Reported Defeat of the Insurgents at Cienfuegos—General Quesada Said to Have Been Outwitted—Valmaseda Marching on Puerto Principe—Miscellaneous Items.

HAVANA, March 1, 1869.

General Puello, with his command, has arrived at Santo Espritu from Cienfuegos.

The Diario reports an engagement between the troops and insurgents at the town of Cienfuegos, in which the troops were victorious. The same paper states that 300 rebels have surrendered at Villa Clara.

It seems that General Lesca is advancing into the interior without meeting with much opposition. The rebels expected that he would march by the Sierra de Cubitas or take the road to Paredes, where they had erected entrenchments and were ready to oppose his progress; but Lesca unexpectedly took another route and outwitted the rebel General Quesada.

The Diario asserts that the revolutionary General Napoleon Aringo has joined Count Valmaseda with 2,000 men, abandoning the rebellion, and that Valmaseda, reinforced by a thousand of these men, has set out from Puerto Principe to meet General Lesca, when with their combined forces they will attack Quesada.
