Encounters with the Revolutionists—Pushing Forward Enlistments—Money for Arms.

HAVANA, September 4, 1892.

Major La Casa has had several skirmishes with the insurgents near Arroyo Blanco, in the jurisdiction of the Cuatro Villas, and killed thirty of them.

Committees have been appointed to promote enlistments for the volunteer reserve corps in this city.

Money was subscribed at the Casino Español last night to buy Remington rifles for the Catalan volunteers.

The English war steamer Philomet, from Nassau, has arrived here.

The Ex-Blockade Runner Lillian Slips Out of New Orleans—A Filibustering Expedition to be Taken On Board at Fernandina—Another Blockade Runner Flitting Out.

NEW ORLEANS, September 4, 1892.

The ex-blockade runner Lillian, as anticipated in the HERALD special of yesterday, slipped out last night, and before this despatch is published she will have reached Fernandina, Fla., and taken on board the men concentrated there awaiting her arrival. Unless intercepted, twenty-four hours more will bring her off the coast of Cuba. No vessel in these waters can outsteam her. The Teaser, her sister steamer, though not quite so fast, is fitting out at this port, doubtless for the same purpose as the Lillian.
