Mr. Chiltons
Army Department
Washington. 10 July 1869

I have the honor to submit herewith for your removal two despatches, Nos 11 and 12, dated the 29th Decr, from Rear Admiral H. K. Hall, Commanding the U.S. the Atlantic Squadron, relative to affairs in Cuba.

Please return the despatches to this Department after reading yourself of their contents.

Very respectfully
Chilton

Wm. L. Galt

Very truly
yours

Wm. L. Galt

Secretary of State.

Admiral Hoff to Mr. Telle.

North Atlantic Squadron,
U.S. Flagship "Controcook" (2^d Rate.)
Havana, 29th January 1869.

Sir,

I had the honor to inform the Department by telegraph on the 25th inst., of the late excitement in Havana sending my despatch by the steamer "Beaufort" to Key West, for the reason that all telegraph communication is subject to the inspection of the Captain General, who appoints a Censor to control this business.

The difficulties referred to
Hon. Gideon Welles,
Secretary of the Navy,
Washington, D.C.

red to - in my despatch - commenced on Friday evening (the 22nd) in the Villa Nueva Theatre, upon which occasion the Cuban and Spanish elements among the audience discharged revolvers - and as the people were hastily leaving the place - a battalion of Spanish Volunteers - drawn up in front of the entrance deliberately fired a succession of volleys killing, and wounding a number of Spaniards and Cubans - including two (2) women - also endangering the lives of the foreigners who happened to be present.

Saturday, the city was extremely quiet, but on Sunday evening at eight o'clock two of the officers of this vessel in riding down to the landing passed the Campo Marte - a large open place - used as a parade ground, and upon the opposite side, these gentlemen observed a force of about two hundred Volunteers drawn up in line deliberately firing into a café - also upon the house of a wealthy Cuban - Mr. Aldama - well known in the United States - and highly respected, his furniture - pictures and other handsome as well as valuable works of art were destroyed - it is said - to the amount of forty thousand ($ 40,000) dollars.

Later in the evening the Louvre, a celebrated café, the resort of citizens of all nationalities was attacked by the Volunteers in the same manner who purposely fired into the billiard saloon and café, where quiet and orderly people were playing cards and otherwise amusing themselves.

It is asserted by the friends of the Volunteers, as an excuse for their bloody work, that same one, supposed to be a Cuban, fired pistol shots from the balcony of the Savire - but this is denied by many - among them, three of the Officers of the Flagship who were in the place at the time, and state that they heard no shots fired until the general attack from the street.

Among the killed were two (2) Germans, one of them a Clerk in the Consulate of the North German Union, an Englishman, and an American citizen (Mr. Cohnor.)

In consequence of the above disorderly state of affairs I have issued an order requiring all officers to be on board their ships at sunset, and when ashore in day time to be in uniform. The most respectable Spanish residents and foreign merchants, through their Consuls, have requested General Dulce to disarm these men, or to send for Regular troops to take their places, as the only mode of preserving the peace. The City is now guarded by the Marines and Sailors of the Spanish frigates "Gerona" and

"Lealtad," who keep matters quiet and the volunteers in check, the Captain General having ordered the most disorderly of the latter to their quarters and as a consequence of this order, the disgraced soldiers have threatened his life and accuse him of treason to Spain and a partiality to the Cubans - on account of his wife who was born upon the Island.

I visited the Acting Council General to confer with him on the subject of making a joint or separate protest on this transaction, also others of an insulting nature which had been committed against our citizens. The Consul read me a letter he had already forwarded to the Captain-General, covering all the ground of complaint, and requesting the body of Mr. Cohnor to be given over to his friends, it being then in possession of the police which has since been promptly exemplified with.

A small American Schooner called the "Arctes" from seventy to ninety tons was recently captured by a Spanish gunboat under suspicious circumstances, being out of her course, bound to Lisal, and found at anchor in one of the windward ports of this Island. The Captain represented that he had gone in there to encounter a vessel which he noticed on shore.

The matter was represented by the Consul, and she was promptly released leaving here a protest for ($2000⁰⁰) two thousand dollars & damages.

I have exchanged visits, salutes, &c. with the new Spanish Admiral; my interviews with him as well as with the other authorities have been uniformly pleasant and agreeable.

Very Respectfully
Your obed. Servant

Henry K. Herff.
R. Admiral
Comdg. N. A. Span.
