embezzler, it would be fair to him to be present when his office is being inspected.

Q. When did Neely get back?—A. I don't remember.

Q. Do the records here show?—A. I don't remember.

Q. On what day was the inspection made?—A. The report shows that date; I think April 23, and I ask that that report of Special Agents Seybolt and Neal become a part of this investigation.

Mr. FOSNES. When and how did it come to your knowledge?

A. Did what come to my knowledge?

Mr. FOSNES. The misuse of money-order funds by Postmaster E. P. Thompson, of Havana, referring to the issuance to himself of $400 of money orders in the month of September, 1899, without depositing the money.

A. It came to my knowledge first upon my return from Miami, Fla., early in April, when the reports of the special agents came to my desk; that was the first knowledge I had of it.

Mr. FOSNES. Did the report show the discovery?

A. Yes, I think so. There were two inspections made one week apart; the first did not show, the second did. It was the second one that I refer to wherein they report that they had found out he had drawn about $400. Both inspections were made during my absence, so when I got one I got both.

Mr. FOSNES. Is not this a fact, that when Seybolt went down there with one of his special agents and made his first examination, that he knew of it, and was it not developed later that Thompson took some money from a remittance which came in and made that good, and then a week later they made another investigation and they got the memorandum; and further, that Seybolt and Williams knew of it, and when they made the second inspection they did not find the shortage; that they told him they were going to make an inspection, and he had better fix it up?

A. That is news to me. I am surprised.

DESTRUCTION OF SURCHARGED STAMPS.

Q. (General BRISTOW.) How came you to appoint Neely and Reeves and Marfield as that committee to destroy the surcharged stamps?

A. I don't know as I could explain to you at this late date all the operations of my mind when I came to that conclusion, but the facts are that along in September these new Cuban stamps came from the States. We had a large quantity of surcharged stamps on hand, and it was reported to me that there was not vault room enough to keep them by reason of the surcharged and new Cuban stamps. We brought up the question of what to do with the old surcharged stamps. I consulted with General Brooke about it, and we agreed that a commission should be appointed to destroy those stamps. Thereupon I issued an order appointing a commission to destroy stamps and directed them what to do; the order speaks for itself, and I ask that it be made a part of this statement (see Exhibit F). I ask also that the reports made by this commission to me in regard to the destruction of the stamps be made a part of this statement (see Exhibit G).

Q. You seem to have appointed Neely, the man who was in charge of the stamps, and Reeves, who was supposed to be a check on Neely, and another man to destroy these stamps, aggregating a very large sum of money. Did you think that was the proper way to construct a commission?

A. I did; that was my best judgment at the time. They were presumably honest men, and that was my best judgment at the time.

Q. You were charged with those stamps by the Department in Washington that had furnished them; that is, your department was, and you as director-general?

A. I presume so.

Q. Don't you think it would have been wiser to have returned those stamps and asked for credit?

A. The military governor, General Brooke, and I thought not, because they were worthless, and to return them to the States would involve labor and expense, and the probabilities were when they got to the States they would be treated just as we treated them here—they would have been destroyed.

Q. You say they were worthless. They represented something near $400,000 in your transactions with the Department in Washington?

A. They were worthless to the States; they had been supplanted by new designs for use in Cuba.

Q. I notice, in a letter you wrote to the Postmaster-General September 13, you state: "P. H. Bristow, my chief clerk, witnessed the destruction of those stamps, in connection with the commission." Is that a fact?—A. Yes.

Q. In what capacity did he witness the destruction—in his individual capacity or in the capacity of chief clerk?—A. The facts are these: That statement in that letter, perhaps, in view of recent occurrences, may be a little misleading, although it was not so intended. Mr. Bristow reported to me this, that he had been over to the electrozone plant and saw the commission burning the stamps. I did not understand from Mr. Bristow, neither did I intend to convey the impression to General Smith, that Mr. Bristow participated in the counting of the stamps and in the destruction of them. I did not intend to convey that impression, because it is not in keeping with my understanding. He merely went over there and saw that they were burning the stamps. He may have stayed 5 minutes or 25 minutes—I do not know—and came back here and reported to me in substance that he had been over there and saw them burning stamps.

Q. Now, the fact is, General, that you appointed Mr. Neely and Mr. Reeves as two members of the commission of three to destroy several hundred thousand dollars worth of stamps. They reported to you that they had destroyed them, and you then directed that Mr. Neely, the chairman of this commission, be given credit for $310,000 for stamps destroyed, and that Mr. Reeves credit him with $310,000 worth of stamps destroyed. You had no knowledge as to whether $310,000 worth of stamps were on hand to destroy, or $100,000 worth, so far as you know yourself.—A. I did not count the stamps.

Q. And no one counted them except these men who were in custody of them?—A. The commission was composed of men supposed to be strictly honest—one a chief of the bureau of finance; another, chief of the registry bureau; and the other, auditor for the department of posts, and according to my best information, and all of my information, they were honest men. And I want to say one word in connection with Marfield that impressed itself on me at the time, and ought to be enough to satisfy anyone that he was an honest man. When he was temporarily in charge of the registry division of the old Habana post-office, he found among a great mass of undelivered registry matter (the most of it had been rifled) a package of money containing 20,000 pesetas, which he brought to me. That incident impressed itself upon me, and I would have raised my hand high and sworn that he was an honest man. Later he found the proper owner, and the money was delivered to the right person.

Q. Mr. Marfield states that he was present only part of the time when they were counting the stamps; that he was in and out of the bureau of finance waiting for them to get the stamps counted.—A. If that is so, Mr. Marfield did not do his duty, didn't do what was expected of him, and I am surprised to hear it, because before that he always did his duty faithfully and well.

Q. Was he a capable, bright, intelligent fellow, that could run up a column of figures with accuracy and rapidity?—A. I don't know.

Q. Don't you think the third man on a commission to destroy $400,000 worth of stamps, where they would necessarily have to be counted, where the other two members were responsible for the custody of this property, should have been specially capable in figures?—A. There were two men on that commission who were good accountants, good in figures, one in particular—an official of the War Department—Dr. Reeves. He is presumably a good accountant, and it seems to me that the requirements in that regard were fully met in selecting that commission.

Q. He was the only man that could have had a check on the chief of the bureau of finance, who was another member of the commission?—A. You must bear in mind that they were honest men, sworn officers of the Government, one chief of a bureau of the department of posts and another an officer of the War Department, and because he kept accounts I do not see why that should reflect upon his integrity at that time.

Q. Isn't it a general policy of the Government and of good business accounting to keep checks on men who handle large sums of money, even though they are considered honest men?—A. Yes. If you are speaking of Neely, we presumably had two checks on him, to wit, the auditor (a War Department official) and Mr. Marfield, the chief of the bureau of registration.

Q. Had you not an idea at the time what surcharged stamps were on hand to be destroyed?—A. Personally, no. That was the commission's business. I had no idea that they would report destroying more stamps than they had to destroy. I had no idea but what they would perform their work honestly and well.

Q. You never discovered these figures here?—A. What do you refer to?

Q. I refer to the fact that his own figures in the annual report show that he did not destroy as many stamps as he claims to have destroyed within $100,000.—A. That discovery was what first led us to believe that this department and the auditor's office was not all right. The military authorities, through Colonel Burton, were claiming irregularities. We were combating, relying upon the auditor's statement and the investigation based upon it. We believed and maintained that there was nothing wrong, as cablegrams and letters will show. After we discovered that there was something wrong I cabled the Postmaster-General this: "It looks like $75,000 at least."

Q. Did you examine those figures when submitted to you, which should be embodied in your report?—A. No; I was not here when the report was made; I was sick in the States and did not see them until away along in December.

THE TWO WARRANTS.

Q. Referring again to those two warrants, General, of yesterday, have you been able to think of any explanation for apparently drawing those two warrants and making no accounting whatever for the money?—A. No; I can not conceive how that could have been done, except on the theory that it was signed by me among a great many other warrants, without my attention having been called to it or without its attracting my attention. I am certain that I never got the money on it. Where the money went to I am unable to say. Let me ask this: Does the warrant show whether deposited to postal account or show that it was cashed?

Q. Cashed.—A. That tells the story.

Q. The $500 that you did draw you accounted for and had cashed at Washington. Have you receipts anywhere or anything showing that you turned that money in in any way?—A. I am sure as I am alive that whatever was due to the Government after the expenses had been paid out of the $1,500 was turned back. If it was diverted, it was without my knowledge.

Mr. FOSNES. You say it was turned back. In what way and to whom?—A. Through the auditor, and if you ask me why we did it through the auditor I can only explain it on this hypothesis, that in order to make a record of it in the auditor's office, and he was supposed to turn it in to Neely, who, in turn, was to deposit it in the general fund. That was done in one case at least which you have investigated, and it was our understanding that it was done in all cases and should have been done in all cases.

Q. Deposited in the funds for postal receipts?—A. Postal funds.

Q. That would have been crediting postal receipts twice, would it not? Why didn't you deposit it to your credit with the treasurer of the island? Why turn it back to the auditor?—A. The auditor and Neely's office were the proper channels through which I supposed the money should be returned. The effect would be just the same, and I supposed he was the officer to do it.

Q. I can not understand why you turned in money through the auditor.—A. For the purpose of making a record of it.

Q. The auditor had no business handling money.—A. Suppose my order had been carried into effect—that all postal receipts should be reported to the auditor—would it not be proper to report to him?

Q. Proper to report, but not to give him money.—A. I wish you would question Reeves on that. I presume it was done on his advice.

Q. I notice in Neely's vouchers for miscellaneous expenses he enters up a large amount, such as freight, $300; lighterage, $350. No vouchers or anything accompany them. Don't you think you should have required receipts and detailed statements as to whom this money was paid, and so forth?—A. It is perfectly patent now that these Neely bills should have been accompanied by vouchers, but he always told Mr. Bristow and myself (and some of his accounts rendered show on the face) that the vouchers were on file in the bureau of finance. Now, when Inspectors Smith and Fosnes came here, over a month ago, I turned over to them a large amount of vouchers, which I presume will fit into these Neely bills. There were two bills I recollect as freight bills.

Q. Why did you approve a thing like that [examining bills]?—A. Because I supposed it was correct. As I said to you yesterday in my statement, because of the confusion and chaotic condition down here we could not transact our business without great detriment, and so forth.

Q. The fact that everything was in a chaotic condition, was not that the more important?—A. That may be, but it was not done either by this department or by any other department on the island.

Q. Now, in the bills that were paid I notice a large number of printing bills in favor of a firm styled "Cowan & Co.," of Muncie, Ind., some of the items being paid twice. Did you ever investigate or look over that transaction, to see whether it was straight and proper?—A. I had no knowledge of it until it was brought to my attention in an official communication recently that it had been paid twice.

Q. But you approved bills every month. Didn't it strike you as rather a large amount to be sent to Muncie for printing?—A. My attention was not directed to the fact that printing was being done in Muncie. Strange as it may seem, I did not know. I think Mr. Bristow will tell you the same thing. He examined these accounts before they came to me, and he will tell you that until recently he did not know we were having printing done in Muncie. We relied entirely on Neely to get the printing done.

Q. But these come up here for your approval every month, and I can not see why you did not investigate as to the price that was being paid for the printing matter, and see whether Mr. Neely was conducting the business in a proper manner.—A. I do know that in some cases he got proposals from different firms on various things and presented to me. In the matter of printing here in Habana, I know we had a job with the Journal, and I think the Herald, and I think one or two others, and it was awarded to the lowest bidder, whoever he was.

Mr. FOSNES. Here is Neely's bill for last January, one item for miscellaneous supplies, even $200.—A. I do not know what it is.

Mr. FOSNES. Another item is repairs, for even $60.

A. These should have been supported by vouchers. Give me the date of the first miscellaneous bill you have in your hand. I wish you would ascertain the date of the first miscellaneous Neely bill, as they have come to be known. In January, 1899, as near as I can recollect, the sanitary officers of Habana condemned the late post-office building as being unfit for official use. Inspector Fosnes, who was a member of the postal commission sent here by the Postmaster-General in December, 1898, on my request, looked about Habana for a suitable place for the Habana post-office and the department. He reported the present post-office and department building. I applied to General Ludlow, the military governor of Habana, and he set aside this building for our use, and I arranged with him to put it into sanitary condition first and then to remodel it and put it in proper condition for our Habana post-office and department of posts; and in this connection I call attention to certain correspondence between General Ludlow and myself which are on file in this office. The building was disinfected by Major Davis, the sanitary officer, and General Ludlow assigned an Army engineer to take charge of the remodeling of the building. The arrangement was that the department of posts was to pay the expense after they got through. Later Colonel Black, who was General Ludlow's chief engineer, and Lieutenant Gildersleeve, who I believe resides in Paterson, N. J., a United States Army engineer officer, came to my office, and Colonel Black stated that they could not well carry out our original plan to pay for the remodeling of the building after it was done, but suggested that we pay the weekly pay rolls, to be certified to and attested by a United States Army engineer officer. After consultation with some of my subordinates, we concluded that that arrangement could be put into effect, and it was so arranged that the work was to be done under the supervision and direction of Lieutenant Gildersleeve, who was assigned to that duty. Mr. J. W. Erwin, a United States post-office inspector, who was here temporarily, was designated by me to look after the matter, representing the department of posts. He acted in that capacity and reported to me from time to time progress on the building, and my recollection is that when the pay rolls and the vouchers for materials were presented attested by this Army engineer officer, that warrants were drawn in favor of Mr. Erwin, who paid the money to the various workmen and others who were entitled to it. An examination of the pay rolls shows that they were attested in the following language: "D. H. Gildersleeve, assistant engineer in charge mechanical subdepartment." They also bore the signature of J. W. Nunez, who was employed as a sort of superintendent of the workmen. Mr. Erwin had charge of this work up to the time he left for the United States, which was the latter part of April. I relied on the indorsement of the Army engineer and the foreman or superintendent, Mr. Nunez, and the supervision of Mr. Erwin, to see that the bills were correct and proper in all regards, as well as all expenditures. The original estimate furnished us by Mr. Gildersleeve contemplated an expenditure, as I recall, of about $7,500. Later, however, we acquired more building. I refer to that which was formerly used by the supply division and the carriers, which would naturally increase the cost of repairs. It cost about $21,000 to repair the building, which was a surprise to us.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENT OF JUNE 22.

General RATHBONE. I desire to call your attention to an official letter of March 15 to the Postmaster-General, in which I requested that some man skilled in postal accounts and auditing be sent me at once to aid in the organization of this bureau of postal accounts, and so forth. I ask that a copy of this letter of March 15 be made a part of this statement. (See Exhibit H.) Also to my personal letter of March 19, in which I state, "In the matter of my request that you send some man here to examine our auditing system, might I suggest that as Mr. Lawshe, Deputy Sixth Auditor, was here and helped to inaugurate the bureau of postal accounts, he would be more familiar with it than anyone else. I do not want to put myself in the position of suggesting who the man shall be, still I suggest Mr. Lawshe because of his familiarity with the situation."

I am quite certain that there is a letter antedating this by a month or more, in which I requested, in substance, that some expert be sent here to overhaul the auditor's office.

The following papers, namely:

Personal letter written to the Postmaster-General by the director-general at Santiago de Cuba, April 10, 1899, referred to the testimony of General Rathbone (p. 129) as Exhibit C;

Copy of order of the director-general of posts appointing a commission who recommended that the money-order funds go direct to the bureau of finance instead of the money-order division of the Habana post-office, which is referred to as Exhibit E in the testimony of General Rathbone (p. 137).

Copy of official letter from the director-general to the Postmaster-

General requesting that some skilled man in postal accounts and auditing be sent to Cuba at once to aid in the organization of the bureau of postal accounts, etc., which is referred to as Exhibit H in the testimony of General Rathbone (p. 144)|;

Copies of letters of February 8 and April 25, 1900, from the director-general to the Postmaster-General, referred to in additional statement of General Rathbone—which were requested by General Rathbone to be submitted with his statement, refer more properly to the organization of the department of posts, and will appear as exhibits in the report hereafter to be made relating to the reorganization of the department of posts.

The Neely appointment papers, which are referred to as Exhibit D in General Rathbone's testimony (p. 130), appear as Exhibit 7 of this report.

Copy of order appointing commission to destroy surcharged stamps and copy of report of said commission, which are referred to as Exhibit F and Exhibit G, respectively, in General Rathbone's testimony (p. 139), appear as Exhibit 18 and Exhibit 23, respectively, of this report.

FEBRUARY 23, 1899.

Mr. C. F. W. NEELY,
Chief Bureau of Finance, Habana, Cuba.

SIR: Confirming my verbal order to you given some time ago, I desire to give you this official direction. You must have accuracy, absolute accuracy, in the matter of handling your postage stamps and postal supplies; in fact, the entire business of your bureau must be absolutely accurate. Accuracy must not be sacrificed for speed. If the clerks detailed to you are not what they should be in this regard, you are directed to make such report to me, officially and in writing. It will be your duty to keep a record of inaccuracies, and report the same to the director of posts. This puts you in a position so that inaccuracies hereafter will be directly chargeable to you. In short, if the help you have is not competent and efficient, your wishes concerning any changes for the betterment of the service will be regarded.

It is not the desire of the director of posts to be harsh or severe, but it is his duty to see that absolute accuracy obtains, particularly in your bureau, which handles the postal funds of the island of Cuba.

Very respectfully,

E. G. RATHBONE,
Director of Posts of Cuba.

[Memorandum in connection with my letter of February 23, 1899, to Mr. C. F. W. Neely, chief of the bureau of finance.]

The occasion for writing this letter was the following: Mr. Neely reported to me that two of his clerks had made errors, and were careless in their work. He gave me details. I immediately called the clerks to my office—they were Messrs. Millikin and Benham—and pointed out to them the errors they had made, and attributed them to gross carelessness. I notified them that I should insist upon absolute accuracy in the bureau of finance, that I would give them another opportunity, but that if they made a single error of even one cent I would displace them. This brought forth my letter to Mr. Neely, a copy of which is hereto attached.

E. G. RATHBONE.

HABANA, May 3, 1900.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, March 30, 1899.

Mr. F. E. WARING,
Acting Chief, Bureau of Postal Money Orders, Present.

SIR: It is desired that a weekly financial report be made to the Department at Washington, and to that end you are requested to kindly furnish me with a statement of the amount deposited to our credit on money-order account for the weeks ending each Saturday, inclusive.

Very respectfully,

E. G. RATHBONE,
Director-General.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, May 26, 1899.

Mr. GEORGE C. MAYNARD,
Chief Bureau of Special Agents, Present.

SIR: I will thank you to cause the accounts, records, and work of the bureau of postal accounts to be gone over very thoroughly, inspected and examined, and an official report thereon made at your earliest convenience. It is suggested that you assign this duty to Inspectors Sullivan and Letherman.

Very respectfully,

E. G. RATHBONE,
Director-General.

Case No. 585 C.
Subject: Examination of bureau of postal accounts.

Hon. E. G. RATHBONE, Director-General.

SIR: I have the honor to hand you herewith the joint report of Special Agents Wm. T. Sullivan and Lawrence Letherman, dated May 27th, embodying the results of an official examination made at my request and by your direction of the bureau of postal accounts. The several recommendations submitted therein have my endorsement and your special attention is invited thereto.

Very respectfully,

GEO. C. MAYNARD,
Chief Special Agent.

Subject: Investigation of the bureau of postal accounts, department of posts, Habana, Cuba.
Case No. 585 C.
Wm. T. Sullivan, Lawrence Letherman, special agents.

HABANA, CUBA, May 27, 1899.

GEO. C. MAYNARD, Esq.,
Chief Special Agent, Habana, Cuba.

SIR: We investigated the bureau of postal accounts of the department of posts on yesterday and to-day, and beg leave to report:

We found the bureau of postal accounts under charge of Dr. W. H. Reeves as chief, and the books, records, and accounts very neatly and well kept, and the vouchers systematically and orderly arranged and filed, so that any particular account and the vouchers belonging thereto could be readily found, referred to, and verified.

All the work is not kept up to date, and the money-order accounts of some of the offices have not been recorded since the first week in April. This arises from a lack of sufficient help in the bureau to keep all the accounts and enter them as promptly as could be wished.

We find that some warrants for salaries of postmasters and clerks' salaries have not yet been sent out for the last half of February and the months of March and April. The chief of the bureau says this is because the proper vouchers have not been received, and the warrants are held until they are received.

In this connection we desire to state that there is very much complaint on the part of the postmasters and clerks of the great delay in receiving their salaries. This complaint generally is in the Province of Santiago de Cuba and in portions of the island distant from Habana. In point of time Santiago de Cuba Province is farther from Habana than San Francisco is from New York, and once a week is the most frequent mail, while many places do not receive mail oftener than once in two weeks from Habana, and a short delay at time mail is dispatched to such points works a grievous hardship upon those expecting the prompt payment of salaries, rents, bills for light, and for carrying the mails.

Under the present system of auditing accounts for salaries, rents, light, and mail-messenger service, which is very accurate, reliable, and safe, we do not see how the delays complained of can be avoided, but as the department of posts has now the reputation of holding up accounts and delaying payment long after the accounts have been accrued we believe the system ought to be changed, in the interests of the service and the good reputation of the department.

The warrant for a salary, or for rent, light, or carrying the mails, is issued to a particular person, payable only on that person's written order or endorsement, and constitutes a voucher within itself. It is never issued until the person to whom it is payable has an appointment or agreement to perform the service or furnish the article for which it is designed to pay. And why it can not be sent in time to the postmaster at payee's address to reach that place at time the sum is payable, to be delivered by the postmaster on receipt by him of a properly executed voucher, seems to us the practice of a faulty system.

We believe that if one postmaster in Puerto Principe and in Santiago de Cuba provinces were designated as disbursing officers, and the warrants for all salaries, etc., for that province were sent from the department of posts to such postmaster, with instructions to deliver or mail such warrants to payees named therein as soon after the last day of each month (or last day of the quarter, where warrant was issued for a quarterly payment) as he received from the payee a properly executed voucher, and return the voucher at once, much of the delay and complaint could be safely avoided, and we therefore recommend, and that this case be closed.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, May 26, 1899.

MR. GEORGE C. MAYNARD,
Chief Special Agent, Present.

SIR: I will thank you to cause the financial transactions of the bureau of finance to be gone over and investigated thoroughly, taking into account the number of stamps received, sold, and on hand, as well as the moneys received from the sale of such stamps, and deposited to the credit of the director-general of posts. In fact, let your inquiry or investigation be very full and complete, and embrace all transactions of that bureau from January 1st. It is suggested that Special Agents Sullivan and Letherman be assigned to this duty.

Very respectfully,

E. G. RATHBONE,
Director-General.

DEPARTMENT OF POSTS OF CUBA,
OFFICE OF DIRECTOR,
Habana, Cuba, May 27, 1899.

GEO. C. MAYNARD, Esq.,
Chief Special Agent, Habana, Cuba.

SIR: We have the honor to return the papers in Case No. 551-C, relating to the investigation of the bureau of finance, department of posts of Cuba, and to submit the following report:

We investigated this case on the 26th instant and concluded same to-day. We found the bureau of finance under charge of the chief of the bureau, Charles F. W. Neely, and found the property in his charge carefully preserved, the books and accounts well kept and accurate, and the moneys for which he is responsible was produced upon request and counted by us.

A summary of the accounts of the bureau of finance is given below:

Charles F. W. Neely, Dr.

Jany. 2, 1899.	To stamps and stamped paper rec'd	$290,000.00
Jany. 15, 1899.	To stamps and stamped paper rec'd	200,000.00
Jany. 29, 1899.	To stamps and stamped paper rec'd	33,149.00
March 17, 1899.	To stamps and stamped paper rec'd	10,000.00
April 17, 1899.	To stamps and stamped paper rec'd	1,000.00
April 17, 1899.	To cash rec'd P. M. at New York	20,000.00
May 11, 1899.	To cash rec'd P. M. at New York	25,000.00
May 11, 1899.	To stamps received	10,000.00
May 26, 1899.	To stamps received	1,000.00
May 26, 1899.	To box-rent collections	1,541.48

CONTRA CR.

By stamps on hand May 26, 1899	378,772.38
By department warrants and receipts	700.58
By certificates of deposit, N. American Trust Co	174,500.00
By accounts for stamps furnished P. M's	30,349.72
By loss on copper coin received at par	4,345.00
By cash on hand	3,022.82
Total credits	591,690.48

The items of debit agree exactly with the records of the bureau of postal accounts, except that the item of $1,541.48, for box-rent collections is not charged against the bureau of finance in the records of the bureau of postal accounts.

We recommend that a blank form be prepared and sent to each postmaster, and that he be required to report thereon, monthly, at end of each month, the amount of his box-rent collections for that month, and enclose with his remittance of the amount of such collections to the bureau of finance one copy of such report, and in same mail send a copy of such report to the bureau of postal accounts, and that the latter bureau charge the amount to the bureau of finance.

In the items of credit given the bureau of finance, the item of accounts of postmasters for stamps furnished, $30,349.72, is accredited from the records of that bureau, which holds the receipts of postmasters for a larger sum, but the accounts of postmasters have been credited from time to time with the remittances, so that we believe the accounts are in the main correct. As the bureau of postal accounts does not keep records of accounts with postmasters, there seems to be no absolute or accurate check against the bureau of finance in the matter of his accounts with postmasters, but as no postmaster has yet complained of not receiving proper credit, we feel sure that the accounts are accurate.

We recommend that blank forms of quarterly or monthly reports be supplied to postmasters, and that they be required to report the exact state of their accounts, monthly or quarterly, including stamps on hand at previous report, stamps received since, stamps sold (during month or quarter), amount of collections of box rents' newspaper and periodical postage, and from miscellaneous sources, and credit themselves with amount of remittances on postal-fund account. These reports being sent to the bureau of postal accounts, will serve as a check upon the accuracy of the accounts of the chief of the bureau of finance.

We recommend that this case be closed.

Very respectfully,

WM. T. SULLIVAN,
LAWRENCE LETHERMAN,
Special Agents.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, February 5, 1900.

Mr. C. F. W. NEELY,
Chief Bureau of Finance, Habana, Cuba.

SIR: The War Department has called the attention of the auditor for the island of Cuba to the fact that you report having received postal funds to the extent of $15,000 in the month of July; in August, $15,000; September, $16,000; October, $17,000; and November, $18,115; and they state that it seems improbable that the monthly postal receipts are accurately given, and direct that a statement showing exact receipts per month be rendered in the future.

