
LOWELL MUSEUM. The Lowell city fathers have for some time past refused licenses for theatrical performances, but have at last receded so far as to grant Mr. J. Hall Robinson leave to perform a novel drama founded upon the well-known incidents in the life of Solomon Northup, who was kidnapped and carried into slavery some years ago. The performance gives great satisfaction, and we trust the people of Lowell will give the "moral drama" a hearty support.
