

One of Gen. Walker's Barbarities.

Those who are disposed to sympathize with the mock hero whose name we have just written, are invited to a perusal of the following facts, which we condense from a letter written by the Panama correspondent of the New York Times: On the 30th of April, while Gen. Walker, without the knowledge of his men, was negotiating his capitulation, knowing that he was to surrender the next day, one of his soldiers, contrary to the general order, went outside of his lines. He shortly after returned, having only gone out to get a bottle of aguadien-to. Walker called him up, when he acknowledged his fault, and prayed for forgiveness. "If you have any message to send to your friends," said Walker, in his mild, but sarcastic way, "you had better prepare it, for at sundown you die."—Punctual at sunset a platoon of soldiers was drawn up for the execution, and just as the order was given to fire, the soldier appealed to his comrades: "Boys, you would'nt shoot a fellow-soldier for such a thing as that, would you?" They raised their rifles and fired over his head. The poor fellow broke and ran, when he was brought to his knees by a pistol shot fired by Lieut. Col. Rodgers. Stepping up to him while in this position, Rodgers placed his revolver at the head of the crippled soldier and deliberately blew out his brains! This Lieut. Col. Rodgers is none other than William Kissane, the notorious Martha Washington Conspirator, Chemical Bank forger, counterfeiter and swindler. For a soldier to die by his hands we had almost said was infamous.