In June last I transmitted to you a copy of the order of the President, dated May 8, 1899, containing "Rules and instructions to carry into effect the Executive orders relating to the military government by the United States in the island of Cuba," and so forth. The matter of your monthly deposits during July, August, September, and October, being even amounts, attracted my attention, and in conference with me about it you stated that you had some arrangement with Major Ladd, the treasurer of the island, by which you were to make the deposits as you have done.

Now, in view of the fact that this method of procedure has provoked inquiry squinting towards criticism, I think that in the future you should make your deposits in exact accord with the receipts, and let the records so show, and you are directed to do so in the future.

I hand you herewith a copy of the order of the President, above referred to, for your future guidance in the matter.

Very respectfully,

E. G. RATHBONE,
Director-General.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, March 21, 1900.

Mr. W. H. REEVES,
Acting Auditor for the Island of Cuba, Habana, Cuba.

DEAR SIR: You will remember that when the bureau of postal accounts was organized, under the direction of the Deputy Sixth Auditor, accompanied by a corps of men skilled in postal audits, yourself included, sent here for that purpose, at the completion of his work, and upon his recommendation, I appointed you chief of the bureau of postal accounts, and directed you to see to it well that every voucher, pay roll, or statement upon which money was disbursed that came into your hands or your bureau, should be put in such shape that it would be self-explanatory; in other words, that each voucher, pay roll, or document would be of that character that it would "do its own talking," and explanations would be unnecessary at any future time. When the system of audit now in vogue was put into operation, on July 1, 1899, the bureau of postal accounts, together with all the vouchers, pay rolls, paid money orders, exchange lists, both foreign and domestic, and other papers and blanks, were absorbed by the War Department and an assistant auditor was appointed by the Secretary of War, and assigned to duty in auditing the accounts of the department of posts. That assistant auditor was yourself. As you remember, I then requested you to see to it that all vouchers, etc., were put in proper form; that in case any were presented to you for auditing not in the form indicated above that you were to send them to me, and I would see that they were put in proper form in every regard before being passed. You, in the capacity of chief of the bureau of postal accounts and assistant auditor, have in the past brought to my attention a considerable number, and after conference we have put them in proper form for audit and payment.

I now make the same request of you as acting auditor for the island, to the end that our business may be conducted in such a way that no explanations will be necessary—that the records will be self-explanatory.

Very respectfully,

E. G. RATHBONE,
Director-General.

Copy of statement of P. H. Bristow, chief clerk, department of posts, concerning destruction of surcharged stamps.

DEPARTMENT OF POSTS OF CUBA,
Habana, June 5, 1900.

Hon. J. L. BRISTOW,
Acting Director-General of Posts, Present.

SIR: On the afternoon of the day on which a commission appointed by General Rathbone to destroy surcharged stamps reported to have destroyed $310,000 worth, I had been out in the city for some purpose in connection with the work of the department. Upon my return to the department, as near as I can remember now, about 3 o'clock, the wagon which was then doing the hauling for the department, was standing in the yard near the foot of the stairs leading up to the department offices. I remember to have noticed that it was pretty well filled with packages, which I understood to be packages of stamps being taken to the electrozone plant for destruction. The parties composing the commission were present and about ready to start for the electrozone plant. My recollection is that one member of the commission asked me if I cared to go and see the destruction. I hesitated a moment, because it was getting near the time when the mail would be brought to my desk for signature, and I felt that I would hardly have the time to spare. I, however, did go, and think I went in a conveyance with the commission or some member of it. When there the contents of the wagon, said to contain stamps, were thrown onto the floor of the boiler room, and the engineer notified that the commission was there, ready to proceed with the burning. Some party, whom I supposed to be the engineer, came down and declined to allow the packages to be thrown in without cutting. I recollect distinctly that some packages were cut open and thrown into the furnace, and confident that they contained surcharged stamps. I do not think I was in the boiler room to exceed twenty or thirty minutes, during which time the fireman was burning the stamps as rapidly as his fire would consume them. It was a slow process, because the fireman claimed that to burn them rapidly would smother his fire. Realizing that my work at the office was awaiting me, and not having any official connection whatever with the commission, and therefore no responsibility in connection with the burning, I left the commission still at work. To the best of my recollection, this was about 4 o'clock. The next morning I remember to have asked one of the commission what time they completed the destruction, and was informed by him that it was between 5 and 6 o'clock. I know nothing whatever of what occurred after leaving the engine room, and only know that up to the time I left surcharged stamps were being destroyed.

Yours, very truly,

P. H. BRISTOW,
Chief Clerk.

Copy of report of Inspectors Holmes and Owen, embodying statement of D. Marfield, ex-chief bureau of registration and member of commission to destroy surcharged stamps.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF POST-OFFICE INSPECTOR,
Cincinnati, Ohio, May 29, 1900.

Mr. W. J. VICKERY,
Inspector in Charge, Cincinnati, Ohio.

SIR: Complying with your request to interview Delano Marfield as to his relation to the destruction of surcharged Cuban stamps, we went to Circleville, Ohio, evening of the 24th instant, and about 11 o'clock same evening secured an audience with him. In answer to questions he made the following statement:

I reached Habana, Cuba, January 7, 1899, and was assigned to duty as chief of registry division of the post-office, that city. On February 15 following I was designated by Director-General of Posts Rathbone as chief of registry bureau for the island of Cuba. Some time later, on a date I can not fix, Mr. Rathbone said they had received a supply of Cuban stamps, and that all previously received surcharged United States stamps were ordered to be destroyed, at the same time indicating that I would be designated as one of the commissioners to supervise the destruction. Later in the day I was served with formal notification of my selection for this duty.

Within three days Clerk Marshall, in office of C. F. W. Neely, chief bureau of finance, came to me and said that the commission was ready to proceed with destruction of surcharged stamps. I accompanied the messenger to Mr. Neely's office, and there found C. F. W. Neely, W. H. Reeves, auditor, and Gen. P. H. Bristow. We four proceeded to a carriage. When we reached the street, there stood an army wagon loaded with packages which were represented to me as the stamps to be burned. These were in charge of a driver and porters, and this was my first act in any way looking to fulfillment of duties of this assignment. Who had made a count or supervised the loading of the stamps I don't know. They were in what I took to be original packages of 10,000 and 50,000 stamps, but wrappers from the latter were torn off finally and packages placed in the furnace, all in 10,000 form. The three above named, with myself, entered the carriage, followed the wagon as it was driven to the electrozone plant, in the furnace of which the burning was to take place.

Arriving there, Mr. Neely supervised unloading of the wagon, calling amounts and denominations, which Mr. Reeves checked off a list previously prepared, when packages were thrown down a chute to the furnace room and from there into the furnace, the operation occupying about four hours to complete the burning. I made no investigation as to contents of packages except in this: It was a well-known fact that one of the plates used in surcharging 5-cent stamps misspelled Cuba on the fourth stamp from the top right-hand row, the word being spelled "Cupa," and I suggested to Mr. Neely that we open all stamps of that denomination and take out this particular stamp, which was done, a work in which Mr. Bristow assisted, and he subsequently got a portion of the stamps. I got 100 and paid $5 for them in Mr. Neely's office. From this fact I know that what purported to be 5-cent stamps in this lot were such, and in the handling a number of packages were broken and am sure these also contained stamps.

A week or ten days later a second lot were burned, the details of which correspond to above relation, except that in this lot was a number of stamps damaged by adhesion and not wrapped. I am not certain there were any 5-cent stamps in second lot. After the burning was completed I signed a statement with Neely and Reeves—do not think Bristow signed it—which gave particulars of the burning and as to value and denominations, though I had not counted the stamps and made no extensions of figures, accepting on faith the statement presented to me.

My relations with Mr. Neely and Mr. Reeves were purely official, and the former was, as I understood from current talk, not in the service for personal benefits, but was rather more the agent of capitalists looking for investments than an employee of the department of posts.

Respectfully,

A. R. HOLMES,
A. P. OWEN,
Post-Office Inspectors.

Report examined, approved, and forwarded to chief inspector May 29, 1900.

W. J. VICKERY,
Post-Office Inspector in Charge Division.

EXHIBIT 22.

Copy of statement of W. H. Reeves concerning Cuban postal frauds.

I came to Habana about the 27th of January, 1899. I first came as clerk in the department of posts and was assigned to the bureau of postal accounts. I was appointed as chief of the bureau of accounts on February 8, 1899, which was discontinued June 30. My title was changed to assistant auditor of the island of Cuba and auditor for the department of posts. I was then appointed by the military government and was an employee of the War Department.

FIRST BURNING OF STAMPS.

Three or four days before the burning of the stamps I was designated by General Rathbone as a member of a committee of three, the other members of which were C. F. W. Neely and Delano Marfield, for the purpose of destroying Cuban surcharged stamps. We were ordered to destroy all surcharged stamps on hand, reserving enough to satisfy stamp collectors, who had been sending in orders from all over the world. Nothing was said as to the number to be reserved. The committee was present when the stamps were taken from the vault, and they were called out by me to Mr. Neely, who wrote down the numbers and denominations, and were called back by Mr. Marfield. We followed the dray which carried the stamps to the electrozone plant.

All of us assisted in taking them out and laying them on the floor of the engine room. There was a wagon load of them. It took from about 1.30 until 5 o'clock to burn them. The packages of stamps were not opened and examined further than the wrappers of the large packages containing the smaller packages of 50,000. The wrappers of the packages of 50,000 were not broken by us. Apparently these packages were properly sealed. When they were taken from the wagon they were called off as at the vault, Mr. Neely doing the checking on same memorandum as he had at the vault, the other members of the committee not knowing absolutely by verification that the number finally submitted to them by Mr. Neely was a true memorandum of the actual number of packages of stamps by denominations that were burned, although the members of the committee had no cause to doubt Mr. Neely's good faith as to a true memorandum. After the burning, the committee returned to the department of posts, where Neely's memorandum was footed up, showing $310,000, of which total each member of the committee took and preserved a memorandum, and the next morning the report was typewritten, signed, and turned over to General Rathbone.

About a week or ten days after the burning of the stamps Mr. Neely came into my office where I was alone and, in substance, said that we (meaning the committee) had not destroyed all the stamps we reported we had, and that he (Neely) "fixed" the packages of stamps. In a conversation which ensued between Neely and myself, he gave no information as to how many stamps, what denomination or value, he had saved, where they were then, or what he proposed to do with them. Neely did not caution me about giving any information as to what he had said, but merely stated he would see me later. But I knew how intimate he was with General Rathbone, and that any requests from him to General Rathbone would have been sufficient to cause my removal, and the entries having been made, reports rendered, and credit given, I did not give any information as to what Mr. Neely had disclosed to me. During the conversation with Neely I warned him that he could not run any crooked work through my office. If I had gone down to General Rathbone and stated that Neely said so and so, Neely in turn would have told General Rathbone that it was not so, and as Neely had so much influence with Rathbone it would have only been one man's word against another's, and my word would not amount to anything against Neely's with General Rathbone. I did not see the interior of the vault, and therefore do not know that the alleged reason for destroying these stamps, namely, to secure necessary space in the vault, was a valid one.

The next thing that appeared unusual or irregular was in connection with the shipping of furniture to the island for post-office uses. Miscellaneous expense items of Neely for one month showed two items of freight—one near the top of the entries, presumably about the beginning of the month, and another near the bottom, presumably near the close of the month—one for $100 or more and another for slightly less. On asking Mr. Neely as to why these two items appeared in the same account, his explanation was that the first item was for freight that was paid on furniture coming from the States to Habana, and the last on furniture going from Habana over the island. This same thing was repeated for two or three months, no further explanation being asked.

SECOND BURNING OF STAMPS.

Something like a day or two before the second lot of stamps were to be burned General Rathbone called the committee, consisting of the same three persons, into his office. He said that there were a lot of stuck and other stamps that Mr. Neely wanted to get rid of in order to secure more room in the vault.

After leaving General Rathbone's office I said to Mr. Neely that no crooked work goes this time. He in substance replied, "No; that the other did not amount to anything anyway," to which I said, "Whether it amounted to anything or not, it does not go this time." At the vault the stamps were checked out as before, only I made the memorandum while Neely called out of the vault and Mr. Marfield called back. They were taken in the yard and piled behind the wagon, and on checking into the wagon a small package of $5.38 was missing, whereupon the wagon was unloaded and a rechecking had, the missing package being found slipped underneath the fold or wrapping of a larger package.

At the furnace they were checked out of the wagon, Mr. Neely making the memorandum.

As to stamps burned on this occasion, there were about seven or eight large packages, that is, packages consisting of 200,000 stamps; there were a number of smaller packages of 50,000 stamps each. There was one 50,000-stamp package that was stuck and broken in halves, which from its general dimensions we considered to be a full 50,000 package, besides which there were smaller packages of loose and stuck stamps. These loose stamps were counted as far as could be done, those that were badly stuck being accepted at the figures shown by the postmasters as to the number and denominations of stamps they claimed to be in such packages. I cut open the full packages of stamps, so cutting around the wrapping as to see that they actually contained the stamps of denominations as shown on wrapper, after which they were all thrown into the furnace and burned. This burning consumed about two or three hours. The counting of the loose stamps did not consume any considerable amount of time, as there were only about $6 of the loose stamps. While I do not recall definitely, I am of the opinion that the stuck stamps taken at the postmasters' figures, outside of the large 50,000-stamp packages, did not amount to more than about $50.

As in the first instance, on returning to the office the memorandum was footed up, the same showing opposite each item four check marks indicating the four checkings, the total amount being about eighty-two thousand odd dollars, of which total each member of the committee kept a memorandum, the original being sealed in an envelope and left on Neely's desk overnight. The next morning report was rendered to General Rathbone, signed by members of the committee. On both occasions the reports of the burning of stamps were dictated by Mr. Neely and prepared in his office.

After the second burning of stamps Neely did not associate with me as freely or intimately as he had previously done, probably attributable to my conduct as to verifying so closely the stamps at the second burning.

There was a written agreement between E. M. Gadsden, chief clerk of the money-order division, and General Rathbone to the effect that when the United States or Cuba owed the other a balance of a given amount (thought to be $50,000), remittance should be made by the country owing. As a matter of fact this agreement was not lived up to as to prompt depositing of balances from Cuba, because as much as $900,000 were taken to the United States by Mr. Neely at one time; hence, owing to this situation, there would be no means of knowing exactly how much money-order funds Neely actually had in his vault, except by verification by General Rathbone, either in person or through special agents acting upon his direct authorization or instructions. Of course, it could be determined by certificates of remittances the amount that he should have on hand or the amount that he was chargeable with. I have no knowledge as to how or in what manner Neely manipulated the money-order funds.

From about the middle of December until about the 1st of March, I was not at the office more than about four or five days at irregular intervals, on account of sickness. I countersigned the usual warrants drawn up in the department of posts and brought me by Mr. Reynolds, chief clerk, or other clerks in my office, during which time, of course, I had no knowledge as to what papers were presented. Mr. Reynolds was designated as acting auditor, effective January 17, and he acted from that time until March 1. After the 1st of March I was in the office seventeen days, and then I was made acting auditor for the island. I was acting auditor until the 17th of April, during which period Mr. Reynolds was acting assistant auditor, and continued as such up to the date of his suspension; as, subsequent to April 17, I continued in the office of the auditor of the island up to the date of my suspension. Owing to the reasons as stated, I have not had much to do with Neely's accounts during the present year, and do not recall anything unusual about them, as, while acting auditor for the island, I would merely receive consolidated reports without vouchers. The records of my office in a measure are accessible to any officials of the department of posts, and I recall at least two occasions when Mr. Neely brought up his book, or books, for comparison, and on one of these occasions directed Mr. Lehman to go through with him, and, so far as my knowledge goes, there was never any alterations of books or records in my office to aid Mr. Neely in covering up shortages or discrepancies in his accounts. As to balances furnished to General Rathbone for the purpose of the inspection by his special agents, they were given him by Mr. Reynolds, of which I had no direct knowledge as to the figures or verification of same. If the proper items of debits and credits on postal account were verified and adjusted, they would show the true situation. If the auditor furnished false balances for the use of special agents, practically the only way he could have done so would have been by undercharging the debit side of Neely's account or overcrediting the credit side.

Of course, I was not in the department of posts when Colonel Burton made his inspection, but on the car one evening he said to me that he was going down to make an inspection. I reminded him that I was not there, and he said he supposed he would find Mr. Reynolds. Notwithstanding my employment in the auditor's office, I continued eating my breakfast in my old office in the department of posts, as assistant auditor of posts, and, as usual, did so on the day that Mr. Neely left.

MR. NEELY'S DEPARTURE.

While alone and eating my breakfast, Mr. Neely came in. He said: "I understand Burton wants me, and I am going to New York this afternoon." He said the "old man" (meaning Rathbone) had called upon him pretty heavy, and if there was a shortage he (Neely) would have to put up, and I asked him what in hell he was giving Rathbone money for, and he said he needed Rathbone's protection; and then I asked what Rathbone spent it for, and he told me Rathbone had sent him, from Washington or New York, a paper pertaining to his real estate transactions, which paper he had kept in his vault for him; and from what was said, without any figures, I judge the amount to be about $7,000. In addition to that, he stated the old man was hard up and had had numerous troubles with his real estate, and that he needed lots of money and would need lots more before he was done, and, judging from the conversation, I took the amount to be from $12,000 to $15,000 he had given to Rathbone, all told. I asked him if he was not going to stay and talk to Burton, and he said "No," his leave had been granted and he was going to New York, either to the Presbyterian or Bellevue Hospital, to see a surgeon there and to make arrangements for future operation for hernia; then he would go to Muncie, Ind. (his home), and from there to Missouri to his lead mines, and thence to California to see his wife, and that he might see Taylor before he came back. Mr. Taylor was a young man who went to South America to look after a cocoanut deal between Neely, Taylor, and others. Then he said, laying this package of money on the table, "Old sport, here is something you can study and practice dentistry on, and now fix the books so they will talk." I begged him to stay, and told him I would not have it, that I would not do it; but he turned and went out, and in a few minutes he had taken the small boat and gone for the New York boat. I locked the sealed envelope, containing the money, in my private desk, to which no one else had a key. This being Saturday, I did not open and count the money until during the breakfast hour on Monday, when I found it to be $4,600. I put it in a safe in the department of posts and kept it there for four or five days, and then brought it out to my house, where I kept it in my possession until last night, when I turned it over to General Wood. On the following Sunday I visited the office for the money; otherwise I was not in the auditor's office of the department of posts until the day of my suspension.

On the day that I received my suspension, I had on my person my salary of $250 and about $10 personal funds, also $100 which had been paid to me by Postmaster Thompson, making altogether $360. This I inclosed in an envelope with my letter of suspension, sealed, and gave it to Harold G. Nicholas to bring out to my wife, it being a precautionary measure in view of a possibility of arrest—not caring to be arrested by a Cuban with that amount of money on my person.

I do not know of any irregularities on the part of the special agents except as to taking up Spanish silver in post-offices at the rate of 60 cents in American money for $1 in Spanish money, which I am of the opinion has been generally done, but only know specifically as to Special Agent Welch. This was on a holiday in last spring or summer, when a party, of which he and I were members, went to Matanzas, and Mr. Welch addressed the stamp clerk as "Mack" and directed him to give him (Welch) what Spanish silver he had, for which he gave him 60 cents on the dollar. I have no knowledge or intimation of any collusion between the special agents and Mr. Neely or anyone else, except in their not discovering any irregularities in making their checkups. While I do not know how or through whom Mr. Welch obtained his appointment, he came here on transportation or commission as assistant superintendent of the Railway Mail Service, and told me soon after he came here that he came to be assistant director of posts.

Only money-order postmasters furnish me reports—that of money-order business. It is my understanding that bonded postmasters furnish monthly postal accounts to Mr. Neely's office, and at my suggestion Sullivan and Letherman recommended that the auditor be furnished with proper accounts by postmasters of their postal business.

There is borne on the pay rolls of the department of posts a messenger who acts as a coachman and a messenger who is employed in the capacity of footman at General Rathbone's, as well as the coachman. (The messenger acting as footman resigned April 25, 1900.) Dr. Carter was formerly General Rathbone's family physician in Ohio, and I have seen him at times when he said he was going to Rathbone's. He had charge of the carpenters and the department of posts building, and I have heard that he and carpenters under him performed various work at General Rathbone's. I have heard that he has had $900 worth of plumbing done at General Rathbone's house, which was to be paid for by the department, which bill, however, had not been presented for payment to my knowledge. I think in the contract for the house it was specified that certain repairs were to be made at the house. A messenger to Mr. P. H. Bristow, by name Samuel Tutson, has told me on different occasions that he had been working for Mrs. Rathbone, sometimes for two or three days, and at one time to my knowledge he stayed two or three weeks. The laundry of livery for coachman was done at the expense of the department of posts, and, as General Rathbone said, upon instructions to him from the Postmaster-General, he put the coachman and footman in livery, and as they were not able from their salary to pay for laundry bills they were paid for by the department.

In Neely's trips to the States he was ordered to go by General Rathbone, who apparently did not question the amount of his expenditures, which were charged up to the department of posts, and on commenting once to General Rathbone about Neely stopping at the Waldorf-Astoria the General's reply was that he (Rathbone) had ordered him to go and that it was all right. On the last trip that General Rathbone made to the States there was submitted for him an expense account, which was typewritten and brought to me by his private secretary, Wilmot, in which the items of hotel expenses were substantiated by the vouchers, showing various items for bar expenses, wine, cigars, and also tailor's bills for pressing trousers, etc., which I refused to allow, and new bills were submitted leaving out the disallowed items. On this visit to the States General Rathbone carried with him $500, and subsequently received two warrants of $500 each to meet his expenses on the trip to the States, which was made in accordance with orders from the Postmaster-General. On his return he turned back $673, which was turned over to Mr. Neely to be redeposited, and Mr. Neely's receipt turned over to the bookkeeper to be charged.

As to the purchase of post-office furniture, boxes, fixtures, and printing—all that was contracted for or purchased by Mr. Neely.

Additional statements by Will H. Reeves on May 24, 1900, at Vedado, Cuba, to Inspector Gregory.

After the sentence ending "Money-order funds," page 160, last line top paragraph, I desire to state that I found out to-day as to a money-order transaction of Neely's.

About August 18, 1899, I drew a money-order warrant by written direction of director-general of posts (which is on file in assistant auditor's office) for the sum of $60,000-odd, payable to E. P. Thompson, postmaster at Habana, who indorsed said warrant to chief of money-order bureau, who should have purchased New York exchange for this amount and forwarded to Postmaster-General of the United States. Upon checking through money-order account to-day (May 24) with Mr. A. L. Lawshe, assistant auditor, I found that this sum of $60,000-odd had not been sent to the United States as required, but had been turned over to C. F. W. Neely on August 24, 1899, as shown by his receipt to the director-general of posts, which receipt was not delivered to my office until after March 27, 1900. (I was informed by Mr. Dibbig that General Rathbone was given a receipt the day that the receipt was sent up to the auditor's office.) Superintendent of the Money-Order Bureau Gerst should have furnished me a receipt the day Neely gave him a receipt.

Copy of report of commission on destruction of surcharged stamps.

The Honorable DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, Cuba.

SIR: The committee appointed to destroy the surcharged stamps beg leave to make the following report:

Stamps in the original sealed packages were taken from the vault in the bureau of finance and transported to the engine room of the electrozone plant, where permission had been granted to burn said stamps in the fire boxes under their boilers, the committee being present until all stamps were completely destroyed. The committee burned stamps of the following amounts and denominations:

2,000,000 2-cent stamps	$40,000.00
3,000,000 3-cent stamps	90,000.00
3,200,000 5-cent stamps	160,000.00
200,000 10-cent stamps	20,000.00
Total	310,000.00

A considerable quantity of "stuck" stamps and stamps from broken packages were not burned on account of lack of time to count them, and they will be destroyed at some future date. We recommend that the auditor for the department of posts be instructed to credit the account of the chief, bureau of finance in the sum of $310,000.

Respectfully submitted.

C. F. W. NEELY,
DELANO MARFIELD,
W. H. REEVES,
Committee.

Copy of letter, September 13, 1899, from director-general to assistant auditor concerning destruction of surcharged stamps.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, September 13, 1899.

Mr. W. H. REEVES,
Auditor for the Department of Posts, Habana, Cuba.

SIR: On the 11th instant I appointed a commission consisting of C. F. W. Neely, chief of the bureau of finance, Delano Marfield, chief of the registry bureau, and W. H. Reeves, assistant auditor for the island, to count and destroy surcharged stamps in the hands of the bureau of finance, because said stamps have become of no value on account of the recent issue of Cuban stamps. In compliance with my order the commission proceeded on the 11th instant to destroy stamps as per order above, and report that they have burned and completely destroyed the following amounts and denominations:

2,000,000 2-cent stamps	$40,000.00
3,000,000 3-cent stamps	90,000.00
3,200,000 5-cent stamps	160,000.00
200,000 10-cent stamps	20,000.00
Total	310,000.00

You are therefore hereby requested to credit the above amount of $310,000 to the account of the chief, bureau of finance, department of posts of Cuba, and I will thank you to acknowledge receipt of this communication.

Very respectfully,

E. G. RATHBONE,
Director-General.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, September 13, 1899.

The honorable the POSTMASTER-GENERAL,
Washington, D. C.

SIR: By reason of the large amount of money being taken in by the money-order system our vault became very much crowded, and after a conference with the governor-general I made an order appointing a commission to count and destroy the old surcharged United States stamps, a copy of which order is herewith attached, together with a copy of the commission's report.

I also hand you a copy of a request upon the auditor to give the bureau of finance credit for $310,000, the value of the stamps destroyed.

I might add that Mr. P. H. Bristow, the chief clerk, witnessed the destruction of the stamps in connection with the commission.

Very respectfully,

E. G. RATHBONE,
Director-General.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF POST-OFFICE INSPECTOR,
Muncie, Ind., July 9, 1900.

Mr. W. J. VICKERY,
Post-Office Inspector in Charge, Cincinnati, Ohio.

SIR: Answering the requests of letter from chief post-office inspector, bearing date of the 5th instant, for further particulars in certain matters heretofore subject of report in connection with official and personal conduct of C. F. W. Neely, late chief of bureau of finance, departments of posts, Cuba, I have the honor to meet compliance in the following:

As to the $1,973.23 deposited by the said Neely in Union National Bank, Muncie, Ind., from October 15 to December 20, 1898, the "inquisitor" was unable to find details, but was advised that same was make up of local checks and credits arising presumably in the legitimate business of the Neely Printing Company. A more specific accounting, however, for $1,500 of this sum will appear below.

