

ANNIVERSARY OF THE CUBAN REPUBLIC.—The proclamation of the republic of Cuba was issued by Cespedes one year ago yesterday, and the Cuban Junta in this city have decided to commemorate the anniversary by a grand civic display. They have engaged the Cooper Institute and will this evening entertain the friends of the Cuban cause. The meeting is called for seven o'clock, and, as many leading citizens, orators and officials have signified their intention to be present, there will, no doubt, be given an expression of public opinion in regard to struggling Cuba so emphatic as should suggest to the national government the true line of policy it should pursue on the subject as the representative of the will of the people.