The prospects of the Cubans are brightening. One of the most important facts which has yet occurred since the beginning of the revolution, is the charge brought against the Governors of two districts, Trinidad and Villa Clara, of disloyalty to Spain and complicity with the Cubans. The same charge is brought against the commander of the forces near Remedios. Four companies of one Spanish battalion are reported to have actually joined the Cubans, and the advance guard of the Spanish Gen. Letona is said to have suffered a defeat near Cienfuegos. All this indicates the spread of demoralization among the Spanish forces in that part of the island where the largest forces of Spaniards and of the Cubans are confronting each other—in the Districts of Remedios, Sagua la Grande, Villa Clara, Trinidad, and in general the western section of the Central Department. That the Cubans are unanimous in their sympathy with the revolution, admits no longer of any doubt; and they only want a better supply of artillery and a more effective organization to become masters of the situation. If, as is again reported, several expeditions from the United States, well supplied with arms, have recently landed in Cuba, their presence will soon make itself felt.