On May 16 last Inspector Fletcher and myself attempted to interview Thomas C. Campbell in relation to the deal by which he was supposed to become joint owner with R. H. Cowan, of Neely Printing Company plant for which they were to pay $16,000. In that interview Campbell assumed a crafty rôle and attempted to avoid an answer to every pertinent question. The only thing of value gotten from him was a denial that any mortgage had ever been given on the property under date of December 13, 1898, which went to show he was not in the confidence of Neely and Cowan. In interview to-day he assumed a different attitude, professes to be willing to tell, but has no memory for dates or details. He says he came here, he thinks, in October, 1898, from Zanesville, Ohio, at instance of his brother, who is in the Hoosier Printing Company, a rival concern, for the purpose of buying into the Neely Printing Company.

He had an interview with Cowan by which an agreement was entered into to purchase the Neely plant. Just how much they were to pay for it, how much time to pay it in, what interest deferred payments were to bear, whether notes were given representing such payments, or anything else a business or ordinarily sane man would remember with distinctness, he does not seem to know with any certainty.

The only thing he is clear about is they were each to pay down in cash $1,500. After this arrangement with Cowan he saw Neely, to whom he gave cash $1,000 on October 13, 1898, and his individual note for $500, which was never paid, but taken up and returned to him from Union National Bank, when, as he puts it, they released him from the contract. Mr. Campbell talks and acts just like a man coached in a story and then afraid to cut loose and tell it for fear he would tell more. He fully remembers every detail of the deal, and his uncertainty is a gauzy subterfuge, intended to carry out some one's request not to tell the crooks of that transaction which he had discovered and charged them with before he secured return of his money.

The $1,000 received from Campbell, Neely deposited in Union Bank two days later, and subsequently he discounted in same bank the note for $500 given by Campbell in lieu of balance cash payment.

These items are part of the unexplained deposit to which reference is made above. There is no tangible evidence of any payment on part of Cowan.

In the matter of the $10,000 mortgage given to secure back payments. On May 29, Jesse La Follette, assistant United States attorney, filed a proceeding in attachment against the Neely printing plant before Judge Baker in United States district court, Indianapolis, Ind., under order of the Attorney-General, on information furnished by Inspector Burton, that C. F. W. Neely was a defaulter as chief of bureau of finance, Cuba, in the sum of $45,875. On service of attachment Ross H. Cowan came into court and represented himself as sole owner of the property attached and asked that said property be released. The court directed appraisement and release of property when claimant should execute a bond in the sum of $10,000 as security therefor, and fixed June 15 following as answer day. Appraisement was made, as ordered, and the property of the Neely Printing Company returned at a valuation of $4,874, and indemnity bond given by Cowan as directed by the court. On day fixed Ross H. Cowan made answer that he was the owner of all the property held under the name of the Neely Printing Company, but that in the purchase of this property a mortgage of $10,000 had been executed to secure deferred payments with accruing interest to C. F. W. Neely; that this mortgage was still in force and there was yet unpaid thereon the sum of $4,833.10.

There being so little difference between the appraised value of the plant and the admitted mortgage interest of C. F. W. Neely, the court, on the approval of the United States attorney, entered judgment by default against Neely for sum named in the petition in attachment, and on the 6th instant ordered R. H. Cowan to pay to the court amounts maturing to the full value of the mortgage interest of C. F. W. Neely.

To-day, Mr. La Follette, assistant United States attorney, says he consented to this arrangement believing fully that on a trial as to rights of property judgment would be given against Neely, as no question exists in his mind that the title rests with him. In preliminary proceedings witnesses were subpœnaed for the purpose of locating this mortgage, Mr. Cowan disclaiming all knowledge of it. In a recent interview, when other matters were under discussion, he unwittingly disclosed the fact that he had this instrument. To-day I asked him to see the writing, and return herewith a copy of paper produced.

This mortgage was properly executed and stamped on the 13th day of October, 1898, the date on which Mr. Cowan says he and T. C. Campbell became owners of this plant and executed ten notes of $1,000 each in part payment for same, the mortgage to operate as a security for payment of said notes. When Mr. Cowan gave me the mortgage it was with the explanation that it was the same that had been transferred to Miehle Printing Press and Manufacturing Company, Chicago, Ill., December 13, 1898, to secure claim of $1,000 due that company from C. F. W. Neely, and that he, Cowan, had paid this claim. What business he would have with the mortgage while there was yet due on it over $4,800, he did not explain.

An examination of the mortgage led to further scrutiny of mortgage records, which disclose the fact that this mortgage was never recorded and never transferred to anyone and has evidently never been out of the hands of Mr. Cowan since date of execution, but was a blind, when executed, to deceive Campbell, and never intended for delivery to Neely.

On December 13, 1898, the Miehle Press Manufacturing Company were threatening extreme measures against that gentleman for nonpayment of bills due them, when a copy of this mortgage was made and executed before a different notary than the one who executed original and transferred to that company by Mr. Neely with the first note of the series described in body of the instrument. Mr. Cowan claims, in his answer in court, to have redeemed five of these notes, yet the only one he could produce to me was the one transferred to the Miehle Company, and says he does not know where others are. Undoubtedly, like the mortgage, they never passed from the hands of Cowan, who was the stalking-horse from behind which Neely purposed robbing Campbell, his necessities driving him to the deed, as visions of the affluence which Cuba offered had not yet dawned upon him, no thought of such an assignment being at the time in his mind. Cowan is certainly the custodian of both mortgages, but in error gave me the original instead of the Miehle paper.

The file of private papers was disposed of by Neely on his return from New York, May 9, together with everything else in Neely Printing Company offices that would show color of wrong.

Packages attached in hands of the postmaster at Muncie, Ind., and addressed to C. F. W. Neely, care Union Bank, that city, postmarked San José, Costa Rica, is source of the newspaper story as to package of surcharged stamps, but on opening this package in presence of and by order of the court on the 6th instant it was found to contain printed matter giving an idea of industrial condition in that island and a friendly letter giving suggestions as to outlook for banking business in San José—all of no significance, except as showing that Mr. Neely was discounting discovery and looking for a safe retreat.

I trust above will be found to cover specifically all matters of request to which reference is made above.

Very respectfully, A. R. HOLMES,
Post-Office Inspector.

Report examined, approved, and forwarded to chief inspector July 11, 1900.

W. J. VICKERY,
Post-office Inspector in Charge of Division.

[Personal.]

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF POST-OFFICE INSPECTOR,
Muncie, Ind., May 17, 1900.

MR. W. J. VICKERY,
Inspector in Charge, Cincinnati, Ohio.

SIR: In compliance with your direction of May 9, 1900, to proceed to Muncie, Ind., and establish a watch and report upon the actions of C. F. W. Neely, released the preceding day on a preliminary bond of $20,000 by United States commissioner in New York City, to answer on May 17 for the alleged commission of postal crimes in the island of Cuba, and subsequent instructions to investigate all matters found here throwing light upon his personal and official transactions since assuming the position of fiscal agent for that island, we have to report that Mr. Neely reached this city at 1.40 p. m. of the 9th instant and at once proceeded to the office of the Neely Printing Company, his relations with which will be the subject of discussion hereafter.

With him came Inspector W. H. Boyle, of the New York division, in conjunction with whom we maintained the watch desired until the departure of Mr. Neely for New York on the 14th instant, Inspector Boyle accompanying him.

During his stay here Mr. Neely spent his days at the office of the Neely Printing Company, lodging and eating his meals mainly at the old homestead, now occupied by his sisters, Mrs. Frances Russey and Emma R. Neely. The variations from this habit were a few calls from relatives and three meals taken with friends who wished to show their abiding faith in his integrity.

To have kept track of who visited him at Neely Printing Company offices, where all conferences were held between him and those having close business relations with him, or to know what was revealed at those conferences, was not feasible. His one purpose seemed to be, in the greatest degree possible, to avoid contact with the public and furnish no satisfaction to the simply curious by offering himself as a free show in public.

His first caller after arrival was Harry Ritchie, who returned with him on boat from Habana, and for a year past has been in charge of the supply division under Mr. Neely in that city, but on his return was assigned to the position of stamp clerk in Muncie postoffice.

Mr. Ritchie has since been interviewed as to the purposes of this call, and occurrences thereat, but denies that it had any relation to the trouble into which Mr. Neely had fallen, and says that matter was in no way discussed beyond the expression of a hope by him that the matter would be speedily cleared up.

In reference to his duties at Habana, he says in his custody was placed the stock of stamped paper, blanks, and general supplies; that when an invoice of stamped paper would be received he would report the amount to the proper officer, and when an order would come for a case of envelopes, wrappers, or cards, it would be turned over to a porter to be delivered to the person making the order, which closed the transaction, no record being made by him in any case.

Before he sailed, at the request of Mr. Neely he packed three boxes with personal effects of the latter, took them to the registry division, and there had them forwarded free as official matter to the address, "C. F. W. Neely, Muncie, Ind." He says the only thing put in having the color of official matter was 1,700 stamped envelopes, not surcharged; but whose property they were he does not know.

These registers with contents have been fully described in special report made by Inspector Furniss, of recent date.

The next person to visit him, whose visit was prompted by more than friendly interest, was Carl A. Spilker, president Union National Bank. For some five years past C. F. W. Neely has been a depositor in this bank. About October 15, 1898, he deposited $1,000, at the time having no balance. Within a month, possibly, this amount was overchecked, when a credit was again obtained by a further deposit, which in a short while was again exhausted and a small balance shown on the wrong side of the ledger. After January or February, 1899, we do not think any overdrafts will show, and while deposits occur with some regularity no large balances will be found until about July. In August, 1899, something over $13,000 was deposited, one single item being in excess of that sum. Deposits continued up to a recent date, and we are led to believe will show a total of near $40,000, most of it from July, 1899, to April, 1900.

In an interview with Mr. Spilker on the 15th instant he said the bank had nothing to conceal in this matter, when called upon by the mandates of a court to tell, but declined to submit the account for an examination as to details until so called upon. In relation to the cash bond furnished by Mr. Neely, he said credit of $20,000 was wired Seventh National Bank, New York, N. Y., by him on telegraphic request from Mr. Neely, at the time that gentleman holding three certificates of deposit against Union National Bank covering that sum; whether more he did not say. These certificates have since been surrendered to the bank. They had been issued to Neely at different dates and charged to his running account as balances accumulated there. The balance of this account is checked out, $3,110 being drawn on the 9th instant. Checks and memoranda showing disposition by Mr. Neely of the remainder of this money are still in the bank's hands, but liable to be called for at any time, as the account is practically closed.

Mr. Spilker is willing to produce these checks and certificates, but asks, if he or any of his employees should be called as witnesses in this matter, if the leaves of the ledger or attested copy of the entries could not be used instead of the books, since to carry them away for some days would materially interfere with the business of the bank.

As indicated above, the location of Mr. Neely during his stay here was in offices of the Neely Printing Company, the business of which is conducted by one Ross H. Cowan, who claims to be its sole owner.

The company owns a job-printing plant, and was organized as a joint stock company some years since by Charles F. W. Neely. Mr. Cowan says that up to October 13, 1898, Neely owned this plant, having transferred one share each to enough of his friends to meet requirements of statutes governing such organizations; but on that date, following the suggestions of a proposition previously made him by Mr. Neely, he and a party named Thomas C. Campbell entered into an agreement by which they were to take this plant and pay $16,000 for it. He says that some time before this Mr. Neely had submitted to him this proposition, when he had flatly refused to have anything to do with it, by reason of the fact that the price was away beyond the value of the plant.

At that time Mr. Neely said to go ahead and effect a sale at the price and afterwards he would make the right kind of a price for Cowan's share. Evidently it was a case to skin Campbell.

Cowan says each was to pay $1,500, and balance was to be paid in installments and chattel mortgage executed to secure deferred payments. Subsequently Campbell did not prove a satisfactory partner, so Cowan purchased his interest and became ostensibly sole owner of the plant in August, 1899.

An examination of chattel-mortgage records shows that on December 13, 1898, a mortgage for $10,000 was executed by the Neely Printing Company in favor of C. F. W. Neely, to secure payment to him of ten notes of $1,000 each, one to be paid each year for ten years; such notes said to bear date of October 13, 1898. The instrument is executed by R. H. Cowan, president, and Clarence E. Russey, secretary of the Neely Printing Company. On same date the mortgage is transferred to the Miehle Press Manufacturing Company, of Chicago, Ill., by Mr. Neely, evidently executed to be so transferred as security to that company for claims against Neely.

This transaction was without the knowledge of Mr. Campbell, who at the time claims to have been a half owner in the company. Subsequently, Mr. Campbell not proving worth the plucking, when visions of large profits arose to view in connection with printing to be done for the department of posts, Cuba, they got rid of him by refunding his advance.

While Mr. Cowan says he considered himself the owner of this plant, he does not know what his relations to it or obligations toward Mr. Neely are, and he says all profits arising in the business have been applied in canceling that gentleman's obligations contracted prior to October 13, 1898, a portion of which are still unpaid.

Evidently Mr. Neely is just as much owner of the Neely Printing Company to-day as he ever was, and if claim of sale was honest has, in right of this mortgage, a much greater interest than original cost, and would have strong incentive to see it paid out. Mr. Cowan further says the suggestion to do the printing for department of posts, Cuba, was made by Mr. Neely, no prices being stipulated, no contract of any form entered into, but he, Cowan, to fill all orders received, render bills for same in the name of R. H. Cowan & Co., and charge such prices as he willed. The stipulation as to R. H. Cowan & Co. was admittedly to leave the name Neely out of the transaction.

Under this easy arrangement his books show transactions as follows:

Date.	Billed to department of posts, Cuba.	Cash received from department of posts, Cuba.	Date.	Billed to department of posts, Cuba.	Cash received from department of posts, Cuba.

Mr. Cowan has kept no ledger account, but bills are found entered upon a daybook, without certain date, and the word "paid" written against all bills above given. Cash items above are taken from his cashbook, which shows receipts of but $7,937.60, as against bills marked "paid" $8,760. Of the cash items above two were paid by drafts on American Trust Company, New York, the remainder by international money orders issued by Habana, Cuba, on Muncie, Ind. An examination of money records of the latter office shows R. H. Cowan & Co. to have drawn through that source $8,695.90. Add to this Trust Company items referred to above, and we find that Mr. Cowan has received on account of this printing arrangement with Mr. Neely $9,634.10; so that he has received in cash from the department of posts, Cuba, $874.10 for which he has rendered no bills and $1,696.50 more than is accounted for in his cash.

When called upon to explain this condition, or who got the money, Mr. Cowan said he could not explain except on the basis of bad bookkeeping, and further said we would find no fraud in this matter unless it was in the prices charged, and under the arrangement had he did not think that was anybody's business. Mr. Cowan says that for the first few bills someone in Habana took off 10 per cent face of the bills. Who did this, or what for, he claims not to know, but gives it as the reason why bills and cash will not check for first portion of the account. The further checking of this account to determine integrity of same will have to be done from original bills on file in Habana.

In connection with other transactions it has been suggested to us that Mr. Neely carried a deposit account with a New York bank, which would show disposition by him of considerable funds. This reference was undoubtedly aimed at the Seventh National Bank. Two reports which may account for sums not included in disbursements through bank have not been fully investigated. These are payments on brick machinery at Bucyrus, Ohio, and the reported payment of $10,000 to his sister, Kate Wilbur, of Huntington, Ind.

These matters are in process of investigation by us, and will convey all information to you in relation to same when investigation is completed.

Fragmentary suggestions by wire have covered other lines of inquiry as same have arisen.

Very respectfully,

A. R. HOLMES,
W. T. FLETCHER,
Post-Office Inspectors.

The law of Indiana requires annual listing of personal property April 1. Neely has always listed this plant, and Cowan sent him blank to Cuba for that purpose current year.

Cowan practically admitted $5,000 would fit this plant.

Report examined, approved, and forwarded to chief inspector May 19, 1900.

W. J. VICKERY,
Post-Office Inspector, in Charge of Division.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF POST-OFFICE INSPECTORS,
WASHINGTON DIVISION,
Washington, D. C., July 6, 1900.

Hon. J. L. BRISTOW,
Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General, Washington, D. C.

SIR: I have the honor to report that I visited Muncie, Ind., June 26 and 27, 1900, in company with Inspector A. R. Holmes, and made a comparison of the bills sent by R. H. Cowan & Co., of that city, to the department of posts of Cuba, and herewith submit the following report:

I inclose Exhibit A, copies of bills dated from May 6, 1899, to March 15, 1900, from R. H. Cowan & Co., printers, Muncie, Ind., to the department of posts, Cuba, which have been audited and paid.

Exhibit B shows the amount of each bill, how paid, and date of payment. (When paid by money order it was checked from the money-order advices on file in the Muncie, Ind., post-office.) It is also a complete check of all the bills of supplies furnished by R. H. Cowan & Co. to the department of posts, Cuba, showing in each instance the method of payment. It also shows the following discrepancies: Item for $173.50, paid November 25, 1899, is included in bill of same date for $436.10, and is, therefore, a double payment of $173.50. The bill for May, 1899, for $538, and the one for June, 1899, for $515, were audited and paid for the full amount, but Cowan & Co. were paid by checks on the North American Trust Company for $474.20 and $464, a difference of $63.80 in the former and $51 in the latter case. Said amounts, Mr. Cowan claims, were deducted from the amount of bill rendered by Mr. Neely. Mr. Cowan denied rendering the bill for $173.50, or receiving pay for the same, but when confronted with the advice of money order on file in the Muncie post-office for the amount he stated he must have received the money.

Mr. R. H. Cowan claims to be the sole owner of the Neely Printing Company, and that no one has been connected with him in the business since August, 1899.

Very respectfully,

WM. B. SMITH,
Inspector in charge.

Copy of report of Inspector W. T. Fletcher concerning financial condition, etc., of Neely at time of his appointment to Cuban military postal service.

Department of Posts of Cuba,
Bureau of Special Agents,
Habana, June 21, 1900.

Hon. J. L. Bristow,
Acting Director-General of Posts, Habana, Cuba.

Sir: In accordance with your instructions I have the honor to submit the following report as to the antecedents and financial standing of C. F. W. Neely, late chief bureau of finance, department of posts, Cuba, at his home, Muncie, Ind., prior to his appointment.

Upon personal investigation at Muncie I found that he was in financial straits when he received his appointment and that he had filed a schedule to prevent execution upon his personal property and household effects, and that his return to the assessor was only $175 personalty. His partner in the printing business, Mr. R. H. Cowan, informed Inspector Holmes and myself that since Neely's appointment he has settled many claims against him (Neely) at 50 and 75 cents on the dollar.

Neely's reputation in Muncie was that of a speculator, or one who preferred to take long chances on ventures that a conservative man would shrink from. Mr. Fred W. Heath informed me, however, that at the time Neely left Muncie that he considered him worth ten or fifteen thousand dollars, but the following day I met Mr. Cyrus Heath, en route to New York, and he told me that Neely had nothing and that he (Heath) constantly importuned his brother, the Hon. First Asst. P. M. General, to find a place for him in the postal service.

Very respectfully,

W. T. Fletcher,
P. O. Inspector.

BUREAU OF FINANCE,
DEPARTMENT OF POSTS OF CUBA,
Habana, June 29, 1899.

INDIANAPOLIS KEYLESS LOCK COMPANY,
Indianapolis, Indiana.

GENTLEMEN: Will you please to furnish me with prices on post-office outfits as follows:

In the Sadler Co. catalogue No. 15, they have described an outfit "A" and another one "B–16."

I want prices on these two cabinets, fitted with key boxes, three keys to each box, and all boxes to lock—no call boxes.

The prices must be low and goods to be delivered to the post-office in the city where they are manufactured.

Your early attention will greatly oblige,

Respectfully,

C. F. W. NEELY,
Chief, Bureau of Finance.

C. N.

BUREAU OF FINANCE,
DEPARTMENT OF POSTS OF CUBA,
Habana, July 13, 1899.

THE KEYLESS LOCK COMPANY,
Indianapolis, Indiana.

GENTLEMEN: You are hereby authorized to furnish the department of posts of Cuba letter-box cabinets of the size and quantities as follows:

12 cabinets of 32 lock boxes each.
16 cabinets of 64 lock boxes each.
4 cabinets of 96 lock boxes each.
2 cabinets of 192 lock boxes each.

Kind of locks.—The four cabinets of 96 boxes and the four cabinets of 192 boxes to have money-order window, also these eight cabinets to be fitted with one No. 3 M drawer under each two sections of lock boxes. All boxes in each cabinet to be fitted with key-lock boxes, three keys to each box, and all boxes to be made of heavy wrought high-grade brass, double plated with satin nickel, burnished and finished in the best manner. To be fitted with good spring bolts, so as to catch without using key.

Key centers.—Key centers to be countersunk.

Glass panels.—Glass panels to be of double thick French plate, securely held by spring fasteners.

Numbers.—Numbers to be in real gold leaf, with red and black shading.

Framework.—Framework, cornices, base, and ends to be of the best quality of oak, finished in shellac and hard oil. Name clips and numbered cards to be furnished with each box without charge.

Size of boxes.—Size of boxes to be 4⅞" wide, 5½" high, and 12" deep, with dustless bottoms.

Lettering.—On all boxes and drawers instead of U. S. shall be placed the letters "C. M. S." (Cuban Mail Service), and if any lettering on keys it shall be "C. M. S."

General-delivery window.—General-delivery window to be extra wide, fitted with 32 letter divisions and 20 extra large paper boxes, cash and stamp cabinet with spring lock and coin tray, and letter bin with bronze drop.

On the bronze letter drop above the opening will be the word "Letters," and below the opening will be the word "Cartas."

The general-delivery window to have a brass rod wicket with folding oak doors and spring catch. On the sign above the general-delivery window shall be instead of "United States Post-Office" "Correos Cubanos," and in a line on the same plate under this shall be the words "Giros Postales."

Packing.—Each cabinet to be cased separately and delivered to the post-office at Indianapolis, Indiana, at the prices quoted and on file in the office of the bureau of finance, department of posts, Habana, Cuba.

Respectfully,

E. G. RATHBONE,
Director-General.

DEPARTMENT OF POSTS OF CUBA,
BUREAU OF FINANCE,
Habana, Oct. 23d, 1899.

KEYLESS LOCK CO.,
Indianapolis, Indiana.

GENTLEMEN: We sent you to-day the following cable:

"Make 288 box cabinets for Matanzas, Cuba, shipping instructions by letter," which we now confirm.

Cabinet shall be constructed with the same size boxes as the other work done for Cuba, together with money-order and general-delivery window. This can be shipped to New York and direct to Matanzas, as the line of boats run to that city. Be sure that it is well crated, as some of the cabinets received have been damaged by the back part not being crated well enough to avoid other goods in transit being jammed into them.

Advise how soon shipment will be made.

Respectfully,

P. H. BRISTOW,
Acting Director-General.

Copy of statement of Corydon M. Rich.

Interview with Corydon M. Rich, late assistant chief of bureau of finance, department of posts, in private office of postmaster at Habana, Cuba, on afternoon of May 17, 1900, in the presence of Inspectors Smith, Fosnes, and Gregory, and a Cuban (in charge of Rich). Statements made by Corydon M. Rich in response to questions by Inspectors Fosnes and Gregory. (During progress of interview, Inspectors Smith and Fosnes were called from the room, the interview being continued between Mr. Rich and Inspector Gregory. A few additional statements or explanations were made to Inspector Gregory by Mr. Rich on May 18, 1900, at Vedado, Cuba.)

I am from Muncie, Indiana, C. F. W. Neely's home town, and came here as an appointee of his to fill the position of assistant chief of the bureau of finance, department of posts. Neely wrote me a letter the latter part of last year, which letter I turned over to Major Rolfe. In substance Neely said that he could secure an appointment for me here, and if I was the kind of man I ought to be that after a little training from him I ought to be able to make a few dollars on the side; that he had made $50 that day without leaving his office, and in subsequent conversation said he used to make $50 to $150 a day on Spanish coin, but those good times had gone, as there is not much Spanish coin on the island other than gold.

I came here January 1, 1900. During the latter part of February I noticed that in money brought up by E. F. Moya, stamp clerk, that there would be $100 extra or unaccounted for in the regular manner. I asked Neely about it and he said it was for some stamps that were reserved from those that were burned for the use of stamp collectors, but as they did not take to them very kindly he (Neely) was working them off in that way and did not care to have them appear on the regular requisition. I did not at that time suspect that the extra $100 would go into Neely's pocket, as the amount was placed with the other money into the postal funds, and I supposed was properly accounted for. Neely usually counted all the money brought up by Moya and would usually supply these extra stamps, while I supplied the requisition for the regular stamps. A few times I had occasion to get the extra stamps myself for Moya, and on the first occasion Neely said to me: "Get Ed some of the old stamps on the left side of the vault." They were surcharged stamps of the denomination of 5 cents. Just before Neely went away to the States the latter part of March, he spoke to me in our room at 87 Prado (we were rooming together) relative to his going, and in substance said that when he left the money-order account would be about $20,000 short and the postal account about $20,000 long in stock, and that he wanted me to keep out of each week's postal remittance a portion of the postal funds and shift same over to the money-order funds, and for so doing he would give me $2,000 in cash. In endeavoring to induce me to do so, he said if anything wrong was done that it had already been done and there was nothing wrong in what he wanted me to do so far as I was concerned; he further said that I could not afford to turn down his offer; that there had been a good many months in his life that he had not made as much as $2,000. I told him on that occasion that I could not afford to take any chances on any crooked work. The matter was dropped then, but was renewed the next evening. We were then sitting in the park in front of our room, and I told Neely he was $2,000 better off than he thought he was, as I would not accept same. His comment was: "Well, it is all right; it is all in the way in which you were raised." I told him if the transaction was all right, as he said it was, and he would assume all responsibility, that I, as his subordinate, would carry the work on, but I would not assume responsibility for any crookedness. Before leaving he compared his books with the auditor's and checked up his vault, and instead of there being $20,000 difference, as he previously said there would be, there was $14,000 difference. In round numbers the amount in both postal and money-order funds and postal stock was $522,000. The inventory showed in cash and supplies $536,000. He prepared two receipts (original and duplicate) for me to sign, calling for $522,000 stock and funds, and I refused to sign those receipts, which are now in the hands of my attorney. I verified most of this inventory by being with him practically all through his count. He said if he had known that I would not sign these receipts he did not think that he would have gone away. I then began to realize that he was endeavoring to shoulder the responsibility off on me. He said about that time that he would take $14,000 with him (he could only have done so from the money-order funds). After he had gone I noticed that large bills were missing which I had previously noticed among the funds, possibly two $1,000 bills and a few $500 bills. The $14,000 in stamps were in his safe. He told me that during his absence I was to make the postal deposits run at the rate of about $18,000 a month. I was to transfer differences above that average to the money-order account. He did not specify exactly how much money I should so transfer to the money-order account. During his absence I did not make any transfer of postal funds. While he was away there were rumors on the street as to his having said he had made $100,000 in Cuba. Also there appeared to have been an error or discrepancy in the shipment of $2,600 to Remedios (which subsequently turned out all right). For these reasons I thought the office would likely be checked up, and so wrote a letter to Neely urging him to return. This was the letter on which General Rathbone indorsed a message to Neely as to returning. I also cabled him later to return to Habana by Monday sure, and he cabled he could sail on Saturday at great sacrifice and to cable difficulty. I then cabled him "Imperative fetch fourteen." On his return he handed me a large sealed envelope to be put into the money-order drawer, which I did without opening it. He asked me as to how much money I had in postal funds. I said "about $14,000," which was outside of a deposit of $6,000 which I had made during his absence. Neely then went into the vault, remained some time, making such changes as he cared to, and on coming out said the vault should balance now. Neely prepared his vault for a check up by special agents, also making such comparisons as he desired with the auditor's books, and, as I understand, made request on General Rathbone that his (Neely's) office should be checked up. It was checked by Special Agents Seybolt and Neal, Neely being present during the checking, and, so far as funds and stock were concerned in connection with the auditor's balance, the check up turned out all right for Neely. This was evidently due to the adjusting of credits between the two accounts and not to a false balance from the auditor, though I do not know as to how Neely manipulated the various credits so as to show accounts balanced. To have gotten at the true situation as to his accounts it would have been necessary to have gone back to the auditor's balance and sifted his accounts and records. After this I told Mr. Neely that I intended to keep a cashbook, showing all cash that came in and went out. He endeavored to discourage me in this, and in substance said he would not do so if he was in my place. I did start and continued to keep such book.

