

The Worth Legion.

NEW-YORK, Friday, May 4, 1855.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

Believing that your readers feel some interest in the "Worth Legion," and their proceedings, I beg leave to state that the organization is now completed, both in officers and men, and we have taken in the Stars and Stripes that designated our recruiting station. We are now ready for any contingencies that may occur in our foreign relations, and hope the day is not far distant, when, on the field, and in presence of the insulters of our flag, we may prove our attachment to liberal principles—wherever they are found or desired, and our expressed willingness to vindicate our country's honor.

With great respect, I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant,

J. EGBERT FARNUM,
Adjutant Worth Legion.
