

NEGRO INSURGENTS IN CUBA.—Our special telegram from Cuba, dated in Havana yesterday and forwarded by way of Key West, reports fresh battles, severe fighting, the exhibition of a determined spirit on both sides, and continued losses to the Spaniards. The negro element stands forth prominently as the moving power of an insurrectionary attack on Puerto Principe, the Africans fighting with much animation, although steadily opposed by the Spanish soldiers. The blacks succeeded in the main object of their assault—the destruction of a large stock of government provisions—and retired in good order. The acerbity of the contest is becoming more intense hourly and its consequences more demoralizing and desolating. Spain cannot hope to conquer the revolt, as contemporaneous with the news from the island comes to us, through the Atlantic cable, intelligence of a continued agitation in the mother country in consequence of the movements of Don Carlos. What is to become of Cuba?