The night before Neely went away he told me that there was a package of $5,000 worth of stamps in his safe, and if I would dispose of them during his absence that I should have half of the amount, as to which, at that time, I neither signified that I would or would not carry out his request, though at a previous time I had refused positively to take any part in such work. As to his accounts of business, he said everything was straight and in good shape, and he was glad he came back (meaning, of course, the situation as disclosed by special agents). Relative to the disposing of the stamps, he told me he had made the same arrangements with Moya as he had before (meaning as to bringing up an extra $100 each day for those stamps). Finally he said he would not ask it of me, that I could or not, just as I pleased; that he would leave the stamps there in his safe. Neely did not say anything more to me about these transactions until his departure. For two or three days before his departure he had seemed more or less worried and nervous. As to the prospective check up which would take place after his departure, he said it would not affect his bureau. I did not interpose any objection to Neely himself as to his going away this last time, but two or three days before his departure I had a conversation with General Rathbone, in which I advised against Neely's going, but did not set out any specific reasons why I advised against his going. General Rathbone in substance said that he would prefer himself that Neely sould not go for sixty days or so, but Neely insisted on going, so he let him go. A few days after Neely had gone a check up was made of his money-order account only by Special Agents Seybolt, Williams, Sophris, and Welch, the evident object being to have same in shape for an anticipated check up by the War Department so as to have the money-order account in apple-pie order.

After the check up of the money-order account by the special agents Colonel Burton came in to check up Neely's office, having been previously engaged for several days checking up in the assistant auditor's office. Colonel Burton carried off one ledger and could not find an old ledger, which I have every reason to believe Neely carried away with him, as he had previously said to me that it should be made away with, and tried to get me to make away with it, which I declined to do, and the book disappeared about the time that Neely left the last time, as I did not see it after his departure. Colonel Burton had begun his work in the department of posts before Neely's departure. I presume Neely knew he was to be checked up and did not care to be here when it was done, hence his departure.

About the time that Neely reached Hoffman Island, which was some time before he could leave that island, I went to General Rathbone and explained to him the situation as I knew it, for the purpose of having him recall Neely. I told him how matters were when Neely left before, as to shortage of $14,000 on money-order account and ahead $14,000 on postal account; Neely's having me indorse on his books, "Examined by the special agents," when, as a matter of fact, they were not examined by the special agents; and also about the stamps left with me to be sold, for which he (Neely) would give me half of the proceeds. Relative to the selling of the stamps General Rathbone told me not to touch them, or words to that effect. General Rathbone said that Neely's vault checked up according to the auditor's balance; that everything was all right; that I was just panicky, and not to let the people in my bureau get panicky. He said that I might be mistaken; that at times during the past he thought some things were not all right, and on asking Neely about them he (Neely) explained them away in a plausible manner. I replied, "Yes," that it had been that way in my case in questioning Neely. I asked General Rathbone if he knew how many of the surcharged stamps were reserved from the burning. He replied that he would answer me as he had answered Colonel Burton—for his purpose he did not know and did not give a damn.

It was a few days after the foregoing interview with General Rathbone before I went to General Wood relative to my knowledge of Neely's conduct, and it was on account of General Rathbone not being inclined to take any action in the matter or consider the matter with any seriousness.

After Neely's arrest I first talked with Major Runcie, an attorney, and he advised me to go to General Wood. I told General Wood substantially the material points about Neely's dishonest conduct, as I have told you. After Neely's return from the States on the occasion of his trip in March, I spoke to him relative to Mr. Thompson, the postmaster, being found short on money-order account on the checkup by the special agents, and Neely replied: "How in hell did you know about that? General Rathbone told me that no one knew anything about it, and he (Rathbone) did not want anyone to know it." I do not remember how I got the information as to Thompson's shortage. It was not generally known.

In the interval between the first proposition I had from Neely, before his departure in March and his final departure in April, he said to me on one occasion that General Rathbone ought to have a warm spot in his heart for him (Neely), as he (Neely) had saved him between $3,000 and $5,000 in the way of miscellaneous expenses. One day a gas bill came into the bureau of finance for gas at General Rathbone's house; it was brought in by the disbursing officer, Dr. Carter, I think, who is a close personal friend of General Rathbone and was formerly his family physician. The amount of the bill was $36.90 in Spanish, or $33.90 in American, and I think it was for the month of March. There was some dispute between the gas company and Dr. Carter about the amount of the gas bill. Neely directed me to pay it, and I did so out of the postal funds, and, as directed by Neely, charged it up to "miscellaneous expenses." On the afternoon of the day I had an interview with General Rathbone relative to having Neely recalled from Hoffman Island to Habana I told General Rathbone about Neely's statement as to saving him (Rathbone) between $3,000 and $5,000 miscellaneous expenses, also as to the gas bill. General Rathbone said that Neely had acted as a sort of disbursing and purchasing agent for him, but so far as he (Rathbone) knew he had paid Neely back in every instance such money as Neely had spent or paid out for him. As to the gas bill which I had charged up to miscellaneous expenses, General Rathbone said it must not go through in that way; that I should bring the bill to him and he would pay it. He first paid me the amount in cash, but took that back and paid me by check; called in his stenographer to show me gas bills for some preceding months which he had paid, although Neely had told me that he (Neely) had paid General Rathbone's gas bill through miscellaneous expenses. It would be well to interview the disbursing officer, Dr. Carter, along this line, as to whether Neely had paid such previous gas bills through miscellaneous expenses. I commented to General Rathbone as to the entry on the miscellaneous book as to the payment of the gas bill, and as to how same would be considered by the War Department experts should they want to see the book. General Rathbone replied that he had been thinking of that, and it should not appear on the book. As it was near the beginning of the book, only a page or two having been filled in, he suggested that I commence a new book, rewriting the entries from the old book, so as to leave out the entry of the gas bill. Up to that month when I started the miscellaneous cashbook, I had never seen, or rather examined, previous miscellaneous cashbooks, as they were kept by Mr. Neely and Mr. Marshall.

ALTERED ENTRIES, APRIL 25, 26, AND 27.

As to the altered entries for the three days in April, the 25th, 26th, and 27th, the reason that it was only necessary to alter those dates was that they were the only dates since the fixed credit of March 15, 1900, that Moya, the stamp clerk, had brought up the extra $100. It came about in this way. A statement had been called for by General Rathbone as to the receipts at the Habana post-office from the 15th of March to a date in April. (It was up to the date request was made.) Two such statements were to be furnished, one from the postmaster at Habana, or stamp clerk, the other from the bureau of finance. In preparing this statement I had no ledger entries since March 15, as after that date I merely preserved the requisitions brought up by Moya, he bringing a corresponding amount of cash to purchase the supplies called for by his requisition. On comparing the two statements, the one furnished from the Habana office and the one furnished by myself, Mr. Bristow, chief clerk, observed that I had made no entries for the 17th and 20th of March, which was occasioned by requisitions for those dates having been lost or misplaced, it not necessarily being a daily occurrence that requisitions were made. Mr. Bristow also noticed that my figures showed $100 more of stock furnished on each of the three days, April 25, 26, and 27, than the statement made up by the postmaster for those dates, as obtained from duplicate requisition of his stamp clerk. I explained to Mr. Bristow that on each of those dates Mr. Moya had brought up $100 more of cash than the amount of stock his requisition called for, for which he was furnished stock; hence the difference. Mr. Bristow replied that he did not want to be understood as prompting me, but that in view of the fact that the department was to be checked up that the two statements should agree. I replied that there was but one way in which they could be made to correspond, that was by corresponding with my statement, which was correct, as he had brought that much money and had gotten that much in stamps. I did not explain to him (Mr. Bristow) the exact situation as to these differences, only to say that I would see if they could not be made to agree. I obtained duplicate requisitions from the stamp clerk for March 17 and 20, which I did not have, in order to correct my statement. I met Mr. Thompson, the postmaster, on the street, and asked him if the requisitions from his office could not be changed on the three days in April, so as to correspond with the entries I had for those three days, as I had received the extra $100 from Moya and he had received the stamps for the same. I also told him of the difference in invoice of envelopes for which Neely was entitled to credit, and that the matter could be explained that way. Mr. Thompson did not know the true situation as to these stamp transactions which caused these differences, so far as I was aware. He told me he would see when he came down on the following morning what could be done as to correcting the requisitions. The next morning I came down to the post-office and was talking with Mr. Thompson in his office relative to the matter, when Moya, his stamp clerk, came by and he called him in. I referred to the difference of the three days in April, and said to Moya, "Ed, you got those stamps and brought the money, didn't you?" and he said "Yes, it is all right," whereupon Mr. Thompson said, "Well, then, we will have the requisitions changed to suit you." I walked back to the stamp window and Moya gave the orders or instructions from Thompson to the man who makes the requisitions, whom I presume was Mescaro, to change the amounts on those dates. I subsequently asked Mr. Bristow as to whether the statements corresponded and he said they did.

I never knew of the exact arrangement or deal between Moya and Neely, other than as to Moya bringing up the extra $100 and receiving stamps therefor; also Neely's having told me as to disposing of the stamps after he should leave in April by saying he had made the same arrangement with Ed as before; also as to Moya bringing the extra $100 on the three days in April; the previous occasions on which Moya had brought the $100 were prior to March 15, first noticed by me either in January or February, though it may have been going on prior to that time.

The day that Neely left, the 28th of April, before he was even out of the harbor I went to Moya and said: "Did Neely tell you to bring $100 extra each day?" He said, "Yes." I said, "Don't you do that any more, Ed," and he merely said "All right." Without knowing specifically, it is my opinion that Moya was not receiving any compensation for what he was doing for Neely in the way of disposing of stamps. If there was any arrangement between he and Neely as to compensation I never heard of it.

As to Dr. Reeves, late assistant auditor, I do not know of any implication on his part, other than Neely would often carry his books upstairs to Reeves to make some comparisons. They were apparently on intimate terms, and when the trouble began to develop, Dr. Reeves was inclined to make light of any possibility of trouble. I have not had any words with Dr. Reeves since he and I have been suspended. Neely never said anything at any time to me to explain any connection or relationship between Dr. Reeves and himself. After Neely would come down from the auditor's office with his books he would have a slip of paper in his hand and give me directions to make certain entries at certain places in his book, which Colonel Burton has, though some times he would have corrections made on the money-order ledger. He would not explain anything about it more than to say that it was all right and cause me to make entries as he directed. The entries were both debit and credit items. On one occasion Neely and myself took the money-order book up to Reeves's office, but I do not remember the items which we went to investigate. Dr. Reeves was in the office, but Neely got some book without Dr. Reeves paying any attention to it at all. I do not know anything as to Reynolds; however, he must have been in the office just before Neely went away, when he went up and compared books before the office was checked up by special agents. I do not know anything as to Mescaro.

I think if the miscellaneous items in Neely's official accounts could be run out, it would be found that a good many improper expenditures had been made. Before Neely went away at the close of March he said, "Rich, you ought to be able to make your living expenses out of this miscellaneous expense account." During April my miscellaneous account amounted to $226.74 or $227.74, while Neely's had been running from $500 to $1,500. He was supposed to render vouchers for everything outside of expenses for which no bills were rendered, such as drayage, wharfage, coaches, etc. I do not think he generally rendered vouchers. Last month (April) I rendered vouchers for everything except coaches.

When Colonel Burton was checking up we found vouchers for only two months, which I carried in to General Rathbone. I have no knowledge as to whether Neely made up any false vouchers. I have never seen any of Neely's expense accounts as turned in, and discovered what I supposed were copies of four expense accounts in a desk the other day which I turned over to Mr. Williams. Neely's accounts would be passed on by General Rathbone himself. I have no knowledge as to specific improper items in the expense account. General Rathbone merely mentioned on one occasion that some one from the War Department was looking for a voucher for a bill of groceries. I have no knowledge of any irregular or improper conduct on the part of General Rathbone and Mr. Bristow, aside from the fact that they were both very careless. or this could not have occurred. I have only been here since the 1st of January, 1900. Up to the time Neely went away, General Rathbone or Mr. Bristow had not come into the office and made any examination or overhauling to ascertain whether proper books, accounts, etc., were kept.

HABANA BRICK COMPANY.

That was a company that had been organized here by Neely. When completed it was to be composed of Neely, General Rathbone (if he so desired), and myself. I do not think General Rathbone had put in any money, but had agreed to take stock for which he was expected to pay at some subsequent time. I had not put in any money, but had given my notes to Neely for $6,000 for a contingent interest. The machinery, lease, and all were adjusted by Neely. The money which had been put up, about $20,000 or $21,000, had come from or through Neely. A man by the name of Frederick P. Smith, of New York, was first interested with Neely but withdrew toward the latter part of March. He had not put a dollar into it. I was conversant with the situation as to this company as I acted as secretary of the company. Since the property of Neely had been attached, including the property of the Habana Brick Company, I have not taken the mail from the box. I had never gotten letters addressed to the company which contained letters to General Rathbone, other than one brought me by Mr. Williams within the past few days which was from Neely, written on Waldorf-Astoria Hotel stationery. While it was not publicly known as to General Rathbone being in the brick company, nothing was said as to what name his stock was to be taken out in until the rumors on the street as to Neely. Then, on the occasion of my interview with General Rathbone relative to the letter on which he made an indorsement to Neely, he said he did not want the stock taken out in his name, but in the name of D. L. Howell instead, which, of course, was an assumed name.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS MADE BY C. M. RICH ON MAY 24, 1900, TO P. O. INSPECTOR GREGORY, AT VEDADO, CUBA.

The stamps turned over to General Wood were of the regular issue, and not surcharged stamps, and the extra stamps disposed of by Neely through stamp clerk Moya of the Habana post-office during the present year were the regular issue of Cuban stamps and also surcharged stamps. My opinion is that Neely ran off the bulk of surcharged stamps after the burning of the stamps and prior to my arrival, and for the surplus of credit obtained by means of the surcharged stamps he reserved from his regular stock, the regular issue of stamps, part of which he disposed of through Moya, and a part of which he left in his safe, and which I turned over to General Wood.

On the night that the special agents checked the money-order account of the bureau of finance they found in the funds Neely's salary vouchers for the month of May, 1900, amounting to $255.50, which was being carried as cash, and which he himself had taken out before leaving for the States. At the suggestion of the special agents, I cashed these vouchers out of my private funds, and afterwards in explaining this to General Rathbone he told me that he would see that these vouchers were paid to me direct by the disbursing officer on the 15th and 30th of the month (May). He must have given Dr. Carter orders, however, not to pay these vouchers, as up to this time I have not been reimbursed.

Following the sentence on page 195, paragraph 3, ending with the the words "told you," I desire to state that I further agreed to deliver, through the hands of my attorney, to General Wood the package of 50,000 ten-cent stamps which Neely had left in his safe in the vault, and to otherwise render the special agents any assistance within my power toward straightening out the Neely affairs. General Wood gave me his promise, in the presence of my attorney, that I should "neither be arrested, molested, or prosecuted in connection with this case." This package of stamps was delivered to General Wood the morning following the evening on which the above interview was had with him.

EXHIBIT 30.

Copy of statement of Ernest R. Sutton, stenographer, bureau of finance, concerning Neely's personal mail, in answer to interrogatories by J. L. Bristow.

HABANA, June 18, 1900.

Q. When were you employed in the finance bureau of this department?—A. I went to work in the bureau on the 4th day of September, 1899.

Q. Where did you come from?—A. My home is at Dunkirk, Ind.

Before coming to Habana I left Portland, Ind., where I had been studying law, for Muncie, and studied law there about a year; was admitted to the bar and received my appointment through Mr. Cromer.

Q. Were you practicing law at Muncie at the time of your appointment?—A. I was, you might say, practicing law on a small scale; yes, sir.

Q. Whose office were you in?—A. In the office of C. B. Templer.

Q. You were appointed upon the recommendation of Congressman Cromer?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. By whom was your appointment made? To whom did Mr. Cromer recommend you?—A. To Mr. Neely, I think.

Q. And Mr. Neely had General Rathbone appoint you?—A. I think so.

Q. What were your duties in the finance bureau?—A. My duties consisted of attending to the correspondence; that is, taking the dictation—the letters—and writing them out on the typewriter.

Q. You are a stenographer and typewriter?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you receive or open the mail of Mr. Neely?—A. No, sir.

Q. Who did?—A. His personal mail?

Q. The mail that came to the bureau.—A. When he was gone, the man who was acting chief.

Q. Who was acting chief?—A. Mr. Milliken.

Q. How long?—A. Up to the time he left, about November 11 or 12, 1899; after that there was no acting chief, and Mr. Marshall usually opened the office mail when Mr. Neely was not there. I do not remember of his going away during that time until Mr. Rich was here; then Mr. Rich attended to all the mail.

Q. You mean that he received the mail and opened it?—A. Yes, sir; the office mail.

Q. What disposition was made of the personal mail of Mr. Neely?—A. That was generally put on his desk.

Q. Unopened?—A. Yes, sir; so far as I know.

Q. Did Mr. Neely give all of his correspondence to you?—A. No, sir.

Q. Did he dictate to any other stenographer than you?—A. No, sir; not that I know of; not while I was here.

Q. Did he write many letters himself?—A. He wrote most all of his private mail himself.

Q. By hand or on the typewriter?—A. Well, some by hand, but mostly all on the typewriter.

Q. Did he keep copies of these letters?—A. So far as I know I think he did.

Q. What became of these letter books?—A. I could not say what became of them. The last I saw of them they were on his desk; that was a short time before he left.

Q. They have not been seen since he left?—A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever see any of the contents of these letters?—A. No, sir.

Q. Never saw the contents of those books?—A. No, sir.

Q. Where did he file the letters he received?—A. In two pasteboard files similar to those now in use in the bureau of finance.

Q. What became of those?—A. They likewise disappeared when he left.

Q. Have not been seen since?—A. Not that I know of.

Q. Did you ever see any of the contents of these letters?—A. No, sir; I never did. At one time he called me in and said that he—that there was a bunch of letters lying on the desk in the vault room. He told me to put them in one of those files, and said: "All letters from New York put in one file and all from Baracoa put in another file; get them all arranged numerically as to dates." I did that, but did not see anything other than the dates; did not notice who they were from. Those that were from New York were, I think, M. B. Snevily letters, but as to the contents I did not know.

Q. Who were the parties that he corresponded with personally, largely?—A. Well, there was M. B. Snevily, of New York City; he wrote frequently to Perry Heath and R. H. Cowan, of Muncie; in fact, he wrote a good many letters, but those are the only ones I ever took particular notice of; that is, because he had written to them so often.

Q. Do you remember of seeing many letters go between him and the Keyless Lock Company, of Indianapolis?—A. I remember of seeing some, but do not remember of many.

Q. Did you write any letters for him to the Keyless Lock Company?—A. I do not remember of writing any. Mr. Marshall dictated the majority of those I wrote that office.

Q. Did you ever write any letters from him to Mr. Snevily?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever write any letters for him to Mr. Perry Heath?—A. Well, I think only two; not to exceed that many.

Q. To the Cowan Printing Company?—A. No; I do not remember ever writing any to Mr. Cowan.

Q. You say that letters to Snevily and Heath and Cowan were of a personal nature, which he wrote himself?—A. I suppose they were of a personal nature. He wrote them.

Q. Did he keep the letters he received from those people in that personal file?—A. I think that he did.

Q. You never saw any of the contents of those letters and know nothing about what they referred to?—A. No, sir.

Q. Who do you think was his most frequent correspondent?—A. Well, I think that Snevily was about his most frequent correspondent; then he wrote a good many letters to people I did not know at all.

Q. You know nothing about his business relations with those people?—A. No; I do not. He was a very reticent sort of a man, I thought.

Q. Were you the stenographer in the bureau during all this time?—A. Yes, sir; that is, from September, the time of my arrival.

Q. He never called in any private or personal stenographer other than you while you were there?—A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know that he was corresponding with these people in the letters which he wrote personally?—A. Well, he would write the letters and occasionally he would ask me to take them out and get them copied, and sometimes he would ask me to take them down and get them mailed for him, after he got them sealed up, and in the majority of cases he would bring them out and throw them in our letter box in the office for Sam to mail. In that way I saw the letters and to whom they were addressed. I used to think sometimes that my work did not please him because he wrote so many letters on his typewriter himself, and I could not understand why I did not get to write more of his personal mail.

Q. Do you think, Mr. Sutton, that the reason he did not dictate to you this correspondence which he wrote himself was that he was writing about matters concerning which he did not want anyone to know except the parties to whom he was writing?—A. Well, as to that I could not say.

Q. What was your impression? What did you think about it?—A. Well, at the time I used to think possibly my work did not suit him. One time I spoke to him about it. Well, he said he desired to pass away the time.

Q. What do you think now was the reason he did not give you those letters?—A. Well, I do not know. I have not thought much about it at all.

Q. Haven't you any idea?—A. Nothing more than what these developments would tend to establish in most anyone's mind.

Q. You were in the most confidential relations with Mr. Neely. In view of all the circumstances, what was your opinion as to why he did not give you this mail?—A. Well, I suppose he considered it of a personal nature and wanted to write them himself.

Q. What had been your experience as stenographer before you came to Habana?—A. Well, I had been a stenographer about five years, and during that time I commenced the study of law, and by my stenographic efforts paid all my expenses, and during that time I worked for John F. LaFollette, of Portland, Ind.; J. J. N. LaFollette, who is now United States district attorney for Indiana, at Indianapolis, and worked for C. B. Templer, Muncie, Ind., attorney at law, and I have taken several cases in court.

Q. Did any of these people ever complain of your inefficiency?—A. No, sir.

Q. And you were able to take those court cases without difficulty?—A. Yes, sir.

EXHIBIT 31.

Copy of statement of George W. Marshall, clerk in bureau of finance, concerning Neely's personal mail, etc.

HABANA, June 18, 1900.

Q. When were you appointed as a clerk in the bureau of finance?—A. I can not give you just the exact date. It must have been Monday, the 28th or 29th of February; I left Washington the 21st; got here on Saturday.

Q. What year?—A. 1899.

Q. You have been employed ever since in the bureau of finance?—A. I have.

Q. Where were you from?—A. Wisconsin.

Q. Whereabouts?—A. Ashland, Wis.; Lake Superior.

Q. Who secured your appointment?—A. John C. Spooner, Senator.

Q. He recommended your appointment to whom?—A. He went with me in person to Postmaster-General Smith.

Q. And the Postmaster-General made the appointment?—A. Yes, sir. After a little conversation with the Postmaster-General and Senator Spooner, he called in Mr. Heath from another room a little farther on. I wanted to go to Porto Rico, but the Postmaster-General advised me to go to Cuba. So I was sent down here to Habana.

Q. What were your duties in the bureau of finance?—A. I started in assisting at anything I could do. Later, the work of keeping the ledger of accounts of postmasters was assigned to me. This did not take up a great deal of my time, but I helped at anything else, such as unpacking supplies, etc.

Q. Then you kept the ledger and did other work that was assigned you of a general character?—A. Yes, sir. The work gradually grew on me as I stayed longer with the bureau; that is, answering postmasters about various matters and other correspondence.

Q. What duties were you performing in the bureau at the time Mr. Neely left this last time?—A. I was answering most of the correspondence upon the island and was keeping the record of the supplies that were sent out to postmasters of the island, and shipping some furniture. I got everything out of the custom-house for the department.

Q. Did you still keep the ledger?—A. No, sir.

Q. When did you cease to keep the ledger?—A. Well, as nearly as I can remember, it must have been about the 1st of March, 1900.

Q. Who kept it after the 1st of March?—A. Mr. Rich.

Q. Why did Mr. Rich relieve you of this work?—A. Mr. Neely told me to give up the book to Mr. Rich. I think that was a little before the 1st of March; that is, as near as I can remember it, that date. I really had more work than one man could do, and Mr. Neely says one day—Rich did not have much to do—"Marshall, you have got too much to do. I am going to give these books to Mr. Rich to keep." That was the only order of transfer that was made.

Q. Who handled the correspondence of the bureau?—A. I did, I think, most of the correspondence from the island.

Q. Who opened the mail?—A. Mr. Neely.

Q. Then he turned over to you the mail he wanted you to answer and kept that which he wanted to answer himself?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he have a great deal of personal mail?—A. I could not answer that intelligently, because I only saw it once in a while.

Q. Who was it given to when brought in?—A. If Mr. Neely was there it was put on his desk. If he was not there it would be left on the desk by the side of mine. Then I would look it over and see who was getting mail. It did not happen very often.

Q. Did Mr. Neely have a good deal of personal correspondence at the time you did look over it?—A. No, it never occurred to me that it was excessive—two or three letters. I have seen that many at once—two or three letters.

