General Order
No 15

¶¶ The practice which prevails to some extent of men publicly urinating in front of their tents is so offensive to a sense of propriety that it is hoped by this calling the attention of those guilty of such practice to the act it will be stopped.

¶¶¶ A few who evade the obligations of duty should not influence others to do the same, at this time when something more than a mere negative contentment with regulations & orders is required. — a spirit to learn duty and execute it strictly & independently should actuate all.
