

2 More Bombs Explode Here; No One Injured

Two more dynamite bombs were exploded in greater Havana last night.

One was placed on a stairway in a Vedado apartment house. The other was set off in the rear of a hardware store at the corner of Calzada de Guines and Guadalupe.

No one was injured in the blasts.

The Vedado explosion went off on the first landing of an apartment house at 1151 Línea St., on the corner of 16th Street. The force of the blast blew the front door off its hinges, knocked out windows around the front door and on the second floor and badly scarred the marble staircasing and walls.

Evaristo García, owner of the building, was in his ground floor apartment with his wife and two small children at the time of the blast. One of the children, Grisell, was sitting in the living room watching television.

Several families were in other apartments in the building at the time.

Residents of the area said that the doorway of the building is often full of children. They said the fact that the front door was unlocked probably prompted the bomber to place his bomb inside on the landing.

The explosion in the hardware store blew out the display window on the street and most of the display cabinet windows inside the store. Salvador Tuma, owner of the store was in his apartment above the store at the time of the blast.