Q. Did he do much personal correspondence?—A. Well, I rather think he did. He had a typewriter and he wrote on the typewriter for himself, and he did lots of it. Whether he was slow on the machine or his letters were long, I do not know, but he did considerable writing on the typewriter.

Q. Do you know whether he dictated his personal letters to his stenographer or wrote them himself on the typewriter?—A. Well, I do not know. I think, though, that he dictated some to his stenographer. That is the way I got hold of that Snevily & Co.'s mail.

Q. Was the stenographer a good stenographer—Mr. Sutton?—A. Very fair.

Q. Was he satisfactory to Mr. Neely?—A. As far as I know.

Q. Who were Mr. Neely's principal personal correspondents, as far as you were able to observe?—A. Well, that would be hard to say, because I did not see many of his letters, only as he would drop them into the basket by the side of me when it went out. A number of them were addressed to Mr. Perry Heath and Mr. Cowan, and I know that he was writing to this man by the name of Snevily. I think he wrote to Mr. Taylor, the gentleman who went down to South America on that mining scheme. I was not at all interested in his correspondence and did not pay much attention.

Q. Did he write those letters himself on his own typewriter?—A. Yes, sir; or by hand, and inclosed them in envelopes.

Q. He wrote them and inclosed them himself? He did not dictate them to his stenographer?—A. No, sir.

Q. To whom do you think he wrote the largest number of these personal letters? Who was his chief correspondent?—A. The most that I saw that went out would go to Mr. Perry Heath or to Mr. Cowan.

Q. Did you ever observe any to the Keyless Lock Company, of Indianapolis?—A. Business letters, I think.

Q. Did he dictate those to his stenographer, or did you handle that part of the mail for that company?—A. I did not handle it. I do not know whether he wrote them himself or his stenographer. There are a number in the copy book. Nearly all of the correspondence to Muncie he handled himself.

Q. That was true also of the Keyless Lock Company, of Indianapolis?—A. Yes sir. I have had some correspondence with them for the department. We had so much trouble with the keys not fitting the sections they came with and I had that matter to straighten out, and had considerable correspondence with them,

Q. Who handled the negotiations for the purchase of boxes?—A. That was handled by Mr. Neely.

Q. Then as far as you remember, Mr. Marshall, the correspondence which Neely had with Snevily and Heath and Cowan and the Keyless Lock Company and Taylor, the larger part of it was written by himself and kept in his own personal book and personal files?—A. I think so, with the exception of the Keyless Lock Company. There are a great many of their letters copied in our book out there in the hall.

Q. And the other parties?—A. I do not know where the others were copied, unless they were in the book of his on the desk.

(Signed) GEO. W. MARSHALL.

Copy of letter, January 23, 1899, from director-general to Postmaster-General, concerning personal expenses.

[Personal and unofficial.]

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, January 23, 1899.

HON. CHAS. EMORY SMITH,
Washington, D. C.

SIR: Recurring to the matter of my personal expenses, which I requested be paid, and which you stated we would take up later, I wish to renew my request that I be allowed my actual necessary expenses. I believe this is but right, just, and fair, as I am subjected to extraordinary expenses here.

Should you deem a justification essential, it can be said that in less than thirty days I have saved the island about $153,000 in two contracts for carrying the mails on the north and south coasts of the island, between about January 1, 1899, and June 30, 1900, so that instead of paying $102,000 annually on these two contracts, we get the service for nothing by reliable companies. As I advised you in former official letters, these arrangements were made after a conference with General Brooke and Colonel Hecker, who is in charge of transportation on the island.

While it may not come in good grace from me, I can not refrain from telling you that Colonel Hecker commended me very warmly for securing these contracts, and expressed his surprise that I was able to accomplish them.

There are three other coast lines to deal with, and I will get at them as soon as possible. One of these lines runs between Batabano and the Isle of Pines, for which service they received and are still being paid at the rate of $3,760 per annum, a very excessive price, as there are only two post-offices on the Isle of Pines.

The other is a coast line, on the north coast of the island, west of Habana, touching a few points between Habana and Mantua, which is in the extreme west end of the island.

The third line runs from Batabano via the Isle of Pines to La Coloma and Cortez. At this writing my information concerning the last two mentioned lines is very meager.

Aside from this we have an arrangement—or, rather, we are continuing an arrangement—with nearly, if not all, of the railroads of the island whereby they carry the mails free of charge, in return for which we transport their official mail matter free. Thus it will be seen that the cost of transportation of mails on the island has been very much reduced. I shall soon make the matter of transportation of mails on the island subject-matter of an official communication to you.

I want to say to you, personally, that no one at your distance, I believe, can comprehend the jumbled up mess we have to contend with here. It seems to me at times to be almost insurmountable. We find, first, what is an obsolete, disjointed, and contradictory system. In addition to this, it has been subjected to the ravages of war, which has further disturbed it. No postal system is better than ours, as I believe, and you may expect very soon from me a recommendation to put the island's postal system on a United States basis at one fell swoop. There is no money-order system here, and the means for transmitting money are meager, and where there are banks doing business an excessive rate of exchange is charged.

Nothing, to my mind, will tend more to increase civilization on the island than an effective postal service, thus providing a quick and secure means of disseminating information and news, and at the same time give proper facilities for transmitting money.

Very respectfully,

E. G. RATHBONE.

EXHIBIT 33.

Copy of letter, March 30, 1899, from director-general to Postmaster-General, concerning personal expenses.

[Personal and unofficial.]

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, March 30, 1899.

Hon. CHARLES EMORY SMITH,
Postmaster-General, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR MR. SMITH: Referring to our recent conversation, in which you suggested that I send a statement of personal expenses, I will say, that so far as I know now, it is figured down to about this: Board and lodging for self and family, consisting of wife and child, per month $225. This is exclusive of laundry, which I do not know the cost of. I get my coffee in the morning and dinner at Madam Jorrin's, but breakfast down town, which has cost me in the past from $1.50 to $2.50 each day, so I average it at $2 per day, or $50 per month. This makes an aggregate cost for board and lodging of $285 per month, or $3,420 per annum.

There are, of course, many necessary incidentals, which can scarcely be scheduled or computed. For your information I will say that I left home the latter part of December with $500. To-day that is exhausted, and I haven't a cent in my pocket. This, of course, is for your private information, for the purposes named in our conversation. I might add in this connection, that the people whom you met at dinner at Madame Jorrin's are soon to go away, so in the future there will be no one in the house outside of ourselves, except such as agreeable to us.

My arrangements with the madame are that when I have extra meals ordinarily she charges me $1.50 per meal. On special occasions, when she gives us something a little out of the ordinary, it is $2 per meal. Of course, in the position I occupy, it will be necessary for me to have people with me very frequently.

Another thing I might mention that you perhaps remember. The office room which I am using in connection with my bedroom while you were here I have found necessary to use as a semipublic office. You have no idea of the number of people that call on me at my house. In the States I would not permit it, but here conditions are different, and I deem it a part of my duty to be as polite and tolerant with the Cubans as possible; hence I concluded to secure, and have secured, the office, at a rental of $75 per month, which, no doubt, seems excessive, but my judgment is that it is necessary. It will scarcely do to receive all official callers in the private parlors and salons of the house. My telephone service at this office costs nothing, as it is furnished by the Signal Service Corps.

Last night we moved in our new quarters in the Cuartel de la Fuerza, and I am sure you would be delighted if you could look in upon us, even in this unsettled stage. Of course, you have an idea of what they are, having seen them in the rough, but to see them now you would conclude with me that they are several hundred per cent finer than when you visited them. My private office, the office of the chief clerk or assistant director, and my retiring room, are frescoed in true Cuban style; in something that corresponds to frescoing, but is much cheaper; in fact, a very cheap decoration, but it looks very beautiful, and purely Cuban. I can sit at my desk and look the whole length of the building through the different offices, and to say that we are very much pleased with our new quarters is putting it mildly. The building has been thoroughly disinfected, is well plumbed, and the sanitary conditions are as good as can well be made. Now when we get the post-office below us with our new modern outfit, and our postmaster, we shall feel that we can keep house officially with comfort. Perhaps I am impatient but the delay in Thompson's getting here is exceedingly annoying. Had I known that there would have been so much time consumed in getting him here, my advice concerning the postmaster at Habana might have been different. However, he will undoubtedly get here soon, and then we will forget the past.

Very truly, yours,

E. G. RATHBONE.

Copy of letter, July 3, 1899, from director-general to Postmaster-General, concerning compensation and residence.

[Personal and unofficial.]

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, July 3, 1899.

Hon. CH. EMORY SMITH,
Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR MR. SMITH: I have your personal and unofficial communication concerning the matter of your conference with the President as to my compensation in the future, with the statement that he concurred in your judgment that my pay should be increased, and suggested that it should be fixed at $6,500 per annum. This is an increase of $675 per year over my present compensation.

Of course I shall acquiesce in whatever you and the President deem the proper thing to do, and when it is fixed and definite I shall "cut my garment according to my cloth," to the end that I shall live within my salary. I have no money to expend beyond that. I am not here with the intention of hoarding money, but I want to do that which will be helpful in every way. I believe I told you that General Brooke, in addition to his salary, has his house and furniture furnished him, with an allowance of $7,500 per year to maintain himself in the way of entertainments, etc. General Ludlow has, in addition to his salary, a furnished house that costs him nothing in the way of rent or furnishing and an allowance of $5,000 per year for entertaining, and General Lee has the most beautiful home in or about Habana—a perfect palace at Quemados, originally costing between $200,000 and $300,000, which has been put in perfect order and repair and thoroughly furnished for himself and staff. Admiral Cromwell has the admiral's palace, a large, spacious, and expensive place, repaired and furnished throughout. Capt. Lucien Young has the navy-yard palace, a magnificent place, repaired and furnished at Government expense. Generals Brooke, Ludlow, and Lee's staff officers all have fine and commodious quarters and furniture furnished them by the Government. These represent the military branches of the Government here. Our department alone represents the civil branch of the Government. In the matter of entertaining I have set too high a watermark to maintain in the future on a salary of $6,500 a year. Of course, it remains for you and the President to determine what you want done, and, as above stated, I shall acquiesce in your judgment.

I think I had better say to you personally and privately, and for your information in the premises, that we have attained a social position here which is beyond that of my colaborers, and the effect has been excellent. You may consider it indelicate for me to make this remark, but I am simply stating a fact, and in doing so can not make it impersonal. Now, as to houses: I have been looking about, and find one in the Vedado, located on the street that runs at right angles from the beach, past General Brooke's house and the Hotel Trotcha, across the track, and about two blocks up on the brow of the hill—a beautiful place. The asking price of it is $250 per month, unfurnished. I am not certain that it can be obtained at all, but if it can I might be able to get it a little cheaper; not much, however. This has the disadvantage of being about 3 miles from the palace. I have in view another house, in Tulipan street, within two blocks of my present residence, which is not very desirable, all things considered, but which could be made, with the expenditure of some money in the matter of plumbing and sewerage, and some other repairs, a fairly respectable house, the asking price for which is $1,800 per annum as it is; but it would require some money to put it in proper repair and sanitary condition, which could be done within the next two or three weeks very easily by the corps of workmen that are now here working on the two palaces, where immense sums of money have been expended to put them in proper shape for the governor-general, his quartermaster-general (General Humphreys), and their staffs. They seem to be able to procure quarters, furniture and all, at Government expense, and not moderate at that. In the case of the Tulipan street house, or any other one I might select, I think any intimation from you, or somebody in authority up there, that you would like to have a house put in good repair for my use would cause it to be done free of charge to the department of posts, and done at once. It is possible I could induce General Brooke myself to have it done, but whatever is done by the workmen now employed here, including plumbers, gas fitters, painters, masons, etc., should be done at once, before they complete the work which they are now engaged upon and are sent away. It would be almost impossible to get it done here by local talent.

I have looked about for a government building which might be converted into a habitation, but the military and navy have everything.

The most desirable street in Habana is the Prado, which is the "Fifth avenue" of the city. Houses there are scarce, and unfurnished they cost from $200 to $350 per month. I have just engaged a man, thoroughly familiar with the city and people, to look about further for a suitable home. We can not, under any condition, remain where we are much longer.

Of course it remains for you and the President to determine whether or not you want the civil branch of the government to keep abreast with the military. If you will provide the way we will do it. These people are like children, easily amused, and by studying their tastes and desires much can be accomplished.

With this presentation, I leave the matter to you and the President. Referring to the last paragraph of your letter, stating that while I fix the compensation of my subordinates, it would be better on all accounts that my own should be specifically determined and ordered by the Postmaster-General, I wish to say that in this opinion I heartily concur. I would not think of fixing my own compensation.

Very truly, yours,

E. G. RATHBONE.

Copies of letter, September 26, 1899, from director-general to Postmaster-General, concerning lease of Madame Echarte house, and reply thereto.

[Personal.]

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, September 26, 1899.

Hon. CH. EMORY SMITH,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR GENERAL SMITH: I have at last succeeded in finding and renting a house, which is No. 547 Calzada del Cerro, the old residence of the Marquis de la Gratitude, now owned by Madame Lola Echarte. The lease is for one year, at a monthly rental of $230, with the privilege of three years additional at my option. There is a provision in the lease that during the last term of three years I may surrender the house at the end of any month, by giving thirty days' notice.

For the first year, the house will be partially furnished. This was the best arrangement I could make, after having scoured the city over. The lease calls for possession to be given me on October 1, but it is doubtful at this writing whether I will get it on that date, because of recent strikes, which have interfered with putting the house in repair.

If you desire, I can send you a translated copy of the lease.

Very truly, yours,

E. G. RATHBONE.

OFFICE OF THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL,
Washington, D. C., October 2, 1899.

MY DEAR GENERAL: I have your letter of the 26th ultimo, advising me that you have succeeded in renting the old residence of the Marquis de la Gratitude, with which arrangement you seem to be satisfied. I congratulate you on having found what seems to be a suitable house.

Very truly, yours,

CH. EMORY SMITH,
Postmaster-General.

EXHIBIT 39.

Copy of testimony of W. E. Wilmot concerning trips of the director-general, vouchers, etc., in answer to interrogatories by J. L. Bristow.

HABANA, June 22, 1900.

Q. Mr. Wilmot, what position do you occupy in the department of posts?—A. Private secretary to the director-general.

Q. How long have you been private secretary?—A. Since January 28, 1899. I was employed on that date by the department of posts, and at first was to be assigned to the chief clerk as his stenographer. Mr. Michaelson, the private secretary to the director-general, resigned on January 28, and on that date I was designated to do the director-general's work, pending the appointment of a private secretary. That appointment was never made, however, and I have been acting as the private secretary ever since.

Q. Did you accompany General Rathbone on a trip around the island in April, 1899?—A. Yes.

Q. In what capacity did you accompany him?—A. As cashier.

Q. You were then his cashier and private secretary, were you?—A. Yes.

Q. What were your duties as cashier?—A. They were to pay all bills.

Q. I notice that his official expenses as reported aggregate about $281. Were all these expenses necessarily incurred in the discharge of official duty?—A. The expenses paid by me on that trip were paid by the direction of the director-general.

Q. Who decided whether they were official expenses or personal expenses?—A. The director-general.

Q. In what way did he direct you as to what should be official and what should be personal?—A. With the exception of the bill for hotel at Santiago and board on the Comal I paid the expenses represented in the account presented to the department on my own authority at the time they were paid, but at the conclusion of the trip, when the expense account was made up, it was presented, together with all the vouchers, for the scrutiny of the director-general, who, after questioning me in regard to some of the items, approved the account and directed that it be paid.

Q. Take the Santiago bills for hotel and other expenses, did you pay them or did he pay them?—A. My own bill was presented to me in person, which I paid and embodied in the account. The bill incurred by General Rathbone, who stopped at another hotel, was paid by him personally, and the voucher therefor was handed to me with instructions to put it in the official account.

Q. Take this voucher for 131 meals on board the transport from Santiago to Habana, who paid that?—A. I have not a very distinct recollection as to the circumstances surrounding the paying of that bill, but I believe that the bill was handed by the purser to General Rathbone, and we were both in the salon together at the time. I was directed to pay the money and place the bill in the account.

Q. As an official expenditure?—A. There was only one account understood to be kept, which was the official account. When I was directed to put a bill in the account of expenses, the official account was meant.

Q. When did you leave Santiago, what date?—A. On the 12th day of April, 1899, I believe.

Q. When did you arrive at Habana?—A. On the 19th day of April, 1899, I believe.

Q. How many were in the official party from Santiago?—A. The official party consisted of the director-general, his interpreter, and myself.

Q. How many meals a day did you eat on that trip?—A. My understanding is we ate three meals a day, but it might have been four.

Q. Why do you say it might have been four?—A. Because General Rathbone says he thinks it was four.

Q. What do you think about it?—A. I told you in my former statement I thought there were three meals a day.

Q. Do you remember of eating four meals a day on that trip?—A. Yes, on the Maria Herrera we ate four or five meals a day.

Q. I am speaking of the transport.—A. I remember three regular meals a day.

Q. Do you remember on the transport from Santiago to Habana of eating more than three meals a day on any one day?—A. I think once or twice I ate an extra meal. As to the balance of the party, I could not say how many extra meals they ate.

Q. Did you eat together (the party) at the same time?—A. At regular meals all ate together.

Q. How did they serve meals on this boat; at stated periods?—A. The meals were served at stated intervals.

Q. Who was the interpreter that went with you?—A. Sam Bremner.

Q. This voucher shows that you were on board this transport seven days. Can you explain how it comes that there is a charge made against the postal revenues for 131 meals for three people in seven days?—A. When the bill was presented I was directed to place it in the account. I could not venture to state how many extra meals were had. Being directed to place it in the account, I did so.

Q. For a party of three to eat 131 meals in seven days would require an average of six meals a day, would it not?—A. I believe it would.

Q. Do you think the party averaged six meals a day on that trip?—A. I have no right to surmise otherwise.

Q. Did you eat six meals a day?—A. No.

Q. Do you believe that either of the other parties ate six meals a day continuously on that trip?—A. As the bill seems to indicate that extra meals were had, I have no right to assume that they were not.

Q. What do you mean by "no right to assume that they were not?"—A. Well, if a bill was handed to me as a bill for the expenses of meals, with a direction to pay it, I had no right to assume that it was not a proper bill; no right to assume that it did not represent the correct number of meals eaten. I could not tell when anybody went in to eat an extra meal. They might have gone in several times a day when I knew nothing about it and eaten an extra meal. I could have no knowledge of that, but when a bill was presented to me with the direction that it be placed in the account, in my position I was under orders to pay it.

Q. Was Mrs. Rathbone and the son and maid on board this transport?—A. Yes.

Q. Is it not a fact, Mr. Wilmot, that these 131 meals represent the number of meals that were eaten by the entire party—General Rathbone and his family, as well as the interpreter and yourself?—A. I do not know; I had no right to think so.

Q. The whole party consisted of six, did it not?—A. Myself, E. G. Rathbone, Mrs. Rathbone, the son, interpreter, and maid; six—that is, from Santiago to Habana.

Q. Six persons eating three meals a day would make 18 meals a day, would it not?—A. Yes.

Q. For seven days it would aggregate 126 meals, would it not?—A. It would.

Q. Is it not much more reasonable to suppose that 131 meals represent the number of meals of the whole party than three parties of six meals a day?—A. This might be simply a coincidence. I have no right to surmise, you know.

Q. I asked you if it is not a more reasonable supposition?—A. I answered that it might be a coincidence—that is, that the number of meals consumed by the official party seems to be what the three meals a day would be for the entire party, official and unofficial.

Q. Did you pay the personal and incidental expenses of Mrs. Rathbone and General Rathbone on the trip, outside of the official expenses?—A. I paid some.

Q. Do you know of any expenses that were paid personally, other than that paid by yourself?—A. No; I do not.

Q. Was it not the custom of General Rathbone to have you pay the bills and keep an account of his personal expenses and present them to him, so that he could reimburse you for the money you were out?—A. I was instructed to keep the expenses in order that a statement could be rendered the department of posts. Miscellaneous and personal expenses were paid by all members of the party—that is, General Rathbone would go up and buy cigars or a bottle of Apollinaris water and pay for them out of his own pocket.

Q. Did the purser present his bill for the expenses of Mrs. Rathbone and son and maid for board from Santiago to Habana?—A. That bill was not presented to me.

Q. Did you see it presented to General Rathbone?—A. No; I did not.

Q. Did you ever hear of any such bill being presented and paid by him?—A. No; I did not.

Q. Don't you think, Mr. Wilmot, that as a matter of fact these 131 meals represent the board of the entire party, official and otherwise?—A. I have no right to think that. I paid the bill without question, under direction.

Q. You accompanied General Rathbone on a trip to the United States in May, 1899?—A. Yes, sir; I did.

Q. How were the expenses paid on that trip?—A. General Rathbone from time to time handed me money with which to pay expenses.

Q. Who determined as to what were official expenses and personal expenses on that trip?—A. The director-general.

Q. After you had paid a number of expenses would you ask him as to which should be charged in the personal account and to him personally, and which should be charged officially?—A. Well, such cases as that did not arise. I suppose you mean expenses for cigars or Apollinaris water or something of that nature. Those, I believe, General Rathbone paid from time to time.

Q. Paid them himself?—A. Yes.

Q. Carriages, hotel bills, and such things as that?—A. Carriages, hotel bills were paid with the approval and by the direction of the director-general.

Q. Were all of the bills referred to in this voucher, calling for about $426, directed to be paid by General Rathbone?—A. All bills of any amount were showed by me to the director-general for his approval before they were paid by me, except the bills for my official expenses, which I, having a knowledge of, paid.

Q. When you submitted these for approval would he indicate whether they should be put in the account for official expenditures or not?—A. I am not certain that every time a bill was paid there was distinct understanding that it be placed in the official account; but when I was directed to pay a bill it was understood to go in the official account, unless especially directed otherwise.

Q. Did you presume to know what were his legitimate expenditures, or did you depend upon him to inform you as to that?—A. I do not know what is considered legitimate official expenditures by a Government official, and consequently I followed my orders in paying bills.

Q. You accompanied General Rathbone to Cincinnati, did you?—A. I did.

Q. Do you know of any official business that he transacted there?—A. Yes; he communicated with the Post-office Department at Washington, with department of posts in Habana, at the time he was there, more or less.

Q. About any business that was pending there in Cincinnati that took him there to attend to? Couldn't he have stayed in Washington or Habana and attended to it?—A. He gave official directions.

Q. Did he go to Cincinnati to discharge any specific official business in the city of Cincinnati?—A. That I can not say.

Q. Do you know of any official matters that demanded his presence in the city of Cincinnati?—A. That I could not say.

Q. Do you know of any official business that demanded his attention in the city of Hamilton?—A. I do not. I could not say.

Q. Do you know whether he was engaged in any litigation at Hamilton, Ohio, during this time?—A. He was in court, to my knowledge, on one case in Hamilton, Ohio.

Q. Was he there looking after personal business or Cuban business?—A. I made no inquiry as to the nature of the case, but I believe it was a case of litigation; but I have no reason to know it. I make the statement that he was in court on one occasion to my personal knowledge.

Q. Do you think that the department of posts of Cuba had any litigation or business in the courts of Hamilton, Ohio, at that time?—A. I do not know.

Q. What do you think about it?—A. I do not think so.

Q. What were the official expenses of that trip?—A. They are shown on the account.

Q. Refer to the account and tell me how much.—A. $425.45.

Q. Does that cover the entire official expenditures of that trip?—A. It covers all the expenses I was directed to place in the official account.

Q. Did you keep an account of all the official expenses?—A. I did.

Q. Then that amount referred to is the expenses incurred on that trip to the United States?—A. They were.

Q. It seems that General Rathbone cashed a warrant of $500 in Washington. Do you know what became of that money?—A. I do not.

Q. Was any part of that $500 expended as official expenses on this trip?—A. No part of it was expended by me for official expenses.

Q. Mr. Wilmot, the first warrant issued amounted to $500, which was cashed. The expenses of that trip, as shown by the voucher filed, amounted to $425.45. The voucher also shows $74.55 returned to the auditor of the first $500 drawn. Have you any reason to believe that any part of this $500 was expended in payment of official expenditures on this trip?

Mr. WILMOT. You are speaking of the second voucher?

General BRISTOW. Yes.

A. No; but I could not state exactly what funds were used for paying those expenses. I could not state whether the proceeds of the first warrant were used or whether General Rathbone gave me personal money to pay expenses.

Q. The expenses aggregated $425.45. One thousand dollars was drawn in two warrants for the payment of these expenses. The vouchers show that $74.55 was returned to the auditor, leaving $500 unaccounted for. Do you have any idea what became of that $500?—A. I do not.

Q. Did you ever see it or have possession of it, or was it ever turned over to you in any way?—A. I have no knowledge whatever of the amount represented by that voucher.

Q. Can you state that he never turned over to you to exceed the $425.45, the amount that was expended for expenses?—A. Beyond any doubt, I can. I am absolutely certain on this point.

Q. Did you accompany General Rathbone on the trip he made to the States last November?—A. Yes, sir; I did.

Q. Do you know anything about what official business he had in New York the first three days after you arrived there?—A. I do not know, because I was in quarantine at the time.

Q. Do you know anything about the official expenses that he incurred after leaving New York until he returned to Washington?—A. I do not, because I did not accompany him.

Q. Do you know anything about the official expenses which he incurred in the city of Washington during the eight days he stopped there at the Raleigh Hotel?—A. The hotel bills were presented to me and were paid, with the approval and by the direction of the director-general.

Q. What about the payment of his expenses when you were not with him? I see they are on this.—A. I was directed to charge to the account so much for expenses incurred in Ohio.

Q. You accompanied General Rathbone from Washington to New York?—A. I did.

Q. And were eight days in New York?—A. To my knowledge we were there about that time.

Q. Do you know of any official business he had in New York at that time?—A. I can say that he was detained in New York by not being able to get satisfactory passage to Habana.

Q. What do you mean by "Satisfactory passage?"—A. Because the ships were very overcrowded at that time, and it was with great difficulty that berths could be secured at all. It was the season of the rush to Cuba and all the steamers were well booked in advance.

Q. I see that General Rathbone has charged $236 hotel bills for these eight days, aggregating something about $25 a day; was that for his personal expenses?—A. The Empire Hotel presented bills for General Rathbone, for myself, and for Mrs. Rathbone. A number of bills which I paid little attention to I turned over to Mrs. Rathbone. One or two bills that bore Mrs. Rathbone's name I paid by her direction, and presented my bill to her for that expense as personal. The bills that bore the name of E. G. Rathbone were paid with the approval and by the direction of the director-general, as representing his official expenditures.

