

A FAITHFUL NEGRO.—During their visit to Warren county, the Federals halted a carriage on the road and attempted to force the negro driver to shoot his master. Presenting a musket at his head they told him they would blow his brains out unless he killed his owner.—Sambo with his eyes as big as saucers, stammered out "can't do it, massa I raised ole massa from a leetle boy. Kill me but don't shoot ole massa." The Yankees after taking out the horse, cutting up the harness, and some homespun, took their departure, leaving the carriage in the road.
