

The Latest From Kansas.

The pretended organization of the Territorial Militia by Gov. Geary, is only the old story of Gov. Stanton calling the vagabonds to his aid. Of the five hundred who have been added to the regular U. S. forces, probably not a dozen were citizens of the Territory, but the loose vagabonds from South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Missouri, who had been active in creating disturbances in the Territory. Col. Titus, formerly a filibuster in Nicaragua, and whose chief business in Kansas has been to keep up a predatory war upon the people, has been placed at the head of a portion of this so-called militia by Gov. Geary, and the prisoners recently captured are under his charge, subject to all sorts of ruffian insults and indignities.

The character of this Col. Titus is pretty well illustrated by the fact of his swearing positively to the ownership of one of the horses taken from the hundred prisoners, when it was well known to several persons that the horse was purchased only a few weeks since in Iowa by an emigrant, and Titus had never seen the animal until he and his robber companions made a division of the spoils by false swearing.

Judge Smith, one of the prisoners charged with constructive treason, who were released a few weeks since on bail, came down on the Polar Star, on his way to Pennsylvania, where he will take the stamp for Fremont. He formerly resided in Butler County, where, and in the neighboring counties, he will no doubt do good service in overthrowing the party at whose hands the people of Kansas have so severely suffered. He is said to be a very effective speaker.

We learn that some five or six hundred Free State settlers have left the Territory within the last few weeks, and others are leaving from day to day, their means of living being exhausted by the plunder and destruction of their uncrops, and the impossibility of attending to business while the war was in progress. The entire property of many of them has been swept away—their cattle and horses have been stolen, their growing crops trampled down, and their dwellings burned. But they are not disheartened.—Nearly all of those who have left and are leaving mean to return to their business and their claims. The general feeling among the settlers is, that if Buchanan is elected, Kansas is doomed to be a slave State, while if Fremont is elected it is equally sure to be a Free State, for then the great majority of the people is in favor of making it so will be protected in the exercise of their rights as American citizens. This is doubtless a correct view of the case.