Q. Have you an account you kept of the expenses you paid for Mrs. Rathbone?—A. Yes; the bills I paid for her I presented later in a personal account.

Q. Have you that personal account?—A. Yes.

General BRISTOW. Please get it. (Mr. Wilmot gets papers.)

Q. How long was Mrs. Rathbone in New York?—A. That I could not state exactly, but my impression is that she left Habana for the United States the latter half of September.

Q. Was Mrs. Rathbone in New York when you and General Rathbone arrived there?—A. I was detained at quarantine for two days; when I arrived at the Empire Hotel Mrs. Rathbone was there.

Q. Did she go West with General Rathbone?—A. No; she did not.

Q. Did she remain there while he was in Ohio?—A. She remained a few days at the Empire, and then went out of the city for a few days.

Q. I see here in this list of expenses which you paid for Mrs. Rathbone that the last dates that you appear to have paid her board for her were from November 5 to 12. Did you pay any board bills for her after that date?—A. That is the only bill I paid for her.

Q. You say you handed some bills to her that you did not pay?—A. I did. I have a distinct recollection of it.

Q. Do you know the nature of these bills?—A. They were the hotel bills.

Q. Do you know who paid those hotel bills?—A. I do not.

Q. Do you remember what those bills you handed her amounted to?—A. I do not.

Q. What periods they covered?—A. I do not remember what periods they covered.

Q. You paid no hotel bills for her board after the 15th of November?—A. I paid no bill for Mrs. Rathbone other than that embodied in my statement of December 8, a copy of which I hand you.

Q. That seems to be a bill for board up to November 15. There is no statement on this bill for board after that date, is there?—A. It appears not, but I know absolutely nothing about the period these bills for Mrs. Rathbone, which I paid, represent.

Q. Does not that statement rendered by the hotel to Mrs. Rathbone indicate that these bills are for hotel expenses from November 5 to 12?—A. They do by the date that they bear, and from October 29 to November 5.

Q. That is the period which these bills which you paid cover?—A. It so appears.

Q. You do not know who paid her bills after November 12?—A. I do not.

Q. Did she and her son occupy the same room with General Rathbone when they were there after you arrived at New York from Washington?—A. They were all in the same corner of the building, but I could not say which rooms they separately occupied, because I was in another portion of the building.

Q. General Rathbone has stated that he had a suite of four rooms there that he and his family occupied. Did you pay the bill presented by the hotel for these rooms for the eight days that you were there?—A. I paid a bill presented by the hotel in the name of General Rathbone for rooms and board.

Q. How much did the bill for rooms amount to?—A. They amounted to $97.50.

Q. Did you understand that this charge of $97.50 covered the expenses of the apartments occupied by General Rathbone and his family?—A. I did not know.

Q. This board and restaurant charge, aggregating about $98 for these eight days, do you know whether that was for the board of General Rathbone personally and alone, or for the board of himself and wife and child?—A. It was represented as the board of E. G. Rathbone. I do not know what was consumed at the table, because I ate at a separate table.

Q. Did he and his wife and family eat at the same table?—A. To my knowledge they did.

Q. Do you have any information as to them keeping separate accounts for the expenses of meals of his wife and child as apart from his own?—A. I do not.

Q. Did you ever see any statement rendered to Mrs. Rathbone for board subsequent to this statement which she handed you and asked you to pay?—A. I do not remember the exact date; but it was very close to our leaving that the bunch of hotel bills which I have mentioned before were handed me and of which I gave some to Mrs. Rathbone.

Q. She did not direct you to pay these and charge them to her personal account?—A. She did not. It appeared the bills I paid were handed to me by Mrs. Rathbone with the request that I pay them as a favor, because she either had a check which had not been cashed or did not have the money with her at that time. I had the ready money and as a favor was asked to pay the bill at once, for which I later presented a personal account to Mrs. Rathbone.

Q. Was that shortly after you arrived from Washington?—A. That, as I remember it, was nearer the time of leaving New York for Habana than of arriving from Washington.

Q. Why do you suppose that she simply asked you to pay the bills that she incurred before the arrival of General Rathbone at New York and retained the others that she did not ask you to pay?—A. I do not know. I was handed those particular bills and asked as a favor to pay them.

Q. Do you think General Rathbone spent for his own personal use $25 a day at that hotel for these eight days, as a matter of opinion?—A. I could not say. I could not say. I might add that the hotel was a very expensive resort.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Wilmot, don't you think that $236 represents the board of General Rathbone and his family for that eight days at the hotel?—A. I have no reason to think that, because the hotel company presented bills to Mrs. Rathbone as well as to the director-general.

Q. Did you have any knowledge of her having paid her own bills after his arrival there?—A. I remember Mrs. Rathbone paying some bill at the desk, which bill I could not state, nor am I positive of the time she paid this bill; but it seems it was toward the close of our stay in New York.

Q. You do not know what bill she paid, nor what the amount was?—A. I do not know what bill nor the amount of it.

Q. What were your expenses while you were at the hotel these eight days?—A. They were $23.40 for room and board.

Q. How much did you pay for a room?—A. One dollar and a half per day.

Q. Was it a very good room?—A. It was a very small room without bath.

Q. What were your restaurant expenses?—A. They were $12.35.

Q. Did you eat in the same dining room with General Rathbone and his family?—A. At the Hotel Empire I did, but at a different table.

WILSON E. WILMOT.

SUPPLEMENTARY STATEMENT OF W. E. WILMOT.

Supplementing my previous statement, I desire to add that at the conclusion of each trip in which I accompanied the director-general I made up a statement of the expenses incurred, which, together with the vouchers, was presented to the director-general for his scrutiny and approval. In the case of the trip around the island the expense account was made up under the instructions of the director-general. In the case of the first trip to the United States, the expense account was made up to conform with the wishes of the director-general, and when it had been completed in form it was placed on his desk, where it remained for some time unapproved. About the latter part of July, when Dr. Reeves was in the director-general's office, I was called in and directed to close up the account, attach the proper certification, and take a press copy of it, which I did, and then handed the account to Dr. Reeves. The account was made out on the basis of $500 having been received from the department for expenses, since I had the understanding that one warrant for $500 had been issued for the expenses of the trip. The account indicated that $74.55 was turned back to the department, but as I only received funds from the director-general from time to time with which to pay expenses as they were incurred on the trip, and the director-general retained the rest of the money, and, as I understand, returned the amount unexpended himself to the auditor, I merely followed my instructions in making up the account and indicating the amount of money returned to the department.

The last account, which represents the expenditures incurred on the November trip to the United States, was made up in this manner: On the trip I kept a memorandum of all expenditures, official, personal, and otherwise. The separations and formal completion of the official account was left until the termination of the trip, and was then made up to conform to the wishes of the director-general, and finally placed in his hands for scrutiny and approval. The account was then gone over by the director-general, and I gave him information regarding the different items as he went through it. It was then approved, and I was directed to close it up in proper form, take a press copy of it, and place it in the hands of the assistant auditor. On this latter trip, as on the previous ones to the States, General Rathbone handed me funds from time to time with which to pay expenses, and himself returned the remainder to the auditor, as I understand, for which I took his receipt. The account was made up on a basis of $1,500 having been received for expenses.

EXHIBIT 40.

Copy of statement of Sam Bremner, interpreter.

HABANA, June 22, 1900.

Q. Were you a messenger and interpreter for General Rathbone in April, 1899?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you accompany him on a trip around the island?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember the trip you made from Santiago to Habana on the transport?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many meals a day did you eat on that trip?—A. Four.

Q. What time did you eat them?—A. In the morning at 6 o'clock we had coffee; at 10 o'clock, breakfast; at 2 o'clock, lunch, and at half past 5 or 6 o'clock another table was spread—four times.

Q. That was on the transport?—A. Yes.

Q. Did all of you go to the table?—A. The General went first, and Mrs. Rathbone, and Estes, and Mr. Wilmot. Myself and Fanny sat at the steward's table.

Q. Who is Fanny?—A. Fanny is the servant maid.

Q. You all went down together, but ate at separate tables?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you eat more than four meals a day?—A. I do not think we ate more than four a day.

Q. Do you remember of ever eating more than four times a day at any time on the trip?—A. No, sir; the table was not spread more than that.

Q. It was not spread more than that?—A. No; we would have had to got a lunch and stood up to eat it.

Q. Did you eat six meals a day at any time?—A. No.
Q. Did any of you eat six meals a day?—A. No, sir.
Q. Did you ever see General Rathbone or Mrs. Rathbone or Mr. Wilmot eat six meals a day?—A. No, sir.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, February 17, 1899.

Mr. THOMAS J. PEDDICORD, Hamilton, Ohio.

DEAR MR. PEDDICORD:

* * * * * * *

As soon as I can shape matters up to get away for a few days I shall come to the States for a flying business trip to Hamilton.

Very truly, yours,

E. G. RATHBONE.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, March 11, 1899.

Mr. THOS. J. PEDDICORD,
Hamilton, Ohio.

My DEAR MR. PEDDICORD:

* * * * * * *

I note all you say about the assignment, and the fact that I will probably be needed there about May 1st. I shall make my arrangements to that end, to be in Hamilton by May 1st, unless otherwise advised by you.

* * * * * * *

Very truly, yours,

E. G. RATHBONE.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
HABANA, March 27, 1899.

Hon. O. B. BROWN, Dayton, Ohio.

MY DEAR JUDGE:

* * * * * * *

My present intention is to be in Hamilton about May 1st. Some litigations in which I am interested come up about that time, and I shall hope to see you. The probabilities are that I shall spend my nights in Cincinnati, coming to Hamilton in the day. Perhaps you can find it convenient some time to come to Cincinnati and dine with me at the Saint Nicholas.

Very truly, yours,

E. G. RATHBONE.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, March 27, 1899.

Mr. T. J. PEDDICORD, Hamilton, Ohio.

DEAR MR. PEDDICORD:

* * * * * * *

My inference from your letters is that I will be needed in Hamilton as a witness some time between the 1st and 15th of May, and that you are to get the cases set for trial and advise me. I hope you will give as much notice as possible, and I shall be sure to be there without fail.

Very truly, yours,

E. G. RATHBONE.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, March 27, 1899.

Hon. JNO. F. NEILAN, Hamilton, Ohio.

MY DEAR JUDGE:

* * * * * * *

Mr. Peddicord advises me that I will be needed as a witness in Hamilton in some cases in your court about May 1st, and I shall hold myself in readiness to answer his call.

* * * * * * *

Very truly, yours,

E. G. RATHBONE.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, April 1, 1899.

THOMAS J. PEDDICORD, Esq., Hamilton, Ohio.

MY DEAR MR. PEDDICORD:

I hand you herewith a communication from Heath, which is self-explanatory. I think it would be well if you can hold this matter over until I arrive, which, according to your advices so far, will be about, or soon after, May 1st.

* * * * * * *

Very respectfully,

E. G. RATHBONE.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL, HABANA,

Mr. T. J. PEDDICORD, Hamilton, Ohio.

My DEAR Mr. PEDDICORD:

* * * * * * *

I note that you have assigned the cases for the 9th of May. It is my intention now to leave Habana on the 25th for Hamilton, via New York, going from Habana to New York by the Ward steamship line.

* * * * * * *

Very truly, yours,

E. G. RATHBONE.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL, HABANA,
On S. S. Comal, en route Habana, April 15, 1899.

Mr. F. L. LUDWIG, Hamilton, Ohio.

MY DEAR SIR:

* * * * * * *

I am to be in Hamilton about the 9th of May.

* * * * * * *

Very truly, yours,

E. G. RATHBONE.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL, HABANA,
On S. S. Comal, en route Habana, April 15, 1899.

JOHN F. MILLER, Esq.,
General Supt., Penn. Lines, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR MR. MILLER:

I have yours of the 7th instant, concerning the matter of granting permission to certain manufacturers in Hamilton to run switch tracks to their mills, and in reply will say that the Hydraulic Company's affairs are in a rather peculiar condition, that the Becket Paper Company have been fighting the Hydraulic Company, and the Hydraulic Company does not deem it its bounden duty to put itself out of the way to oblige those who have been fighting the company. I am to be in Hamilton about the 8th of May and will look the matter over. Please bear in mind that it has always been my desire (and my past acts bear out the statement) to aid you personally and your company in any reasonable way. As to whether or not the Hydraulic Company will grant permission to the Becket Paper Company to run a switch track to its mill, that is problematical, for reasons above stated.

Very truly, yours, E. G. RATHBONE.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL, HABANA,
On S. S. Comal, en route Habana, April 15, 1899.

Hon. JAMES E. CAMPBELL,
Hoffman House, New York City.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:

* * * * * * *

It is my present intention to leave Habana on the Ward line about the 25th for Hamilton, Ohio, via New York.

* * * * * * *

Very truly, yours,

E. G. RATHBONE.

Mrs. EMILLY BROWN MILLIKIN,
No. 1208 Locust Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

MY DEAR EMILLY:

* * * * * * *

I am in lawsuits up to my ears in Hamilton, going up there every morning and returning here at night. I have just been on the witness stand about three hours and am therefore very weary, all of which you will appreciate, for I believe you were on the witness stand yourself at one time.

* * * * * * *

Very truly, yours,

E. G. RATHBONE.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL, HABANA,
Cincinnati, May 8, 1899.

Hon. O. B. BROWN, Dayton, Ohio.

MY DEAR BRITT:

* * * * * * *

I have three or four cases on hand in the courts in Hamilton, and spend my days there and the nights in Cincinnati.

* * * * * * *

Very truly, yours,

E. G. RATHBONE.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, June 13, 1899.

Mr. GEORGE M. ALLEN,
Acting First Assistant Postmaster-General,
Washington, D. C.

SIR:

* * * * * * *

To make it a little plainer, I might add that during my week or ten days' stay in Ohio, early in May, I made my headquarters at the St. Nicholas, in Cincinnati, and would go to Hamilton during the day and return at night.

Very respectfully, E. G. RATHBONE.

PEDDICORD, Hamilton, Ohio.

What was decision Federal court receiver matter?

RATHBONE.

[Extract from testimony of Director-General Rathbone (pages 116, 117, and 118, Exhibit 19.)]

Q. A trip to the United States; was that on official business? What official business did you have there at that time?—A. Well, I could hardly recite everything which I did, but I can tell you one thing which ought to be sufficient of itself, although I did many other things. The Assistant Attorney-General for the Post-Office Department and myself prepared what is now the postal code of the island, under the direction of the Postmaster-General.

Q. You went to the United States for that purpose, did you?—A. Yes; and others.

Q. Was that the postal code which you have here now?—A. Yes.

Q. I see, also, that you made a trip to Cincinnati, Ohio. Was that an official trip? What official business did you have there?—A. I do not just recall now. I do not remember what official trips I made to different places. There have been so many things I had to see to that I do not remember. Perhaps it was in connection with lock boxes.

Q. Did you make the contract with the Indianapolis firm for lock boxes?—A. My recollection is, and I speak only from recollection, that we invited proposals from different firms to supply that sort of material: with such firms as the Keyless, Yale, Town, and Corbin, and my recollection is that the Keyless was the lowest.

Q. You negotiated the contract, then, after the bids were received?—A. I do not know that I did. Some one did. I suppose representation was made to me that the Keyless was the best. I had to depend on other people a great deal; I could not do everything myself.

Q. What I wanted to get at was whether you gave it personal attention or not?—A. I do not know whether I did or not; the records of the Department should speak for that.

Q. You do not remember the official business you had at Cincinnati?—A. I do not.

Q. I notice also that you were at Hamilton, Ohio. You were there on official business, so your expense account shows?—A. Was I at Hamilton, Ohio? I do not recollect.

Q. Did you have official business there?—A. I do not recall. I can not recollect all details. * * *

Q. Is it not a fact, General, that you had no official business at Hamilton, Ohio? Was you not there attending to personal business in lawsuits, etc.?—A. I do not recall; I do not remember.

Q. Were you not a witness there in court in May?—A. I don't recall; the records there will speak.

Q. Is it not a fact that you were there as a witness for three or four days?—A. I do not remember what I was there for.

Q. And didn't you go up from Cincinnati to Hamilton every day to attend these lawsuits, and come back in the afternoon?—A. I do not recall.

Q. You don't remember any official business you had in Cincinnati or Hamilton at that time?—A. I have answered that.

Q. I just want a statement of any official business you had out there.—A. I can only recall at this time one particular thing that I did on that trip—that is, classifying the postal code. I have no doubt but that I did many other things of an official nature while in the States.

Q. Did your trip to Cincinnati or Hamilton have anything to do with the postal code?—A. I do not know that it did.

Q. What I wanted, General, was, do you remember any official business of any character that you had at Cincinnati or Hamilton?—A. I don't recall.

Copy of report of Inspector Gregory concerning the director-general's quarters at Mme. Jorrin's.

DEPARTMENT OF POSTS OF CUBA,
BUREAU OF SPECIAL AGENTS,
Habana, June 19, 1900.

Hon. J. L. BRISTOW,
Acting Director-General of Posts, Habana, Cuba.

SIR: I have the honor to return herewith case No. 3080–C, relating to the investigation of allowances made by the late director-general of posts, E. G. Rathbone, in payment of account of Mme. Serafina Moliner de Jorrin, Calzada del Cerro 528, Habana, for alleged official expenditures for office rent, coachman's room, coach house and stable, for the months of March, April, May, June, July, August, and first half of the month of September, 1899, for which payment was made by warrants Nos. 1207, 1853, 2435, 3129, 5012, 5577, and 6138; the first six warrants being for $110 each and the seventh for $55.

On the 18th instant I interviewed Mme. Jorrin, who stated that General Rathbone and family with servants occupied apartments in her residence March 1 to September 15, 1899, inclusive. There was no written contract or agreement, the arrangements being oral, upon the following basis: Three bedchambers, a sitting room, and a bathroom for the use of General and Mrs. Rathbone, their child, and a maid servant; a room each for a valet of General Rathbone's, and a coachman, with use of stable, coach house and back yard for coach and two horses, with full table board for the entire family and servants. The rate agreed upon for apartments and board was as follows:

	Per month.
For General Rathbone	$75.00
For Mrs. Rathbone	75.00
For child and maid	75.00
For private sitting room	90.00
For valet	30.00
For room and board for coachman, with use of stable and coach house (of which latter amount $25 was for the table board of the coachman)	90.00
Total sum agreed upon being for the entire party	435.00

At the end of the first month General Rathbone paid $400. He then announced that he would have the valet and coachman take their meals elsewhere, with the exception that the valet would continue to take his first breakfast there, and on account of these changes insisted on a reduction of the entire payment to $300. Upon Mme. Jorrin protesting against such reduction as being contrary to their oral agreement, he stated that he would pay her $20 additional per month to the $90 originally agreed upon for the use of stable, coach house, and coachman's room, notwithstanding the service rendered was decreased $25 per month, owing to withdrawal of coachman as to table board. At the end of the second month General Rathbone paid $300, instead of the original agreement of $435. After that he further reduced the amount of payment to $280 per month, for which reason Mme. Jorrin insists that he has cheated her out of the difference between the amount originally agreed upon and the actual payments subsequently made. When making payments, General Rathbone asked for receipted bills—one for his personal payments, and another, made out in duplicate, for official payment on account of coachman. While Mme. Jorrin did not recall clearly the amount of payment, she remembered that the amount was uniform—the same for each and every month. She alleges that after the first two months, without asking her consent, General Rathbone brought in an additional male servant, who performed duties as footman, to occupy a room with coachman, for which he did not make any additional payment.

As to designation in official vouchers specifying "office rent," there was in reality no official office used, the apartment so designated in official voucher being, in reality, a private sitting room, in which, so far as Madame Jorrin is aware, no official business was transacted; though she stated that sometimes before leaving the house General Rathbone would use that room to write some letters to take with him, the nature of which she was not aware.

As to the male servants referred to, their names were as follows: Santiago Hernandez, coachman; Samuel Bremner, used as valet and interpreter, except during the office hours, at which time he was employed as messenger to the director-general; Amparo Vales, footman, being the one referred to by Madame Jorrin as being brought into her residence as a permanent lodger without her consent being obtained. He appears on the pay roll of the department from May 1, 1899, as footman, and on June 15 his designation was changed from "footman" to "messenger."

Samuel Bremner stated that the $30 for room and board he paid himself for two months, after which he only had his coffee, or first breakfast, and room, for which he paid direct to Madame Jorrin 3 centenes per month (equal to $14.46 American currency). Madame Jorrin admitted that this man Bremner did pay himself, but she included his payments in amounts stated as paid by General Rathbone, and that Bremner was the only one of the servants who paid her direct.

Very respectfully,

H. T. GREGORY,
Post-Office Inspector.

EXHIBIT 44.

Copy of letter of director-general, April 3, 1899, to Madame Jorrin, concerning board.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, April 3, 1899.

MY DEAR MADAME: In order that there may be no misunderstanding, I will state what I understand our arrangements to be. I am to pay you $75 per month for the office, and $35 per month for the use of the carriage house, the stables, and the coachman's room, for sleeping purposes. This is an official matter and will be paid by the department of posts. There is to be paid you for the coachman's board $20 per month, if he gets his meals with you. Mrs. Rathbone and myself are to pay $60 apiece per month, aggregating $120. We are to pay for Fannie and Estes $75 per month, making a total aggregate cost of $195 per month for myself, Mrs. Rathbone, Estes, and the maid, Fannie. This gives us the rooms we now occupy, and the one that is being fitted up as a bath and toilet room at my expense. As to Sam, I understand you and he have had a conversation, and that he is to have his room with you and coffee in the morning, for which he is to pay 2 centenes per month. He will breakfast and dine outside. I will get the money from Sam and Santiago and pay it to you personally. You will understand I pay Sam and Santiago so much per month, and they board and lodge themselves, but I will see that you get your money.

This makes $195 that I pay you personally for self, wife, child, and maid; $110 officially for office, coach house, stable, and sleeping quarters for coachman; $10 per month for Sam for room and coffee in the morning, and $20 for Santiago's board, making in the aggregate $335 per month.

Please advise me if this is in accordance with your understanding, as it is mine, and if it is satisfactory to you.

Very truly yours,

E. G. RATHBONE.

Madame JORRIN, No. 528 Cerro.

EXHIBIT 45.

Copy of statement of P. H. Bristow, chief clerk, department of posts, concerning apartments at Madame Jorrin's.

HABANA, June 19, 1900.

Q. Where did you board when you first came to Habana?—A. At Madame Jorrin's, on the corner of Cerro and Tulipan streets.

Q. How many rooms did you have there yourself?—A. One.

Q. How much did you pay a month for room and board?—A. Seventy-five dollars.

Q. Did General Rathbone and family board there at the time you were there?—A. Yes.

Q. How long a time did you board there?—A. Three months—March, April, and May, 1899.

Q. Was General Rathbone there at the time that you were?—A. He was.

Q. And his family?—A. His family was not at the time—that is, Mrs. Rathbone and the boy were in the States when I came down here, and I do not remember just when she returned, but it was some time the latter part of March.

Q. And then, from that time on, the whole family boarded there at Madame Jorrin's?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long were you there after Mrs. Rathbone and the boy came from the United States?—A. They came about the latter part of March or the first of April, as nearly as I can remember, and I was there two months after she got back.

Q. How many rooms did you occupy when you were boarding at Madame Jorrin's?—A. One.

Q. How much did you pay for board per month?—A. For room and board, $75.

Q. How many rooms did the family of General Rathbone occupy?—A. When they had all arrangements made, and that was not until some little time after she got back, when they finally got all arrangements made, they occupied five.

Q. How many did they occupy to begin with?—A. It must have been only three.

Q. How many rooms did they occupy when Mrs. Rathbone first came from the States?—A. As I remember it, three.

Q. Did they continue to occupy the three rooms?—A. No; as nearly as I can remember not until after they made the trip around the island. The room I had was assigned to them, and the room still beyond my room was made into a bathroom for their use, making five in all which they occupied.

Q. Why did they want additional rooms?—A. Well, of course, that was a personal matter between the General and Mrs. Rathbone and Mrs. Jorrin that I would not know the particulars of; but I only know that Mrs. Rathbone said she wanted more room.

Q. Wanted more elaborate rooms for her living apartments, did she?—A. Apparently so; I never heard the matter discussed. I simply know that she said she wanted more room.

Q. Were any of these rooms used for any purpose except as living rooms—any of the five?—A. I do not think so, although the front room—General Rathbone considered that his home office. He considered that his official room.

Q. In what way did he consider it an official room?—A. I do not know beyond the mere fact that he said he wanted an office where he could transact business.

Q. Were you his chief clerk during this period?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever occupy this front room, which he styled the official room?—A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever have any business transactions there of an official nature?—A. No.

Q. Did any of the clerks or employees of the department of posts or people visit him there on official business connected with the department of posts?—A. Well, I can not say as to that; but I have no knowledge of anyone coming there. Of course people came there from the department and visited him in that room. I was there but very little. I did not suppose they were there on official business.

Q. Did they visit him any more there than they would any public official of the United States occupying such a position?—A. I should think not.

Q. What was the room used for, actually?—A. The family seemed to occupy it as a place of receiving.

Q. A kind of family sitting room, parlor, library, combined?—A. Yes.

Q. Where they received friends, other than in their bedrooms?—A. Yes. Three of the other rooms were bedrooms and one a bathroom, and this was a sort of reception room.

Q. You say you paid $75 a month for room and board, and when you first went there you occupied the room which afterwards you gave up to Mrs. Rathbone and took another room?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. This official room or receiving room—was that a better room than the others?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. How much more was the rental value of that room than the room you occupied?—A. I should say that that room, if the house was going to be used for the purpose of renting it, and if the room that I occupied was worth $75, I have no doubt a person who had the money to expend in that way would be willing to pay $100 for that room; that is, that would be about the proportion for that room and board.

Q. What did General Rathbone's family consist of—how many people?—A. Himself, Mrs. Rathbone, Estes, jr., and the maid.

Q. Did he have any messengers or servants of any kind, coachman, etc.?—A. Yes. I never knew much about the arrangement of that, but I know a coachman stayed there and had the coachman's room, as I understood it; and Sam stayed there and had a room downstairs in the servants' quarters below; but my recollection is that Sam had to pay his own way; that is my recollection.

Q. Anybody besides Sam and the coachman?—A. For a little time there was a footman. I do not remember just how long they had a footman. I do not know whether he stayed there or not.

Q. Do you know how much General Rathbone paid for his family's board?—A. No; I do not.

Q. Did you ever hear him say anything about how much it was costing him?—A. I went from the boat immediately to the department of posts, and he told me he thought he could get board out there for me for $60 a month; that that was about what he was paying.

