Mup of the Battle Ground of Greenbrier-River.

We have been favored with a very interesting and large pictorial Map of the Battle Ground of Greenbrier liver, the scene of one of our glori-

Greenbrier liver, the scene of one of our glorious victories in Western Virginia, achieved, under the auspices of the gallant Gen. Henry R. Jackson of Georgia. It has come to us through Lieut. Jos. Palmer, First Lieutenant of Capt. Houser's Company, attached to the First Georgia Regiment, who bore a brave part in the victorious contlict.

Lieut, Palmer is a native of the Parish of St.

Lieut, Palmer is a mative of the Parish of St. John's, Berkley, in this State, but became a planter, and practising physician, near Perry, Houston County, Georgia. At an early period of the war he volunteered in the Confederate service, and was in the disastrous battle of Rich Mountain, from which (won by greatly superi or numbers) McGlellan derives his searcely or numbers.) McOldlan derives his searcely merited laurels, and, in the scatterel retreat or dispersion of this small body of troops, he encountered many of the hardshape, suffered by both officers and solders on that unfortunate occasion. His affidhal slaw Philip, was captured by the enemy, and tendered the option of treedom with the Vinkesp or a return to slavery and his master's service. The tope hearted and attached fellow embrased with a large rate of the property of home, along with a number of whith presences, he actually returned to the camp of role of honor, along with a humber of whith prisoners, he actually returned to the camp of his master, and was subsequently sent back to Georgia quite sick with typholid fever, of which, we believe, he has recovered.

The Map is suspended at our office for inspection.—Charleston Courier.
