

THE CUBAN EXPEDITION.

The Herald publishes the following account of the sailing of the Cuban expedition under Col. Ryan, who escaped from the officers:

The mysterious movements of the fillibusters during last week between New York and New Jersey were for the purpose of mystifying the authorities and Spanish spies, and to test the reliability of the men. The men left their various headquarters at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon in squads carrying carpet-bags. By half-past six o'clock scarcely a man remained at their various headquarters.

The men when approaching the tugs said they were going to the fishing banks. The tugs transferred the men to a steamer which proceeded to sea with 800 men on board, organized under the name of the first New York regiment. Among the officers aboard were Col. Ryan, Captain Peters, Gen Spear, the Pennan cavalryman, Capt Anderson, of Richmond, Va., and Dr. G. V. Dorset, also of Richmond, who goes out as medical director. No arms or ammunition, except a few side arms and revolvers, and a few Remington rifles were aboard. Large quantities of arms and ammunition dispatched previously by steamer, understood to be the Quaker City, is supposed to be awaiting the expedition at sea.

The volunteers take with them an elegant flag inscribed "First New York Regiment Cuban Volunteers."

The Herald also says - Col Ryan, after escaping Wednesday, went to Brooklyn, where he was concealed in the house of a friend until Thursday night, when he proceeded, disguised as an express driver, to another place, and remained in a house within two blocks of Ludlow Street Prison until 9 o'clock Saturday night.

New York, June 28 — The First New York Regiment of Cuban volunteers, numbering 800, commanded by Col Ryan, put to sea Saturday on the Quaker City, which was awaiting them outside the narrows, with stores.

New York, June 27 — Adverting to the Cuban expedition, the Times states that the Quaker City was waiting for the expedition outside the Narrows, where the men were to be transferred to her. Gen. Goucuria is commander-in-chief, but Col Ryan leads the volunteers. A number of officers of the late United States volunteers are in the ranks, to be appointed to positions on arrival. The Quaker City has on board 5,000 Remington rifles, two batteries of artillery and equipments for a brigade of cavalry, with an abundance of ammunition.

New York, June 27. — One of the fifteen gunboats building here for the Spanish navy was launched yesterday and towed to the foot of Vesey street, to receive her machinery. The contract requires the completion of the entire number by the 1st of August.