Q. Were the three rooms that the Rathbones occupied when Mrs. Rathbone first came more elaborate than yours?—A. Yes, sir; the finish was finer.

Q. Would your board have cost you more if you had had one of those rooms than the one you had?—A. That would be purely conjectural. I should think it would. I never inquired.

Q. Was Mr. Wilmot the private secretary to General Rathbone during that time?—A. Yes.

Q. Did he ever come out there on official business of any kind?—A. I do not remember that he ever did. He may have, you know, without my knowing it. If he did, it was very infrequent.

Q. Why do you think General Rathbone called that an official room?—A. I do not believe I can give a very satisfactory answer to that. All I know about it was he said that that was his home office, or his official room. Now, why he styled it that I am sure I do not know.

Q. You spoke of a trip around the island. Do you know what that trip was made for?—A. For the purpose of visiting the different offices and getting acquainted with the officials and their work.

Q. Who went with General Rathbone on that trip?—A. His immediate family, his private secretary, and his valet, I suppose you would call him.

Q. Of whom did his immediate family consist?—A. Mrs. Rathbone, Estes, junior, and the maid.

Q. Do you know whether the expenses of that trip were paid from the Cuban funds or his own private funds?—A. I do not know.

EXHIBIT 46.

Copy of statement of W. E. Wilmot concerning office room at Mme. Jorrin's.

HABANA, June 19, 1900.

Q. When did you become General Rathbone's private secretary?—A. January 28, 1899.

Q. Were you his private secretary when he was living at Mrs. Jorrin's?—A. Yes.

Q. Did he transact any of his official business at the residence of Mrs. Jorrin?—A. I was there on one occasion for official purposes.

Q. How long was he boarding there?—A. Well, I could tell very readily by reference to the books. I could estimate it at six months.

Q. Just get the exact date.—A. (After examination of the books.) I can not give you the exact date, but I can find it out a little later; but I can say it was from about March 15, 1899, to September 15, 1899.

Q. And you were there one time on official business?—A. Yes.

Q. Where did you see General Rathbone when you were there?—A. In the room used as an office.

Q. In what way was that room used as an office?—A. You mean how was it equipped?

Q. No. In what way did he use it as an office?—A. Of course, I could only answer that question by saying what was done when I was there that one time. I took some official correspondence.

Q. That was the only time you ever went there?—A. The only time.

Q. Do you know of him using that room for official correspondence or business at any other time when you were not there?—A. No; I have no knowledge whatever about it.

Q. Did he have any other secretary except yourself?—A. No.

Q. Did he dictate any of his correspondence to anyone except yourself?—A. Nobody.

Q. What kind of official business could he have transacted there without you knowing about it?—A. I do not know.

Q. Do you know what this room was used for at the house?—A. No; I have no knowledge of that.

EXHIBIT 47.

Copy of statement of W. H. Reeves concerning duplicate warrants.

HABANA, June 21, 1900.

Q. Dr. Reeves, you were the chief of the bureau of accounts of the department of posts of Cuba from January 1 to June 30, 1899, were you not?—A. No, sir; from February 8 to June 30.

Q. Do you know what that warrant was drawn for [handing him warrant No. 1203, $500, dated April 4, 1899, in favor of W. E. Wilmot, cashier]?—A. That was drawn to pay the expenses of a trip around the island in an investigation that General Rathbone made.

Q. How much of that warrant was used for the expenses of that trip?—A. $280.07.

Q. What became of the rest of it?—A. The balance of it was turned over to me, as stated in this receipt; $69.93 cash and receipt for $150 of Henry Nunez, acting postmaster at Santiago.

Q. You drew the warrant, did you?—A. Yes.

Q. That is your official signature?—A. Yes.

Q. What was this warrant drawn for [handing Mr. Reeves warrant No. 3167, for $500, dated June 30, 1899, payable to E. G. Rathbone, director-general]?—A. No. 3167 was issued in lieu of No. 1204, that was lost by Mr. Wilmot.

Q. Was the lost warrant ever canceled?—A. No, sir.

Q. Was payment stopped?—A. Payment was stopped at the bank.

Q. This warrant was in lieu of the lost warrant?—A. Yes.

Q. Who drew the money on that warrant?—A. General Rathbone, from that indorsement.

Q. Did he know that this warrant was being drawn in lieu of the one that was lost by Wilmot?—A. Yes.

Q. How did he know it?—A. It states on the face of it, "In lieu of warrant No. 1204, lost."

General BRISTOW. He states that he never knew such a warrant as this was drawn; that it was given him among numerous other warrants; that he signed it inadvertently, without any knowledge of what it was for.

Mr. REEVES. Did he sign it on the back in the same way?

General BRISTOW. Yes; he claims he signed it on the back in the same way.

Mr. REEVES. I do not know about that, whether it was brought singly or with others and was left with the General.

Mr. FOSNES. Just relate the circumstances, Doctor, as to the preparation and making out of this substitute warrant. What conference did you have with General Rathbone in reference to the matter, if any, and whose idea was it that there should be a duplicate drawn?

A. I do not remember whose idea it was. There was something brought up at some time about that—how they would get it back in the treasury, and what to do with it, and it was agreed that that warrant should be issued in lieu of it, and that that should be deposited.

Mr. FOSNES. By whom agreed?

A. The General.

Mr. FOSNES. And who else?

A. And myself. I do not know whether anybody else was in the consultation or not.

Mr. FOSNES. Do you recall that you and General Rathbone conferred about it?

A. Yes; I would not issue a warrant without his order. There was no occasion for my issuing a warrant without him first ordering it.

Mr. FOSNES. You said "deposited." What do you mean by that?

A. Deposited to the credit of the department of posts. That is what was done or should have been done with all warrants.

Mr. FOSNES. Was this money deposited to the credit of the department of posts?

A. On the back of it it does not show that it was. That can only be told by looking at the deposit slips in the bank—by looking at the deposit slip of July 5; that is the date that it shows payment.

Mr. FOSNES. What would be the effect on your accounts, Doctor, of this being deposited to the credit of Rathbone and the other one never having been cashed?

A. This one was issued in lieu of the other, and that money, if it had been deposited, would have been accounted for.

General BRISTOW. If payment was stopped on a warrant and a statement was made that it was lost, isn't that all that is necessary to get credit for it?

A. I do not know how you could get credit at the bank for it.

Q. The lost warrant had never been presented to the bank and never has been yet, so that does not figure in any way with the bank account up to this time. This warrant was drawn, presented, and paid, so there was a charge and a credit as far as this warrant goes; but the lost warrant stands just as it did before this warrant was issued, does not it?—A. I do not think, General, that this warrant has ever been charged against the disbursement. I could not say without looking at the record. It was merely made to take the place of the other warrant.

Q. So, then, the depositing of this and getting the cash upon it would be receiving cash for a lost warrant that had been charged here, but never presented for payment?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Rathbone's account would be $500 ahead?—A. No, it would not be. This warrant was issued in lieu of warrant 1204, and no charge of warrant 3167 made. I am saying that without looking at the record, but that is my recollection; I will have to go and look at the warrant register to see which is correct.

Q. What kind of an entry do you make?—A. Simply show that it was issued in lieu of such and such a warrant.

Q. Now, Mr. Reeves, what was that warrant drawn for [handing him warrant No. 1727, for $500, dated April 22, 1899, in favor of E. G. Rathbone]?—A. That was drawn for expenses for travel to the United States by direction of the Postmaster-General for General Rathbone.

Q. How much of that money was for expenses?—A. It seems to have been all used but $74.55; $425.45.

Q. What became of that $74.55 that was not used?—A. Maybe that was returned to me. I do not see any receipt on it. Probably Mr. Wilmot has a receipt.

General BRISTOW. No, he does not have a receipt; so he says; neither has General Rathbone a receipt. General Rathbone claims that he returned that to you, but failed to get a receipt.

Mr. REEVES. If they gave me anything they got a receipt for it, General.

Q. If he can not produce a receipt for that, then do you positively state that you did not receive the money?—A. Well, I would not positively state that, because General Rathbone is entitled to as much credit for what he says as I am; but unless he could produce a reciept that I had gotton that, on general principles a man would say I hadn't gotten it; and I can not remember whether I had or had not. The only thing I can go by is the receipt.

Q. Was it customary for you to receive money in that way?—A. I remember of receiving money in that way. I received the money when they went around the island, and when he went to the States last fall. I gave receipts for it, and they are attached, but those I do not remember. If he shows receipts signed by me, then that settles it.

Q. What about that warrant [handing him warrant No. 1728, for $500, dated April 22, 1899, in favor of E. G. Rathbone]?—A. That was issued for the same purpose. I judge the General carried that with him to the States. He seems to have had it cashed in Washington. Yes, from the back of it—Mr. Heath's name and Mr. Merchant's name; paid through the Second National Bank.

Q. Do you know what became of that money?—A. All I know anything about is what is accounted for in that one [referring to warrant previously discussed].

General BRISTOW. These vouchers here are for only something over $400.

Mr. REEVES. This should have been accounted for on that if it had been used.

Q. Did General Rathbone return the money from that warrant to you?—A. Unless he has a receipt I could not say; if he has got a receipt, all right. I do not remember that he ever gave me $500.

Q. What do you think about it?—A. Just as I say; in the absence of a receipt, and my recollection, I do not think that he ever gave it to me.

Q. No recollection of it at all?—A. No.

Q. Did he turn over money to you frequently, or not?—A. No, sir; my recollection is that in these trips Mr. Wilmot turned the money over to me himself. I do not remember that the General ever gave me a dollar for anything. I think Mr. Wilmot brought the account and the money in each instance.

Mr. FOSNES. A charge was made against Rathbone in your books for these two warrants, $500 each, for traveling expenses. Could this have been charged again, or entered into his salary account or any other account?

A. It might, of course, have applied to his salary account. If he had had that much money on pay day he might have kept it, but if he did the pay rolls would show it.

Mr. FOSNES. The books also?

A. Not necessarily the books, but the pay roll on which salary was paid; the warrant for the pay roll would be less $500 if it had been applied for salary.

General BRISTOW. General Rathbone thinks he returned this $500, and that $74.55, to you and failed to get a receipt.

A. I do not think any man in the department ever failed to get a receipt for anything he returned to me.

Q. Was it your uniform practice to give receipts?—A. Yes; you will find in every bureau in this office or any place else where I got anything from anybody I gave a receipt. If I got a paper out of the file and it hasn't got back, my receipt is there for it, because that was the practice in the Auditor's office at home and it was a habit we all had to form. Every time we took an account or a paper of any description we put in a call slip, as it was called, to show who got it. That was done every time I took a paper away.

Q. You were not accustomed in the States to receive money; that was something new and peculiar to this service.—A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many times did you receive money?—A. It is my recollection, as I said before, only twice, and both times from Mr. Wilmot. I did not remember anything at all about that $74 until Mr. Lawshe asked me; I had no recollection whatever about the transaction.

Q. Did you receive money from any other source?—A. I sometimes got money through the mail. Registered letters would come to me in place of going to some other bureau. That you will find in the messsenger's book, where those things were receipted for.

Q. Would it not have been a proper course to have returned that to the finance bureau and had notice sent to you?—A. Probably that might have been done.

Q. Would not that have been the regular way to have done?—A. I do not know. He would have forwarded a receipt from the finance bureau before he would have got his credit on that.

Q. Were you not notified of all moneys that were deposited in the finance bureau?—A. No, sir; it was not the custom. I never knew that a dollar was received there except the amount deposited by Mr. Neely—money coming to him from the island I knew nothing at all about.

Q. Mr. Neely, as I understand it, never made a report to you of any kind?—A. No, sir; not at any time.

Copies of statements of W. E. Wilmot concerning warrants Nos. 1727, 1204, 3167.

AFFIDAVIT OF W. E. WILMOT CONCERNING DEPARTMENT OF POSTS WARRANT NO. 1727.

In connection with department of posts warrant No. 1727 I have the following statement to make:

According to my best recollection, this warrant was handed to me in the Post-Office Department building at Washington by the director-general about the middle of May, 1899, when on an official trip to the United States, with the direction that I have it cashed. I believe I consulted somebody in the building about identifying me in order to cash the warrant, when I was told there would be a deduction for exchange. I then told the director-general I had been informed that it would be necessary to pay exchange in getting it cashed. I believe either General Rathbone or General Heath then said that he (Mr. Heath) would cash the warrant, and there would be no exchange. With this, I handed back the warrant to General Rathbone. I knew nothing further about the warrant, whether it was cashed or not, until I wrote, at the director-general's dictation, a letter to General Heath inclosing a money order to cover the expense of exchange in cashing the warrant.

WILSON E. WILMOT.

HABANA, June 23, 1900.

AFFIDAVIT OF W. E. WILMOT CONCERNING WARRANTS NOS. 1204 AND 3167.

In connection with warrant No. 1204, which was lost by me while accompanying the director-general on an official trip around the island of Cuba in the month of April, 1899, and warrant No. 3167, which was issued in lieu thereof, dated June 30, 1899, I have this statement to make:

The circumstances surrounding the loss of warrant No. 1204 are related in a sworn statement made by me sometime after June 30, 1899, which statement is attached to the Auditor's certificate upon which the warrant was issued. According to my best recollection, I was called upon to make this statement in writing, in order that there might appear on the Auditor's records proper explanation respecting the loss of the warrant. I was asked to make this written and sworn statement by the director-general in his office, there being present at the time Dr. W. H. Reeves, the assistant auditor, who added something to the effect that I date the statement June 30, in order that the matter might be disposed of in the business of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899. There was nothing whatever said that came to my notice which would indicate that there was any intention to issue a duplicate for the warrant which was lost, nor had I any idea or reason to surmise that such a course was to be pursued.

The above expresses my entire recollection of the matter.

WILSON E. WILMOT.

HABANA, June 30, 1899.

On April 10, 1899, upon arrival at Santiago de Cuba in the steamship Maria Herrera, while accompanying Gen. E. G. Rathbone, director-general of posts, on an official trip around the island of Cuba, I missed my pocketbook, containing about $20 of my personal funds and a warrant for $500, drawn by the department of posts on the North American Trust Company in favor of E. G. Rathbone, unsigned and unindorsed. The last time I remember having this pocketbook and check was on retiring the night of the 9th, and it was missed about 10 a. m. on the morning of the 10th, just after leaving the ship. I returned to the vessel, but thorough search failed to reveal any trace of the pocketbook or check. I immediately notified the North American Trust Company's representatives in Santiago of the loss, and telegraphed the chief of the bureau of postal accounts to stop payment of the warrant in Habana.

EXHIBIT 50.

Copy of statement of E. P. Hamlin concerning inspection of bureau of finance, April 23, 1900, responsive to questions propounded by M. C. Fosnes, post-office inspector, June 13, 1900.

Q. Please state your name, age, and occupation.—A. E. P. Hamlin; age, 36 years; clerk bureau of special agents, department of posts.

Q. How long have you been under assignment in the bureau of special agents?—A. Since January 17, 1900.

Q. Did you assist Inspectors Seybolt and Neal in the inspection of the bureau of finance on April 23, 1900?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the nature of your work in that connection?—A. Simply helping to count the stamps and money as directed by Mr. Seybolt.

Q. By whom was the count actually made?—A. By all three of us. We all three counted, and all three kept tally; one would count some and keep tally, and another would verify that tally.

Q. Do I understand that each of the men present—that is, Inspectors Seybolt and Neal and yourself—counted separately all the stock?—A. No; we each of us counted a part of it.

Q. That is, postage stamps, stamped paper, and money?—A. There was no stamped paper counted. This and the envelopes were downstairs at the time in the supply division, and the way that was counted was: I made a list of the full boxes, and broken boxes only were looked into.

Q. You mean to say that you went downstairs and made a memorandum of all the cases there?—A. I made a memorandum with the assistance of the man in charge there who called them off.

Q. Who called them off?—A. Mr. Richey and Neal, Mr. Seybolt directing the work.

Q. Then you all three went downstairs and made the inspection there?—A. Yes.

Q. Did Mr. Seybolt take a personal part in the count—that is, did he count them with his own hands?—A. He counted some of the money, and I think counted some of the stamps; but I am not sure that all of it was counted. That is, if a package of stamps was in its original condition, it was not molested, but was taken at the Government count. Mr. Seybolt said it was not necessary, and Mr. Neal agreed that it was not necessary, to count those that were in the original Government packages, and they were taken at their apparent value. The money was not all counted, either. The packages of bills that were North American Trust Company count and had been verified by two clerks in the bureau were not counted. A package was taken here and there and counted, and those being found correct, it was not thought necessary by Mr. Seybolt to count them over, they being bank count.

Q. How much money did you find on hand?—A. I think it was about $119,000. That is my recollection.

Q. Was that money-order or postal funds?—A. My understanding was that it was money-order funds; but I would not state this positively.

Q. Your recollection is that it was all money-order funds?—A. I think so; and my impression is based upon this: That Mr. Seybolt told me he wanted me to help count; that he had a statement from the auditor, and stated he wanted to find out if the money was in there, and he stated at the time that it was money-order funds.

Q. How did the count of the funds tally with the auditor's statement?—A. I can hardly answer that question, because I did not make the final statement or figures. I simply helped at the work, and then Messrs. Seybolt and Neal made the statement. It was the general understanding that it was all right. However, I did not know what was on the auditor's blanks, for I did not see it.

Q. Did you understand that there was an excess of funds on hand in that bureau?—A. I believe there were a few centens Spanish gold excess. I remember Mr. Neal asked the question of Neely where these centens came from. Neely stated they were from postmasters, and he was then asked from what postmasters, and Mr. Seybolt cut him off there and stated it was from postmasters and that was sufficient. The amount I do not remember. It was not large, however.

Q. Do you know whether or not Mr. Neely had any advance information that this inspection was to be made?—A. It was generally understood that he had. However, I can not answer that from my own knowledge. I may say, though, that I knew he had in this way, because we were to go in there in the morning, and I went in two or three times to see if he was ready, but it was not until 1.15 o'clock in the afternoon that we went in. That much advance notice he had.

Q. That is, Mr. Seybolt sent you in there several times?—A. Yes; two or three times in the morning to see if they were ready. He said, "Tell them to hurry up."

Q. What did Mr. Neely say when you went in?—A. He said, "We will be ready in a little while."

Q. And when you finally went in there, as you say, about 1 o'clock and 15 minutes?—A. We found everything in readiness to count.

Q. Was the money placed on the tables, for instance?—A. Not when we went in; but it was taken out the first thing and piled on the table.

Q. What books or records were examined during the inspection, if any?—A. I do not believe that there were any.

Q. The inspection, so far as you understand it, then, consisted in counting the stock of postage stamps, stamped paper, and money?—A. Yes.

Q. And that was compared, as you understood it, with the auditor's balance?—A. I understood it was all right; but I did not see the auditor's statement.

Q. Mr. Neely was present during the inspection?—A. He was present all the time and rendered any assistance that was asked of him.

Q. There were a great many of these original packages of money?—A. There were quite a number. I presume that one-half or two-thirds of the money was in these original packages.

Q. Were you consulted or had anything to do with regard to preparing the report of the inspection?—A. Nothing at all.

E. P. HAMLIN.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 14th day of June, 1900, at Habana, Cuba.

M. C. FOSNES,
Post-Office Inspector.

EXHIBIT 51.

Copy of statement of George L. Seybolt concerning inspection of bureau of finance, April 23, 1900, responsive to questions propounded by Mr. M. C. Fosnes, post-office inspector, June 14, 1900.

Q. Mr. Seybolt, you have been the acting chief special agent of the department of posts, have you not?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you filled that position?—A. Since the 13th day of January, 1900.

Q. You were assigned to that position when you arrived on the island?—A. Yes.

Q. You made an inspection of the Habana post-office about the last of March?—A. I do not know the exact date, but I made the inspection.

Q. You found the accounts of the Habana post-office balanced?—A. Yes; they balanced. The first inspection made, however, covered only the money-order business.

Q. Then you made two inspections of the Habana post-office about a week apart?—A. Yes; they were just a week apart, made on succeeding Saturdays. The second inspection, however, was not concluded on Saturday, but extended over several days.

Q. Your first inspection was of the money-order account alone?—A. Yes.

Q. Why did you restrict that inspection to the money-order account alone?—A. The money-order funds were to be transferred to the bureau of finance. An order had been made to that effect, and, for the purpose of ascertaining the amount on hand, the inspection was made. This is the only reason I know of for making that particular inspection.

Q. Did you make the inspection upon instructions or upon your own initiative?—A. My recollection is that I was asked by Mr. Bristow to make an inspection before the transfer was made.

Q. When did you first learn that Postmaster Thompson had a due bill in the money-order cash?—A. Only a very few days before I made the inspection.

Q. Did you find that due bill when you made the inspection?—A. No; it was not in evidence.

Q. Did you make any inquiry about it at that time?—A. I did not that day; I did later. I was not satisfied whether it had been lifted for good, and I asked myself for another inspection.

Q. You knew of it?—A. I went down with Mr. Williams, I think, into the room, and Mr. Sheridan was balancing his cash at the time, and I noticed a little piece of paper lying on the table. I turned it over and saw what it was. I did not then ask any questions about it. It was the due bill.

Q. Had you not been informed before of the existence of that due bill by one of the special agents?—A. Yes. Mr. Williams said there was something of that kind there. I told him we would inspect the office and find it. Mr. Williams did tell me. I do not know the date of it, but I think he mentioned it a day or two before I saw the paper in the money-order division.

Q. Did you, or did you not, Mr. Seybolt, preparatory to the first examination, which was the inspection of the money-order account, tell Mr. Sheridan that you intended to make such an inspection, and for him to have things straight?—A. No; I did not. I remarked to Mr. Sheridan the next day that that would be a very awkward piece of paper if an inspection was made. This is the only remark I made to Mr. Sheridan.

Q. Did you not suggest to him that he take steps to cover up that paper?—A. I said that paper had no business to be in the money-order division.

Q. After the inspection was concluded and you found everything balanced, did you ask Mr. Sheridan how it had been straightened up?—

A. I asked him the question a day or two after and he did not give me a very satisfactory answer. I supposed at the time that Mr. Thompson had put the money in. That was my supposition, and Mr. Sheridan did not say how that remittance was covered up until the next Saturday, when he stated he held out a remittance from Cienfuegos. Of course I had no means of knowing he held up a remittance the Saturday night before. I supposed the money had been put in.

Q. What conversation, if any, did you have with Postmaster Thompson at the time of the inspection?—A. I do not know that I recall any conversation with Mr. Thompson. I certainly said nothing to him about it, whatever, until after the second inspection, when Mr. Thompson was talking to me about it, and he said it was not an unusual thing for a man to do in the States. I replied that it was a very unusual thing to do in the States. Mr. Thompson seemed to be rather indignant at the idea of my calling that fact in question.

Q. You did not inquire of Mr. Thompson how he raised the money to cover the paper at that time?—A. No, I did not; Mr. Sheridan told me that Mr. Thompson expected some drafts, I think from Indianapolis, and I naturally inferred that he had got a draft, without asking any questions about it.

Q. When did Mr. Sheridan tell you that Postmaster Thompson expected a draft from Indianapolis; was it before the first inspection or between the first and second?—A. I think it was prior to the first inspection, after I discovered the paper.

Q. In reference to your inspection of the bureau of finance, what caused you to make that inspection?—A. The director-general wrote me a letter instructing me to make an investigation of the bureau of finance, and inclosed me a statement from the auditor.

Q. You made that inspection, as I understand it, on Monday, April 23?—A. Yes.

Q. You informed Mr. Neely in advance, as I believe, that you proposed to make such an inspection?—A. No, I did not.

Q. Do I understand you to mean that as far as you were concerned he had no information about the proposed inspection until after you walked into his room?—A. No, not until I walked into his room. I could not tell the time of day I went in there, I do not exactly recall that, but I went in his room and said to Mr. Neely that I had come in to inspect his accounts. He said, "We are getting everything ready; I have my stock all counted up here, and will be ready for you in a few minutes." I think I came out after I said this and got Mr. Neal, and, I think, Mr. Hamlin, and asked him to go in in order to count the cash—the centens and other money—and I went back in and commenced counting the stock. We first counted up the money-order business, and we found him a little bit in excess, and the question was asked him how he came to be in excess. He made this remark: "I was not certain how I stood, and put in a little money."

Q. Let us return to the question as to his prior knowledge of the inspection. You say when you went in to tell him that you intended to check him up that he said: "I am getting things ready, getting the stock into shape?"—A. Yes; which convinced me at the time that he had foreknowledge of the inspection.

Q. But you, yourself, had not, directly or indirectly, acquainted him with the purpose of making the inspection?—A. To the best of my knowledge that is true.

Q. Now, to refresh your recollection, I will say that Mr. Hamlin testifies that you entered Mr. Neely's room sometime in the forenoon, and that you sent him in two or three times to inquire if he was ready.—A. I have no recollection in the world of ever sending Mr. Hamlin in until I was ready. I have no recollection in the world of doing it. I think he is mistaken about that. I do not know why I should send Mr. Hamlin in. That is a thing I should do myself, rather than have anyone else do it.

Q. After you went in the first time, at an hour which you do not recall and when Mr. Neely said that he was not quite ready, but was getting ready, and you left the room, how long a time elapsed before you returned and entered upon the inspection?—A. I should say probably thirty minutes, more or less; I can not say, exactly. He was sorting out some postage stamps at the time.

Q. In order to locate how he gained the information of the intended inspection, whom had you told about it before you spoke to Neely?—A. I have no recollection of telling anyone but our own people in the bureau—that is, Mr. Neal, and I think I spoke to Mr. Hamlin. I have no recollection of telling anybody else. Of course the chief clerk of my bureau knew that I had a case.

Q. Had General Rathbone told him that he had ordered the inspection, that you know of?—A. I have no knowledge of that. I was told that General Rathbone had telegraphed Mr. Neely to return from the States.

Q. Describe the method and manner of your inspection of the bureau?—A. The first thing we did was to count his cash, and after we had counted his cash we took his credits, and then struck a balance. The auditor had furnished me a balance and I worked from that balance; did not work from anything else. I had every reason to believe at that time that the auditor's books were all right.

Q. Then the first thing you did was to count his money-order funds?—A. Yes.

Q. In what shape did you find his money-order funds; that is, what kind of money? Currency or coin?—A. Currency, coin, and some drafts and department of posts warrants.

Q. In what shape did you find the currency?—A. The currency was put up in packages of fives, tens, and twenties, separated in sums of one to five thousand dollars or more.

