

277 The New Albany (Ind.) Ledger says the wife of Gen. James H. Lane, the persecuted hero and martyr of abolitionism, obtained a divorce from her husband at the late term of the Dearborn Circuit Court, on the ground of abandonment, desertion, and other legal causes. She avers that he sent her home from Kansas among strangers, unprovided for, unprotected, and without money to pay her travelling expense. She is the mother of several of his children, and has been for some time supporting herself by keeping a boarding-house.
