

The Cuban Insurrection.

The New York Sun, which seems to be the organ of the Cuban Revolutionists, published a letter dated at Trinidad, on the 21st of April, professing to have been received from the Cuban camp direct, and which claims a splendid victory for the Patriots. The letter says:—

Citizen Villamil, with 1,000 men and eight mules, which appeared to be loaded marched in sight of Trinidad. He was attacked at 11 o'clock A. M., by the Spanish troops, which came out from Trinidad for that purpose, but were routed. The Spaniards fled, leaving twenty dead, thirty wounded, and twenty-five Remington rifles behind. The patriots lost twenty-four men in killed and wounded, one adjutant among the number. Villamil then received orders from Gen. Canada to move to Palmarejo, where he arrived without finding a single Spanish soldier on the road.

On the same day, and near Trinidad, arms in great quantity were landed, to the cries of "Long live Cuba free," and "Long live Gen. Cespedes."

The same letter gives an account of another victory won by the Patriots on the 15th of April, resulting in the capture of the city of Las Tunas, with 150 prisoners, with some artillery, including two field pieces. The Patriots also received a reinforcement of 250 men who had been held as prisoners by the Spanish forces.

We give this for what it is worth—merely adding that "no other paper has the news."
