

Cuba.

The mail news from Cuba, published in another column, is up to the 30th ult. Though the Havana papers are loud in their talk that order and peace are fast being established events will not justify the position they have taken. The Spanish journals have little, however, to say about the San Jose fight. The engagement, it will be remembered, took place at San Jose, on the line of railroad between Nuevitas and Principe. The fight continued for over an hour, when a flag of truce was hoisted by the insurgents, which was answered in a similar manner by those in the garrison. A conference between the officers then took place, and during the conversation the men in the garrison fired on the party and killed two of the Cubans. This act, treacherous as it was, is applauded by the Havana journals. A large expedition is fitting out in New Orleans for Cuba;
