

The Revolution—Fight Between Insurgents and Spanish Troops—Captain General Dulce's Proclamations.

NEW YORK, January 10 —The Herald publishes the following special

HAVANA, January 7 —General Cespedes, Provisional President of the Republican Government, and Señor Aguilera have proclaimed emancipation laws. They complain that the people of the western department have not heeded the call of the revolution, and that the junta at Havana furnish no money.

It is reported that Col. Benegon failed to occupy Holguen, and has been compelled to return with his wounded to Gicara. General Quesada is said to have landed from Nassau with eighty men and three thousand rifles.

Puerto Principe is still surrounded by small bands of insurgents. In the city prostration and gloom prevail. The shops are closed, and many arrests have taken place.

On the 18th instant a fight occurred at Camalidal Yegua, between 700 insurgents and 500 Spanish troops. The Spaniards were defeated with heavy loss.

HAVANA, January 9 —The Captain General has promulgated a proclamation abolishing courts martial for the trial of civil cases.

The report is fully confirmed that the revolutionists have decreed the abolition of slavery within their lines. The Spaniards here consider it a desperate measure, and an indication of the growing weakness of the rebel cause.

The commanders of some flying columns of Spanish troops report that the strength of the revolution is gradually decreasing, but well informed Cubans assert the contrary, and report that the revolutionary forces are constantly receiving reinforcements from within and without the island.

The proclamation of the liberty of the press has gone into full effect.

The leaders of the Cuban party declare that they have the greatest confidence in General Dulce as an honorable gentleman, but say they cannot place any reliance on the measures he introduces, for another revolution may take place at any moment in Spain, which might change the whole aspect of affairs, and perhaps annul all the acts of the Captain General.

It is anticipated that the recent liberal proclamations will cause a material change in the insurrectionary districts as soon as they become known there.

HAVANA, January 10 —El Diario, the organ of the slave traders and defenders of the corrupt bureaucracy, up to the present date, has published nothing of the new order of things, and sensible and moderate Spaniards are disgusted with its conduct.

The Prensa, an ultra Spanish paper, and the reputed organ of the Jesuits continues to publish bombastic articles, full of threats against the revolutionists. This journal is considered an open enemy by the Cuban party.

Several new Liberal journals have made their appearance. At the Tacón Theatre last night the revolutionary hymn of Spain was sung, amid indescribable enthusiasm.

Two battalions of troops have left for Neuvas.