Q. Did you count all of those packages?—A. We counted all those packages, I think, except one package of one-dollar bills. We counted all the packages as they were marked and we opened the boxes of coin and counted each individual piece.

Q. What proportion of the currency was in the form of made-up packages?—A. I could not say what proportion. A very large proportion.

Q. Have you any idea as to how those packages came to be there or where they came from?—A. No.

Q. It is my understanding that they were remittances of money-order funds from postmasters?—A. Yes; they were remittances of money-order funds which had been turned over to him.

Q. The 1st of April the money-order remittances were turned over to him direct?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did these bank packages come from?—A. I do not know. I supposed they were made up in the bureau, because he did not deposit his money-order funds.

Q. Did you make inquiry as to where those packages came from?—A. I did not. I took it for granted that they were made up in that bureau.

Q. Then, if I understand your reply, it is that you counted all the currency, including the made-up packages, with the exception of one-dollar bills, although you are not sure of it?—A. I think there was one package of one-dollar bills that we concluded to accept as correct.

Q. About what was the amount of the package?—A. I think about $500. It may have been only $100.

Q. How much postal funds did you find on hand?—A. Not a dollar.

Q. How did that happen?—A. He had deposited that day with the island treasury all the postal funds on hand, and had a receipt from the treasurer of the island, which later on I inquired about in the auditor's office to see if they had given him credit, and found they had—some $8,000 it amounted to.

Q. Did you make any inquiry of Mr. Neely as to why he made his deposit just before the inspection occurred?—A. My recollection is that I said: "Mr. Neely, have you any postal funds?" He answered: "No; I deposited all the postal funds," and he produced his receipt to show he had deposited them.

Q. Please state what was the manner of your counting of postage stamps and stamped paper.—A. We counted all the broken packages by sheets. All of the unbroken packages, sealed and intact, we counted according to the marking.

Q. And the stamped envelopes and postal cards you counted by cases, I suppose?—A. We opened a part of them, but not all.

Q. In what manner did you ascertain and credit the outstanding stock issued to postmasters?—A. By taking a statement of the amounts that were charged against postmasters.

Q. Was that statement taken by you or furnished by the bureau of finance?—A. They had furnished a copy of that and I examined it as to amounts.

Q. The report of your inspection contains an itemized statement of outstanding stock?—A. Yes.

Q. And you verified the list as far as you could?—A. Yes.

Q. What examination did you make of his accounts?—A. I did not examine his accounts. I took the auditor's statement as the only basis for the investigation of the amount due the bureau of finance.

Q. What was the meaning, particularly of your commendation of his system of accounts?—A. We had checked him up, and I had confidence at that time that his accounts were right; and I do not know exactly how that came to be put there. It was just written in there, and when I read it over I signed it.

Q. It applied, then, according to your idea, to his financial solvency and not to his system of bookkeeping?—A. Yes; it was simply intended to apply to his solvency.

Q. Inspector Neal testifies that he drafted the report, and that in his original draft this concluding paragraph of praise did not appear, but that he added it upon your suggestion. He says that the idea was yours but the phraseology is his.—A. I do not recall that; I do not know whether that is correct or not; I have no recollection, one way or the other.

Q. There is no question at all in your mind but that Neely had been notified beforehand of the proposed inspection?—A. There is none in my mind, but I have no proof of it. My impression is that he had this balance, which he must have gotten from the auditor's office.

Q. You mean to say that Neely had a balance from the auditor; where he got it from you do not know?—A. He had the same balance exactly that I did.

Q. From all the circumstances of the case, as they came within your knowledge, from whom do you think he did obtain information that the inspection was about to be made?—A. My impression is that he got them from the auditor's office.

Q. You do not believe that General Rathbone, inadvertently or otherwise, had given him a tip?—A. I do not know. My impression is that he did not get them from General Rathbone but from the auditor's office.

Acting Chief Special Agent.

EXHIBIT 52.

Copy of statement of W. T. G. Neal concerning inspection of bureau of finance, April 23, 1900.

Q. Please state your name, age, and occupation.—A. W. T. G. Neal; 30 years; special agent department of posts.

Q. When and in what capacity did you enter the Cuban postal service?—A. January 4, 1899, as a military postal clerk.

Q. What duty were you assigned to and where?—A. First, on January 11, 1899, I was appointed acting postmaster at Tunas de Zaza; in March was made acting postmaster at Sancti Spiritus; on August 12, 1899, was appointed assistant postmaster at Cienfuegos; on December 23, 1899, was appointed special agent of the department of posts.

Q. You cooperated with Mr. Seybolt, acting chief special agent, in the inspection of the bureau of finance, department of posts, on April 23, 1900?—A. I did.

Q. State the circumstances which led up to that examination.—A. There had been some talk about the examination of the bureau of finance, and, as I understood it at first, Mr. Williams and I were to be given that assignment, and I also stated to the acting chief special agent that when this assignment was made I would like to participate, in order to become acquainted with that branch of a special agent's duty. I came in here on a Sunday, which was April 22, and the acting chief told me there was to be an examination on the next day and I was to assist in that examination.

Q. Who participated in the counting of the cash?—A. E. P. Hamlin and myself did the counting.

Q. I understand, then, that Mr. Hamlin and yourself did the actual counting of stock and cash; that Mr. Seybolt was present directing and supervising the work, and kept a tally on your counting.—A. Hamlin and I each had a sheet upon which we kept tally, and, as I remember, Mr. Seybolt had a sheet also.

Q. Who were present and participated in the counting on behalf of the bureau of finance?—A. Mr. Neely, Mr. Rich, and I think Mr. Murphy.

Q. What was the nature of your counting of stock—that is, postage stamps, stamped envelopes, and postal cards?—A. We counted by actual count everything that was loose and took the sealed packages at their marks.

Q. Did you pursue the same method as to cases of envelopes and postal cards?—A. Yes: I think we took those by their marks.

Q. That is to say, you did not break any sealed packages nor open any cases of postal cards and stamped envelopes, but accepted the department figures?—A. Yes.

Q. How did you count the money?—A. The money was all counted, under my impression, except the one and two dollar bills, which were taken at their marks, and, as I remember, there was some money from the bank that was taken at the bank count; how much I could not say. There were possibly one or two of these packages that were taken at the bank count.

Q. According to your recollection, what amount of postal funds (money) did you find on hand?—A. I do not think there was any. I think Neely stated that it had all been deposited the Saturday night previous.

Q. That is, your count of April 23 was on Monday?—A. Yes; and the deposits were made the previous Saturday.

Q. Did Mr. Neely seem to be prepared for the counting and checking up?—A. Yes; I think the appearances were that he knew an inspection was to be made.

Q. Upon what do you base your opinion?—A. Upon the condition of his office. Everything seemed to be in a state of preparedness.

Q. With whom had you had conversation about the inspection before it was made?—A. With the chief—no one else—and possibly Mr. Williams.

Q. It was understood between you that this inspection was to be made about this time?—A. No; there was no time set at all. I had no idea of the date until the Sunday previous, nor had I any reason to believe there was an examination ordered.

Q. Who compiled the figures of the count—that is, who made the extensions of the addition and computed the balances?—A. I made up the balances in connection with the others.

Q. Who prepared the report of the inspection?—A. The report of the inspection was my work.

Q. Including the last paragraph complimenting Mr. Neely on his accounts?—A. The whole thing.

Q. You discussed and agreed upon the substance and form of the report with Mr. Seybolt?—A. Mr. Seybolt came to me and asked me to make the report. I made it and submitted it to him. In the original draft of the report, the paragraph praising Mr. Neely's methods was omitted. Mr. Seybolt suggested that we praise the methods of his office.

Q. That is, in the original, there were no sentiments in praise of Mr. Neely?—A. No; the words were my own, but the idea was the chief's.

Q. What time in the day did you begin the inspection?—A. Between 11 and 12 in the morning.

Q. About what time was it concluded?—A. Between 5 and 6 in the evening.

Q. During that time you were kept continuously at work?—A. Yes; without intermission.

Q. How did you ascertain the auditor's balance?—A. It was furnished the chief by the director-general.

Q. Was it handed to Mr. Seybolt by General Rathbone?—A. I saw the balance, accompanied by a letter signed by the director-general of posts; how, whether it was handed personally or not, I do not know.

Q. Did both accounts exactly balance?—A. No; the money-order account did not; there was a little surplus in the money-order account.

Q. State how much the surplus was.—A. As I recall, there was a surplus of 16 Louis, and Mr. Rich, in offering an explanation of this, stated that a postmaster's remittance had been emptied in there, giving me the impression at the time without being counted, and I asked him to what postmaster these 16 Louis belonged. Then the chief stated that Neely told him that he had made up a count that morning, and, not knowing how he stood, put some extra money in the vault.

Q. Mr. Neal, sometime prior to this inspection of the bureau of finance, you participated in an inspection of the Habana post-office, did you not? Who assisted you in that inspection?—A. The Habana post-office was inspected, I think, twice within a week, and I participated in both, although my name does not show in the second one.

Q. About what was the date of the first examination?—A. Along about the first Saturday in April.

Q. Who were associated with you in the first inspection, where you appeared of record?—A. Mr. Seybolt.

Q. What did you find on that inspection?—A. We found everything all right.

Q. Did both accounts balance?—A. I think the inspection only included the money-order division of the Habana post-office. However, everything balanced.

Q. Did you find a duebill from the postmaster at that time?—A. No; I knew nothing of a duebill; did not know it was there until sometime after that.

Q. Why was the second inspection made so soon afterwards?—A. At the request of Chief Seybolt.

Q. By whom was the inspection made?—A. By Messrs. Seybolt, Williams, Welch, and myself, but I did not appear of record.

Q. What was found at that time?—A. That was the time the duebill was found.

Q. Was any intimation given the postmaster that it was likely to occur?—A. Not to my knowledge. I heard indirectly that the postmaster knew of the inspection, but in what manner he learned this I do not know. I made no mention of the inspection whatever. I did not say a word to Mr. Sheridan about it.

Q. I believe that you and Mr. Seybolt lodged together?—A. Yes; with Mr. Welch also.

SIR: I will thank you for a statement of the money-order and postal account of the bureau of finance of this department, as appears of record in your office on the 16th instant, which, as I understand, is the date upon which the last statement of money-order funds was rendered by the bureau of finance.

Very respectfully,

E. G. RATHBONE,
Director-General.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, April 23, 1900.

ACTING CHIEF SPECIAL AGENT, Present.

SIR: I hand you herewith the auditor's statement of the money-order and postal accounts of the bureau of finance up to the 16th instant, as appears of record in his office, which was furnished at my request. You are directed, at your earliest convenience, to make an examination of the affairs of the bureau of finance, which should show on postal account $244,065.07 in cash, stamps, and stamped paper, and credits to postmasters, which latter his books should show.

In the money-order account there should be $119,930.97 on hand or accounted for.

Very respectfully,

E. G. RATHBONE,
Director-General.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE AUDITOR FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF POSTS,
Habana, April 24, 1900.

The honorable the DIRECTOR-GENERAL.

SIR: In accordance with a request from the chief special agent for information as to the balance due from the bureau of finance to the department of posts on money-order and postal account, I have the honor to inform you that the balance up to this date is as follows:

On money-order account	$144,997.05
On postal account	235,843.31
	380,840.36

Very respectfully,

A. C. REYNOLDS,
Acting Auditor for the Department of Posts.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE AUDITOR
FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF POSTS,
Habana, April 21, 1900.

The honorable the DIRECTOR-GENERAL.

SIR: Complying with the request contained in your communication of the 19th instant to be furnished with a statement of the money-order and postal accounts of the bureau of finance to the 16th instant, as appears of record in this office, I have the honor to state that on that date the balance due from the bureau of finance was:

On money-order account	$119,930.97
On postal account	244,065.07

Acting Auditor for the Department of Posts.

[Subject: Examination of money-order and postal funds, bureau of finance. Seybolt and Neal, special agents. Case No. 2498 "C."]

APRIL 23D, 1900.

Hon. E. G. RATHBONE,
Director-General, Habana, Cuba.

SIR: In compliance with your letter of instructions of April 23d, 1900, we have made a careful examination of the affairs of the bureau of finance, relative to which we have the honor to submit the following report:

The auditor's statement of April 16, 1900, charged to this bureau on postal account	$244,065.07
To the above should be added amount of box-rent funds deposited by postmasters of island from March 1st to April 21, 1900	1,367.68
Making a total debit of	245,432.75

Auditor's statement to close of business, April 14th, 1900, shows a balance due by this bureau on money-order account	$119,930.97
To the above sum should be added amount deposited by postmasters since date of auditor's balance	25,066.08
Making a total debit of	144,997.05

Credits to this amount were on hand, summaries and specified lists of which are herein enclosed.

The manner in which these accounts, stamp supplies, and funds are handled reflect credit upon the chief of bureau of finance, Mr. Charles F. W. Neely, and his assistants. While the examination of accounts was made on the 23d, no business had been done since end of week of April 21, 1900.

Your careful attention is invited to exhibits accompanying this report.

Very respectfully,

GEO. L. SEYBOLT,
Acting Chief Special Agent.
WM. T. G. NEAL,
Special Agent.

By accounts for stamps furnished postmasters	30,349.72
By loss on copper coin received at par	4,345.00
By cash on hand	3,022.82
Total credit	591,690.48

The items of debit agree exactly with the records of the bureau of postal accounts, except that the item of $1,541.48 for box-rent collections is not charged against the bureau of finance in the records of the bureau of postal accounts.

We recommend that a blank form be prepared and sent to each postmaster, and that he be required to report thereon monthly, at the end of each month, the amount of his box-rent collections for that month, and inclose with his remittance of the amount of such collection to the bureau of finance one copy of such report, and in same mail send a copy of such report to the bureau of postal accounts, and that the latter bureau charge the amount to the bureau of finance.

In the items of credit given the bureau of finance, the item of accounts of postmasters for stamps furnished, $30,349.72, is accredited from the records of that bureau, which holds the receipts of the postmasters for a larger sum; but the accounts of postmasters have been credited from time to time with remittances, so that we believe the accounts are in the main correct. As the bureau of postal accounts does not keep records of accounts with postmasters there seems to be no absolute or accurate check against the bureau of finance in the matter of his accounts with postmasters, but as no postmaster has yet complained of not receiving proper credit, we feel sure that the accounts are accurate.

We recommend that blank forms of quarterly or monthly reports be supplied to postmasters, and that they be required to report the exact state of their accounts, monthly or quarterly, including stamps on hand at previous report, stamps received since, stamps sold (during month or quarter), amount of collections of box rents, newspaper and periodical postage, and from miscellaneous sources, and credit themselves with amount of remittances on postal fund account. These reports, being sent to the bureau of postal accounts, will serve as a check upon the accuracy of the accounts of the chief of the bureau of finance.

We recommend that this case be closed.

Very respectfully,

WM. T. SULLIVAN,
LAWRENCE LETHERMAN,
Special Agents.

Copy of statement of George W. Marshall concerning deposit of postal funds in answer to interrogatories propounded by J. L. Bristow.

Q. Mr. Marshall, you stated to me the other day that in last September or October, when Mr. Neely was in the States, you were making deposits as acting chief.—A. No; Mr. Millikin was acting chief.

Q. Then you were handling the deposits of the bureau of finance, and you brought in a deposit slip one day for General Rathbone to sign, and he asked you if the amount contained in the deposit slip was all of the funds you had on hand and that you replied that it was not. Will you please state just what conversation you had at that time with General Rathbone?—A. It was at the end of the month, I think either September or October, that I presented a statement to General Rathbone showing the amount of the deposits for that month. This statement was one that we had to make out monthly and forward to the treasurer of the island. General Rathbone asked me upon receiving this statement from me if that represented the total postal account receipts for that month, or if that was all we had on hand. I replied, "No, sir;" that we had more, but what amount I could not state exactly then, but later in the day—I believe it was the same day—I reported to him that we had about $8,000 more of postal funds in the vault than had been deposited.

Q. Did you give him any reason why you had not deposited that $8,000?—A. I believe he asked me why I had not deposited it all, and I believe I replied that I was following the instructions of Mr. Neely in making the total deposits for the month.

Q. Did Neely ask you not to deposit the full amount received?—A. He gave me the amount to deposit for the month——

Q. And you were not expected to deposit any more than the amount he gave you?—A. No, sir; that left postal funds in the vault of about $8,000.

Q. What did General Rathbone say about this statement of yours?—A. I do not remember that he made any specific remark; only to take notice of what I said to him.

Q. Was the matter ever brought up between you after that?

Mr. MARSHALL. General Rathbone and myself?

General BRISTOW. Yes.

A. I think not.

Q. Did you speak to Mr. Neely about it when he came back?—A. I do not remember just when it was that I spoke to Neely or he to me. It may have been before he went away and when he was giving me instructions about the monthly deposits. We deposited on the 10th, 20th, and 30th of the month. I am not sure but that it was about when we started to make our deposits with the treasurer of the island that he explained to me that it was the policy or desire of the administration to show——

Q. What do you mean by the "administration?"—A. I did not understand whether he meant the administration in Cuba or the administration in Washington.

Q. He used the term "administration," did he?—A. Yes.

Q. Well, go ahead.—A. He stated that it was the policy of the administration to show a gradual increase in postal receipts under American rule.

Q. Did you state to General Rathbone the reasons why Neely had asked you not to deposit more than the amount specified?—A. I think not.

Q. Did he ask you what reasons Neely ever had for not depositing more than the amount specified?—A. I do not know but what he did at the time that I spoke to him about the $8,000 being left over and it was perhaps after that that I spoke to Mr. Neely that brought out this reply.

Q. Then did you ever hear any more about it from General Rathbone or Neely?—A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know whether General Rathbone ever spoke to Neely about it or not?—A. I do not.

General BRISTOW. That is all, Mr. Marshall.

(Signed) GEO. W. MARSHALL.

EXHIBIT 56.

Copy of statement of H. H. Williams, special agent, concerning receipts of Matanzas post-office, in answer to interrogatories by J. L. Bristow.

HABANA, June 21, 1900.

Q. You stated the other day, Mr. Williams, that you spoke to General Rathbone about the receipts of the Matanzas office being more than were credited upon Neely's books—more than the postmaster was given credit for upon Neely's books. What conversation did you have in regard to it, and where was it?—A. The conversation took place at Cardenas about the middle of January, 1900. I had started on a trip to encircle the island to check up postmasters and select assistant postmasters. At Caibarien I received a dispatch from Acting Chief Special Agent Seybolt asking me to meet the director-general at Cardenas the next morning. I went to Cardenas. In starting out to go to the arger of the offices, he had brought a memoranda along of receipts of the several offices during the past year. Wilmot, I think, had the memoranda in his possession. It was in regard to several offices. I think Matanzas, Cardenas, Cienfuegos, and Santiago. He showed me the figures, and I said, "General, these figures are not right. I know just about what the figures are for the year." If I remember right, the figures he had, he said, were taken from Neely's ledger, showing the receipts of Matanzas to be between $13,000 and $14,000. I knew these figures were wrong, and called his special attention to that matter. He made a memorandum across the slip, "Are these figures correct?" and handed that to Wilmot.

Q. Was ever anything else said between you and General Rathbone about it?—A. No; I never spoke to him about it afterwards. Since this scandal has come up here in the department of posts, I spoke to Mr. Bristow, the chief clerk, about it. He told me he thought they were verified after General Rathbone came back, by communicating with the postmaster at Matanzas. He did not know what the result was.

Q. You do not know whether they were ever verified or not?—A. No, sir. Mr. McEvoy informed me that he had received a letter or communication of some kind asking the receipts of his office for 1899. At that time I told Mr. McEvoy that the receipts of his office had been reported at $13,000. I wrote him about it at the time, if I remember right.

Mr. FOSNES. What were the receipts of Matanzas, approximately?—A. About $19,000, I think.

EXHIBIT 57.

Copy of statement of H. S. McEvoy, postmaster at Matanzas, and copy of correspondence concerning receipts of Matanzas post-office, in answer to interrogatories by J. L. Bristow.

HABANA, June 21, 1900.

Q. Have you been the postmaster at Matanzas for some time?—A. Since the 1st of January of this year.

Q. Were you employed in that office before then?—A. Since the March before.

Q. Did you ever have any communication with General Rathbone as to the receipts of the Matanzas office for 1899?—A. I did; yes.

Q. When?—A. Well, I do not remember; but I have a copy of the report in my letter book at Matanzas that I made to the director; I made it at his request.

Q. Verbal or written request?—A. I think it was written. If it was written, I am sure that I must have the letter.

Q. Will you send us a copy of the correspondence?—A. I will; yes.

Q. Did you ever have any conversation with General Rathbone in regard to it?—A. Well, General Rathbone visited Matanzas, I think, in February; I am not sure, but it was either late in January or perhaps early in February. I spoke to him concerning the raising of my salary, and he then told me that he would see about it, and he was going to tell me what the revenues of my office were for the year that had passed, but he had forgotten his statistics when he left Habana; and I think I told him shortly after what they were, or what I thought they were, and shortly after that he wrote to tell me to furnish them. At least, I think he wrote. If he did, I must have his letter.

Q. Did you ever have any reason to believe that you were not getting full credit for the amount of money remitted here?—A. No, sir.

Q. Nothing ever occurred that indicated that you were not?—A. No, sir. We got receipts for all we remitted.

Q. That is, you got receipts for all that was remitted by you?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. You do not know what credit was made in Neely's books, nor the books of the department?—A. No, sir.

Q. Whether the full amount that you remitted was entered or not?—A. I do not know.

DEPARTMENT OF POSTS OF CUBA,
POST-OFFICE AT MATANZAS,
Province Matanzas, June 22, 1900.

ACTING DIRECTOR-GENERAL OF POSTS,
Habana, Cuba.

SIR: In compliance with your request, I hereby inclose a copy of a letter from the director-general of posts, in which I am requested to make a report on the revenues of this office for the year 1899. I also inclose a copy of the report made.

Very respectfully,

H. S. McEVOY,
Acting Postmaster.

DEPARTMENT OF POSTS OF CUBA,
POST-OFFICE AT MATANZAS,
Province Matanzas, February 11, 1900.

DIRECTOR-GENERAL OF POSTS.

SIR: I report from the records of this office the revenues from all sources for the calendar year ending December 31, 1899, to be as follows:

Stamps sold from February 7 to December 31, 1899	$17,264.45
Fees from 6,525 domestic and international money orders	876.51
Rent from lock boxes	205.00
Total	18,345.96

The above report is taken from the complete records made by Mr. Sheridan, the former acting postmaster. I must also state that I have no record of stamp sales for the month of January, 1899, which, I believe, would considerably augment the above total.

Respectfully,

H. S. McEVOY,
Acting Postmaster.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL,
Habana, February 6, 1900.

Mr. H. S. McEVOY,
Acting Postmaster, Matanzas, Cuba.

SIR: At your earliest convenience you will please send a statement to the department giving the receipts of your office from all sources for the calendar year of 1899. This is information which I desire to use at an early day, and will be glad if you will give it attention at once.

Very respectfully,

E. G. RATHBONE,
Director-General.

EXHIBIT 58.

Copy of statement of P. H. Bristow, chief clerk department of posts, concerning receipts of Matanzas post-office, in answer to interrogatories propounded by J. L. Bristow.

Q. Mr. Bristow, do you know anything about the controversy that seemed to exist between the Matanzas post-office and the department here in regard to the gross receipts of the Matanzas office being less, as shown by the records of the department of posts, than as shown by the records of the postmaster at Matanzas?—A. I remember only hearing that when General Rathbone was at Matanzas the question was raised there on account of some comparative statements that had been made with that office and some others, and the question was raised by Special Agent Williams that he believed the receipts at Matanzas ought to show more.

Q. How came you to know of it?—A. My recollection is that some one spoke of it after General Rathbone and others returned from that trip. Not in any official way, but just incidentally.

Q. You do not know the result of the incident or controversy?—A. Nothing whatever.

O

STATEMENT OF E. P. THOMPSON, POSTMASTER AT HABANA, REPLYING TO CHARGES MADE BY J. L. BRISTOW.

DEPARTMENT OF POSTS OF CUBA,
December 3, 1900.

SIR: I respectfully invite your attention to the report of Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Bristow upon the frauds and embezzlements of the Cuban postal officials, page 29, which refers to myself. Ignoring the misstatements and misrepresentations and the strained argument to implicate me criminally, the case against me is covered in the first four lines. I refer you to section 4030 of the Revised Statutes of the United States to show you that the purchase or issue of money orders on credit is not a crime; it is not embezzlement; it is not dishonest.

Mr. Bristow claims that I caused to be issued in my own behalf four money orders of $100 each. This statement is not in accordance with the record. As a matter of fact, I purchased nine money orders from the money-order clerk, who was an appointee of the director-general of posts, and was under bond to that official and practically independent of myself, notwithstanding the business was transacted in my name. He was nominally a clerk under me. I requested him to credit me with a balance of $400, having paid in cash the difference to make up the aggregate of the nine money orders. They were for different amounts, and no four of them were for $100 each.

The clerk, who reported this matter in an underhanded way to a special agent of the department of posts, who was his personal friend, had accepted my duebill as cash, and had so carried and reported it for four months. It was he who held up a remittance from an office in the island that the agents, when inspecting my money-order account, should not find the duebill. As a proof of this I call your attention to the statement of Chief Special Agent George L. Seybolt, Exhibit 51 of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General's report, page 273. This entire matter was reported to the director-general of posts and to the Postmaster-General at Washington as a shortage which had been made good, and, as is customary in such matters in the United States, this report was accepted as a settlement in full and no suspicion of a crime or an embezzlement or a dishonest act was entertained.

In considering the report of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General by your committee, I desire that this statement be made a part of your record, as it is the first opportunity I have had to make a personal statement. I have never seen Mr. Bristow, nor has he ever seen me, and I confess that I am at a loss to understand the apparently vicious and uncalled-for attack upon me.

The Habana post-office was organized under the most trying and difficult circumstances, and irregularities were bound to occur. The organization and conduct of this office was such that Mr. Bristow could find no reason for a change, either in its organization or the number of employees required to conduct it. I feel that for a technical mistake on my part I have been most outrageously treated. I have served the Government of the United States in the postal service almost continuously since 1866, having entered the service at the close of the war of the rebellion, in which I served as a private soldier.

The position as postmaster of Habana was tendered me by the Postmaster-General without any solicitation or application on my part. I gave to the service my best efforts, and am proud of the results accomplished in the short time that I was postmaster of Habana.

Very respectfully,

E. P. THOMPSON,
Late Postmaster of Habana.

Hon. O. H. PLATT,
Chairman Senate Committee on Relations with Cuba,
United States Senate, Washington, D. C.
